A Real Land Boom
How Animals Vanish.
Cures by Spirits.
Sante Fe Value.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

For real land boom excitement go to Oersonkrall, newly discovered diamond field in South Africa. Think of finding diamonds as heavy as 28 karats apiece, buried only one foot and a half below the top of the earth.

That should be a well-scratched and well dug up part of Africa with thousands of diamond-seekers leaving their jobs in Johannesburg, pouring into the diamond lands.

The roads are bad where there are any, and the swiftest runners over rough grounds get the first claims.

Chicago discovers with horror that a blind beggar playing a little fiddle has earned on an average $19 an hour. He just sits with his hat beside him, and every hour $19 drops into his hat.

Why criticize the beggar?

At least he had to sit in one place, look sad and play a dreary little tune on his little fiddle for only $19 an hour.

Thousands of sons of rich Americans don't even fiddle or look sad, but scatter over the earth making fools of themselves, while 10 or 100 times what the Chicago beggar gets falls into their hats.

He who gets money without earning it is a beggar, no matter how "respectably" he may get it.

In a big ballroom of the McAlpin hotel in New York you might see the various animals passing off the face of the earth, in the sale of furs at public auction.

All sorts of fur bearing animals contributed their hides in thousands and tens of thousands to the demand for furs to decorate the furless body of the female human animal.

Dealers seemed most interested in southern muskrat skins, which brought as high as $1.98 each in large blocks. This offers good profit to owners of muskrat swamps in the south.

After the muskrats came in a "lot" of 497 brown, black and grizzly bears. Next came polar bears. These huge animals brought for their hides only about five times as much each as the small humble thick furred muskrat. Ladies do not wear bearskins to any great extent.

The kind-hearted may sigh at the "disappearance of our four-footed fur-bearing friends."

But, animals carry and make permanent numerous diseases. Their spirit locked up in the animals body is hunted a great part of the time and unhappy.

Unquestionably all but human life

AUTO AND COAT REPORTED STOLEN

A Ford touring automobile, belonging to H. V. Ramsey of Burgettstown, was stolen from Green lane about 9:30 o'clock this morning, while the owner was in a barber shop, according to a report made to the police. In the car, Ramsey had left his coat, in the pocket of which was his license number.

The owner telegraphed the state automobile license bureau at Harrisburg to obtain the number of the car.

A Buick car, belonging to William Rogers of East End, which was stolen here last night, was recovered near Stop 55 on the Lincoln highway this morning. The machine was taken, police believe, by joy-riders.

William T. Anderson, East End coal dealer, today reported the theft of a quantity of gasoline from his tanks in the coal yards near Belleck street, last night.

Kiwanians to Pay Tribute of Respect To Late Member

Members of the Kiwanis club will pay their last tribute to their fellow member, the late Robert L. Parker, tonight.

The club members will assemble at the Frank S. Huff drug store, corner Third street and Carolina avenue, Chester, at not later than 8 o'clock, and go to the Parker home to view the body. The resolution committee, of which Frank G. Jones is chairman, has been instructed to prepare resolutions of condolence which will be sent to the bereaved family.

Parker became a member of the club while he was mayor of Chester. He was active in the club's affairs, being chairman of the educational committee, which will have charge of the program for next Thursday's meeting in the Educational Week observance.

THREE BANDITS GET TWO CHEAP WATCHES, THEN FIRE AT MAN

Kenilworth Night Crew Members Victims of Robbery

ROBBERS ESCAPE

Flee in Automobile Across Ohio River Bridge

Three unidentified bandits, armed with revolvers, visited the Kenilworth Brick company's plant, just below Newell, at 10 o'clock last night, held up five workmen and made their getaway with two cheap watches as their loot after attempting to shoot one of their victims.

Two Victims Flee.

Michael Wolski, foreman of the night, narrowly escaped being hit as one of the robbers fired three shots at him in an effort to halt his flight. Wolski ran around the kilns to the company houses where he aroused sleeping employes.

During the excitement, another workman victim fled. While an effort was being made to stop him, a third started to run. However, he stumbled and fell across the runway around the kiln. The bandit, who had "covered" him, opened fire but the foreigner quickly arose and succeeded in eluding his would-be captors.

The fourth member of the group was trapped against a railroad car and had no chance to escape. The three searched him and took his watch. The bandits then left the yards with a warning to the remaining victim to give no alarm.

Robbers Believed Amateurs.

The trio, believed to be amateurs, are thought to have fled into East Liverpool in a Ford coupe, which is said to have passed over the Newell-East Liverpool bridge shortly before 11 o'clock without stopping at the toll house. Police have a description of two of the three suspects and are making a search for them.

The three strangers were first noticed about the brick yards shortly before 10 o'clock when they appeared in the boiler room, asking John Cate, Negro fireman, for permission to spend the night inside. Cate refused their request, stating that the night was warm and that they could rest in the open.

The bandits left the room and a few minutes later, two of them again entered the boiler room and leveling guns at Cate ordered him to put up his hands. The third member of the group evidently remained on guard outside the building. One of the bandits went through Cate's pockets. He took Cate's watch, but found no money. With a warning to Cate to remain inside and raise no alarm, the robbers left the boiler room and walked into

Lakewood Man Ground to Death in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—A well dressed man, later identified as Charles G. Miller, of Lakewood, dived beneath the wheels of a Cleveland & Southwestern car just as it was leaving the public square today and was ground to death. It was necessary to jack up the wheels of the car to remove the badly mangled body.

In his pocket was found cash totaling $215.30.

The square was crowded at the time, and hundreds watched as the motorman applied his brakes in a futile effort to save the man's life. Women screamed. One or two fainted.

The act appeared to be entirely deliberate. Miller, as the car started to leave, walked from the curb, then seemed to throw himself under the rear trucks of the car.

Bystanders said he had been pacing nervously along the sidewalk for about 15 minutes previously

$2,000,000 HEIRESS IS MISSING

Beauty Judges Ready to Name 'Miss America' At Seashore

Fifteen Contestants, Including "Miss Pittsburgh, Survive Preliminaries in Atlantic City Pageant.

(Special to The Review-Tribune).

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.—"Miss America" will be crowned here today.

Fifteen American beauties, survivors of the elimination judging yesterday, will face the critics of pulchritude in Atlantic City's pageant this afternoon. One of them will be selected as the most beautiful girl in the country.

"Miss Pittsburgh," Miss Mildred Walker, of Bellevue, Pa., is among those whose charms will be considered in the final judging.

By the time you read this the fight will have been settled, one way or the other, after a contest in which 55 girls, ten of whom capitalized their beauty via the stage, completed.

The controversy over alleged professionalism is not the first that has arisen by any means.

More than a month ago Ruth Malcolmson of Philadelphia, the "Miss America, 1924," announced that she would not defend her title in the 1925 pageant because Katherine Ray, actress in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," had been permitted to enter the lists against her. Through the meidum of the press, Miss Malcolmson and Miss Ray had quite a little tiff about it. "Unfair to an amateur," said Miss Malcolmson. "Huh! Jealous!" retorted Miss Ray.

Philadelphia, thus robbed of its queen, chose Annette Jackson to take Miss Malcolmson's place. The powers that be of the pageant, learning in the nick of time that the Jackson girl had signed a contract with a promoter, barred her the day before the contest began on the ground that she was a professional. At the same time they let the "Vanities" show-girl come in

"Nine-day Wonders," Safe, Well and Happy, and Provisioned by Rescuing Submarine R-4, Come Into Port Amid Cheers of Hawaiians as News Spreads.

COURAGEOUS COMMANDER IS NAMED ASSISTANT NAVY AERONAUTIC CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—As a reward for the courageous and heroic manner in which he overcame the almost superhuman difficulties in his flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, Commander John Rodgers of the seaplane PN-9 No. 1 was today promoted to the post of assistant chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

Announcement of Rodgers' promotion was made by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

Rodgers will succeed Capt. A. W. Johnson as assistant chief in the bureau, which is headed by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett.

The speed with which Commander Rodgers was elevated to the new post is almost without precedent in naval history.

LIHUE, ISLAND OF KAUAI, Hawaiian Group, via Wireless to International News Service, Sept. 11.—All of Kauai turned out early today to witness the ending of an epic of the air and sea.

And the ending was as dramatic as the rescue of Commander John Rodgers and his crew of four on board the missing PN-9 plane.

Provisioned by the rescuing submarine R-4, Commander Rodgers and his crew elected to finish their voyage as they had started it in their plane.

"Did PB-1 Make Hop?" First Words of Rescued Plane Commander as He and Crew Reach Shore.

HONOLULU, Sept. 11.—"Did the the PB-1 make the hop?"

These were the first words of Commander John Rodgers of the PN-9 No. 1 as he and his men stepped from the seaplane on which they were lost for nine days on the Pacific.

Wearing nine days' beard and pale from hunger and exposure, "Cold Nerve" Rodgers and the four men who made up the crew, landed at Lihue, Island of Kauia, early today.

But the cool daring and the sheer nerve which carried them through one of the most thrilling episodes in the history of aviation rode with them into the harbor on the PN-9.

Food gave out the fifth day of the wanderings, Rodgers said today. They had water, however, due to the complete equipment of the plane.

Fabric was used to fashion a reservoir in which rain water was caught.

A small still on board the seaplane was also used to distill sea water.

Weathers Heavy Storm.

The landing on September 1, when the plane passed out of sight was made without difficulty, Commander Rogers declared.

The plane came down north of the Guardship Aroostook, the last vessel to be in communication with the plane.

On the third day after the big plane had gone adrift it passed through a

Eiferd at State Parley to Prevent Stream Pollution

John Eiferd, proprietor of the Golden Star Dairy, Lincoln highway, Glenmoor, attended a conference between state health department officials and representatives of the milk industry, held at Columbus yesterday for the purpose of devising ways and means to prevent further stream pollution from industrial sources.

According to the state health department officials waste from creameries and similar plants is responsibles for part of the pollution. The milk distributors agreed to the appointment of a committee consisting of two representatives from each branch, fluid milk, condensed milk, creamery, ice cream and cheese, to make a study of the problem so far as it concerns them.

Steel interests previously agreed to co-operate in the step to prevent stream pollution.

SNATCHED FROM JAWS OF DEATH, THEY LAND AT LIHUE IN OWN CRAFT

All of Kauai Island, Hawaiian Group, Turn Out to Witness End of Epic of Air and Sea as Commander and Four Men Elect to Finish Voyage as They Started It.

GALLANT AIRMEN REFUSE TO LEAVE PLACES AS PLANE STARTS TO DRIFT

"Nine-day Wonders," Safe, Well and Happy, and Provisioned by Rescuing Submarine R-4, Come Into Port Amid Cheers of Hawaiians as News Spreads.

COURAGEOUS COMMANDER IS NAMED ASSISTANT NAVY AERONAUTIC CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—As a reward for the courageous and heroic manner in which he overcame the almost superhuman difficulties in his flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, Commander John Rodgers of the seaplane PN-9 No. 1 was today promoted to the post of assistant chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

Announcement of Rodgers' promotion was made by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

Rodgers will succeed Capt. A. W. Johnson as assistant chief in the bureau, which is headed by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett.

The speed with which Commander Rodgers was elevated to the new post is almost without precedent in naval history.

By JOHN STONE

LIHUE, ISLAND OF KAUAI, Hawaiian Group, via Wireless to International News Service, Sept. 11.—All of Kauai turned out early today to witness the ending of an epic of the air and sea.

And the ending was as dramatic as the rescue of Commander John Rodgers and his crew of four on board the missing PN-9 plane.

Provisioned by the rescuing submarine R-4, Commander Rodgers and his crew elected to finish their voyage as they had started it in their plane.

"COLD NERVE" RODGERS CATCHES RAIN WATER IN FABRIC; FOOD GAVE OUT

"Did PB-1 Make Hop?" First Words of Rescued Plane Commander as He and Crew Reach Shore.

HONOLULU, Sept. 11.—"Did the the PB-1 make the hop?"

These were the first words of Commander John Rodgers of the PN-9 No. 1 as he and his men stepped from the seaplane on which they were lost for nine days on the Pacific.

Wearing nine days' beard and pale from hunger and exposure, "Cold Nerve" Rodgers and the four men who made up the crew, landed at Lihue, Island of Kauia, early today.

But the cool daring and the sheer nerve which carried them through one of the most thrilling episodes in the history of aviation rode with them into the harbor on the PN-9.

Food gave out the fifth day of the wanderings, Rodgers said today. They had water, however, due to the complete equipment of the plane.

Fabric was used to fashion a reservoir in which rain water was caught.

A small still on board the seaplane was also used to distill sea water.

Weathers Heavy Storm.

The landing on September 1, when the plane passed out of sight was made without difficulty, Commander Rogers declared.

The plane came down north of the Guardship Aroostook, the last vessel to be in communication with the plane.

On the third day after the big plane had gone adrift it passed through a

FLIGHT PROJECT LEADER JOYFUL

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 11.—"I am the happiest man in the world."

These were the words today of Captain Stanford E. Moses, Hawaiian flight project commander, as news of the miraculous rescue of Commander John Rodgers and his four men of the PN-9 No. 1, continued to reach him. The PN-9 No. 1 was lost exactly nine days.

"I sent the men out, and next to the parents of the men themselves, I have been most anxious for their safe return," Captain Moses said.

"Their finding bears out the hopes that we reluctantly gave up a few days ago. We then believed that Rodgers and his men would pull through.

Rescue of No. 1 Ship Likely to Prompt Another Attempt to Fly Across Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The pall that has hung over the navy department since the destruction of the dirigible Shenandoah and the disappearance in the Pacific of Commander John Rodgers and the crew of the seaplane PN 9 No. 1, was partly lifted today by news of the rescue of the latter.

"I am very, very happy to know that they are safe. I had never given up hope," said Secretary of the Navy Wilbur when he was informed at an Beaver County Police Confiscate Liquor In Clean-Up.

Beaver County Detectives Dan Baker and William Davidson and Constable Paul Caldwell and B. Frank Kidd swooped down upon a store and bar room in Beaver avenue, Midland, and arrested the two proprietors and nine visitors and confiscated a tea pot full of intoxicating liquor. The two proprietors gave their names as Roda Trtovick and Miladin Torvich, who were taken before Justice of the Peace Addison Courtney in West Bridgewater where each one of them pleaded not guilty to the charge of sale and possession. Upon default of $2,000 bail they were taken to Beaver jail to await their trial at the September term of court.

The visitors each put up a $10 forfeit for their appearance at a hearing before Courtney.

The liquor was found in a small aluminum teapot which was used as a dispensary. Two wine glasses were also confiscated.

RAIL CROSSING IS DANGEROUS

The chamber of commerce of Beaver, Pa., has appealed to Paul D. Wright, Pennsylvania state highway secretary, to have some improvement made immediately at the Vanport grade crossing.

In their telegram, the Beaver organization said: "The unfinished portion of state highway route No. 243 at the railroad crossing at Vanport is in an extremely dangerous condition and has been for the last three or four months. Many automobiles meet with serious difficulties and dangers at this point. This is a cinder road, and when cars drive to the side to pass, it crumbles, allowing the cars to slide over the hill. Three cars went over on Friday, September 4. Approximately fifteen cars have met with the same serious difficulties in the last three months. Some injuries have been reported. The point of greatest danger is right at the crossing. The Beaver county commissioners claim this road is entirely in your hands. We urge immediate action and ask for advice when such may be expected."

LOS ANGELES ISSUES 120,000 NIXIES YEARLY

Incorrectly Addressed Letters Cost U. S. $2,000,000.

WRITING BLAMED

Cite Reason Why Dead Letter Office Keeps Busy.

LOS ANGELES.—A point totally omitted from statistical reports of the local Chamber of Commerce is the fact that Los Angeles exports more than ten thousand "nixies" every month.

No mention is made of this tremendous output, for the reason that the city is not at all proud of its "nixie" industry. The 120,000 or more "nixies" sent from Los Angeles each year help to swell the national total of 20,000,000 which annualy cost Uncle Sam $2,000,000. That's why Los Angeles boosters do not brag of the city's "nixies."

A "nxie" is a letter which because of its illegibly scrawled superscription or an incorrect address or lack of a return designation in the upper left-hand corner causes the Postoffice department no end of trouble before it can be delivered. And the "nixie" usually finds its way to the dead letter office. That's where 10,000 of them are sent every month from the Los Angeles postoffice, according tao Postmaster P. P. O'Brien.

An idea of the manner in which handwriting, which resembles seismographic records of the Tokio eartquake, is deciphered to enable a letter to reach its destination, was given today by Postmaster O'Brien.

"Poor handwriting on a letter is one of the greatest hindrances to the efficiency of the Postoffice department," he said. "This can be realized when it is explained that a mail distributor must be able to distribute a minimum of 18 letters per minute, witha 98 percentage of accuracy. When a letter with a scrawled superscription comes into his hand he has to waste valuable seconds trying to puzzle it out before he can put the letter where he believes it should go. Some of our distributors can average 55 to 10 letters per minute under normal circumstances, but poor handwriting hampers such averages.

"Letters with unusually bad handwriting are given to a group of distributors who are experts at deciphering scrawls. If they cannot decide what is meant by the involved writing on the letter, and if it had no return address written in the corner, the letter goes to the dead letter office at San Francisco. And right here I wish to state emphatically that if all letters carried such return addresses on them, the dead letter office would go out of business within a month.

"In the case of letters bearing incorrect addresses, directory service is sometimes given, although our bureau of directory clerks has been reduced from 86 to 10 because of the tremendous expense involved. When the bureau was at the original strength two years ago it was costing $100,000, annually to operate—much of which was being paid by taxpayers for someone else's mistakes in addresing. If a law was now in effect charging two cents for each letter requiring directory service, such service could practically be made self-supporting."

YOUR HEALTH

Consider Your Habits and All They Mean to You

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

DR. COPELAND

HABIT means everything to you. If you get up regularly at 6:30 A. M., you cannot sleep after that hour, even on a holiday. If you have bacon and eggs for breakfast the year round, you don't want liver, even for a change.

There are all sorts of habits—some are good, others are not so good, and many are downright bad. How are your habits?

What is good practice for one, may be impossible for another. For instance, there are persons who can get along on five hours sleep a night. I can't. Even with my naturally strong body. I would be a wreck, if for a month I should be cut down to five hours sleep in twenty-four.

Some persons have digestive organs which seem capable of digesting rocks and hardware. They can eat anything and appear never to suffer ill effects.

Of course, I consider it unwise to treat a willing stomach as if it were a play-house. The most powerful of digestive systems must eventually rebel.

It is said "as the twig is bent the tree is inclined." Your habits when you grow up are what they were made by early training or the lack of it.

Every parent is responsible for the habits acquired by the child. It is just as easy to make good habits "second nature," as it is to permit the formation of habits that will curse the future.

It is important to prevent the child from forming the habit of eating too much sugar, too much salt, too much meat, or, for that matter, too much anything. He will form a bad habit of this sort if you don't watch him. Eternal vigilance is demanded to avoid it.

When you discover that eggs, pork, coffee, pastry, cauliflower or any other particular food is bad for you, even if you "love it," give up the habit of eating it.

There can be no doubt that certain foodstuffs are poisonous to some persons. There is no use in attempting to overcome the effects. You just can't eat them and there is no need to try.

If tobacco, alcohol, milk, pie, candy—it matters not what—causes ill effects which may shorten your life, why persist in its use?

The wise man avoids the quicksands of a bad habit.

Northwich, England, Lifted Five Feet Within Three Years

NORTHWICH, Eng.—The whole of the twon has been lifted five feet within the last three years, according to the town surveyor.

This has been done to counteract the effect of subsidence caused by the brine pumping which goes on continually in the salt mines beneath the town. The whole of the business portion, ten streets, three banks, and two hundred stores and houses have been raised without suspending work in any way, and it is proudly pointed out by the surveyor that not a stone, bottle or window was smashed during the course of the operations.

LOS ANGELES ISSUES 120,000 NIXIES YEARLY

Incorrectly Addressed Letters Cost U. S. $2,000,000.

Cite Reason Why Dead Letter Office Keeps Busy.

LOS ANGELES.—A point totally omitted from statistical reports of the local Chamber of Commerce is the fact that Los Angeles exports more than ten thousand "nixies" every month.

No mention is made of this tremendous output, for the reason that the city is not at all proud of its "nixie" industry. The 120,000 or more "nixies" sent from Los Angeles each year help to swell the national total of 20,000,000 which annualy cost Uncle Sam $2,000,000. That's why Los Angeles boosters do not brag of the city's "nixies."

A "nxie" is a letter which because of its illegibly scrawled superscription or an incorrect address or lack of a return designation in the upper left-hand corner causes the Postoffice department no end of trouble before it can be delivered. And the "nixie" usually finds its way to the dead letter office. That's where 10,000 of them are sent every month from the Los Angeles postoffice, according tao Postmaster P. P. O'Brien.

An idea of the manner in which handwriting, which resembles seismographic records of the Tokio eartquake, is deciphered to enable a letter to reach its destination, was given today by Postmaster O'Brien.

"Poor handwriting on a letter is one of the greatest hindrances to the efficiency of the Postoffice department," he said. "This can be realized when it is explained that a mail distributor must be able to distribute a minimum of 18 letters per minute, witha 98 percentage of accuracy. When a letter with a scrawled superscription comes into his hand he has to waste valuable seconds trying to puzzle it out before he can put the letter where he believes it should go. Some of our distributors can average 55 to 10 letters per minute under normal circumstances, but poor handwriting hampers such averages.

"Letters with unusually bad handwriting are given to a group of distributors who are experts at deciphering scrawls. If they cannot decide what is meant by the involved writing on the letter, and if it had no return address written in the corner, the letter goes to the dead letter office at San Francisco. And right here I wish to state emphatically that if all letters carried such return addresses on them, the dead letter office would go out of business within a month.

"In the case of letters bearing incorrect addresses, directory service is sometimes given, although our bureau of directory clerks has been reduced from 86 to 10 because of the tremendous expense involved. When the bureau was at the original strength two years ago it was costing $100,000, annually to operate—much of which was being paid by taxpayers for someone else's mistakes in addresing. If a law was now in effect charging two cents for each letter requiring directory service, such service could practically be made self-supporting."

YOUR HEALTH

Consider Your Habits and All They Mean to You

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

HABIT means everything to you. If you get up regularly at 6:30 A. M., you cannot sleep after that hour, even on a holiday. If you have bacon and eggs for breakfast the year round, you don't want liver, even for a change.

There are all sorts of habits—some are good, others are not so good, and many are downright bad. How are your habits?

What is good practice for one, may be impossible for another. For instance, there are persons who can get along on five hours sleep a night. I can't. Even with my naturally strong body. I would be a wreck, if for a month I should be cut down to five hours sleep in twenty-four.

Some persons have digestive organs which seem capable of digesting rocks and hardware. They can eat anything and appear never to suffer ill effects.

Of course, I consider it unwise to treat a willing stomach as if it were a play-house. The most powerful of digestive systems must eventually rebel.

It is said "as the twig is bent the tree is inclined." Your habits when you grow up are what they were made by early training or the lack of it.

Every parent is responsible for the habits acquired by the child. It is just as easy to make good habits "second nature," as it is to permit the formation of habits that will curse the future.

It is important to prevent the child from forming the habit of eating too much sugar, too much salt, too much meat, or, for that matter, too much anything. He will form a bad habit of this sort if you don't watch him. Eternal vigilance is demanded to avoid it.

When you discover that eggs, pork, coffee, pastry, cauliflower or any other particular food is bad for you, even if you "love it," give up the habit of eating it.

There can be no doubt that certain foodstuffs are poisonous to some persons. There is no use in attempting to overcome the effects. You just can't eat them and there is no need to try.

If tobacco, alcohol, milk, pie, candy—it matters not what—causes ill effects which may shorten your life, why persist in its use?

The wise man avoids the quicksands of a bad habit.

Airships and Air Service

It is said officially that the government will build "another Shenandoah," or at least another dirigible. There need be no objection to such a policy. It need not be argued, from this last catastrophe, even though it was the climax of a tragic series, that dirigibles have proved themselves hopeless. It is probably a wise decision to go ahead experimenting with dirigible construction until it has proved its usefulness and safety or its absolute undependability.

The engineers are the best judges, and apparently they are undecided, so far. When the best experts condemn lighter-than-air craft it will be time to stop building them and concentrate on airplanes.

While building new dirigibles, however, there is another thing, which, if public comment is any criterion, is far more important at this time. It is the building of a new air-service —new in organization and spirit if not in personnel.

Against Heroin

Six countries, led by the United States, are trying to prohibit the further manufacture of heroin, in the course of the anti-opium activity of the League of Nations. This country is supported by Canada, Norway, Poland, Sweden and Brazil. It is greatly to be hoped that other nations will see the need of such action.

The American authorities hold that heroin is unnecessary for medical use, because its legitimate purposes can be served by other opiates. Though a comparatively mild derivative of opium, it is perhaps all the more dangerous for that season, because of its subtle lure. Its victims, particularly children, are tempted by it and become easy prey. The effects are disastrous to body, mind and character.

If there cannot be prohibition of such dangerous drugs, there should certainly be strengthened control of the traffic in them. That is difficult, because of the vested interests in drug manufacture and the disposition of governments to protect those interests regardless of the harm done. But drastic action is needed. As long as dangerous drugs are manufactured, it is almost impossible to prevent their distribution, because they are easily smuggled.

The drug problem has not yet been taken seriously enough, nationally or internationally. The last opium conference resulted in a break between the American delegation and the others, and the mild restrictive treaty signed by 26 nations has not yet been ratified by any. New vigor is needed to protect mankind from a plague worse than alcohol.

Address Unknown

A company of school cadets in England, having received a message from the Prince of Wales, mailed a courteous reply to His Royal Highness, and were astonished to get their letter back stamped "Address Unknown."

They were not alone in this experience, however. The British postoffice has a great deal of use for that stamp. Of course, everybody knows where the Prince of Wales is. The farther he travels, the more the whole world knows his whereabouts. But it is rmarkable how many people feel obliged to write to the poor prince, and he simply has to be protected somehow or other from a world of eager correspondents.

If only other celebrites, large and small, could be safeguarded by the same official lie! A deluge of mail is one of the prices paid for fame. Many an American would give thousands of dollars if he could persuade the United States postoffice to forget his address.

Railroads Prosper

Sixty American railroads whose net operating income was $61,339,000 in July last year earned $80,940,000 this year. Not only did they show a remarkable gain over the corresponding month a year ago, but they continued the healthy gain of recent months, with over $4,000,000 more income than they had in June.

Traffic seems to be rolling up right along, and efficiency increasing with it, so that there is no such swamping and demoralization of traffic as moved the government to take hold during the war.

There is equal public satisfaction in the railroads' increased prosperity and in their increased mastery of their own business. When private operation proves at the same time so effective financially and mechanically, there is no more question as to the continuance of the American railroad business under private enterprise.

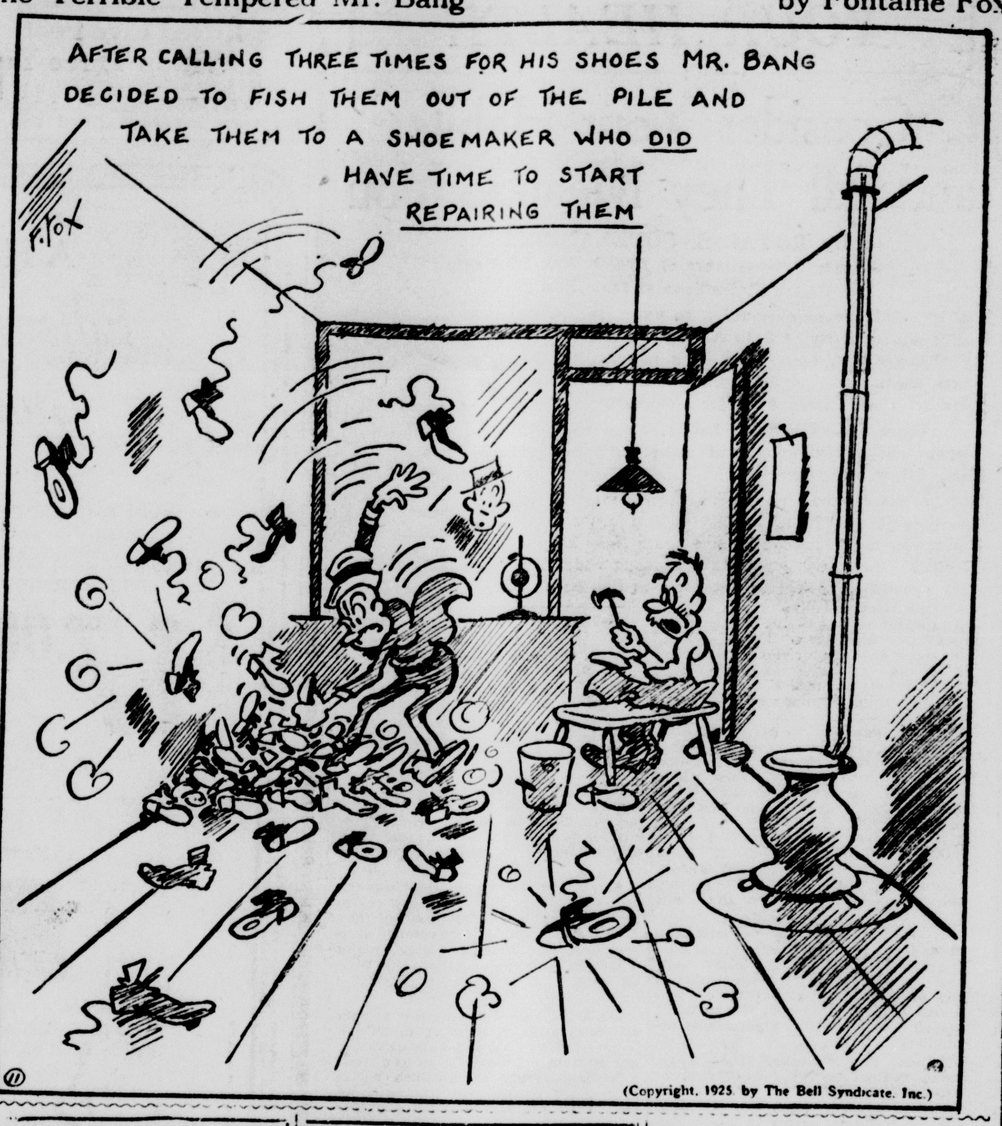

Whistling For Business

The latest abomination in candy, from the parents' standpoint —but not from the child's—is a "whstling sucker." Thereby hangs a tale.

A resident of a small middle-western town conceived the idea, got a patent, and persuaded a manufacturer to try it out. The manufacturer sent an agent into a neighboring village to make the first sale. The agent went to the general store, gave one of the suckers to a small boy and told him to go down one side of Main street and up the other, whistling all the way, promising him two more suckers when he got back. The boy did so, and returned with 20 children trailing on behind him. So the agent sold 10 boxes to the store, and the plague was launched.

Yet there are hopeless young men who say there are no more business opportunities!

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang — by Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: Cool nights do not stop the hatless brigade. Whatever became of Mary MacLane? And the Psyche knot? New plays and left overs. How many will rise to fame this season? And be forgotten next.

A fashion artist in dowdy habiliments. Orange drink stands drying up. Church bells and thin song of choirs. While saxophones tune up for night. A splay footed burlesque comedian with black ribbon over his ear and gray spats. An Olympian among the rabble.

Ewing Galloway, the photographer. Who wears a Davy Crockett fur cap. Three blind men in a block. Pallid ladies hawking Birth Control magazines. The liver and milk ponies from the Hippodrome. A sidewalk jigger gets a few hand claps and an order to "Move on."

Whatever became of thimble pipes for women? Wonder how many will discover they left theatre tickets in other clothes tonight? Wallace Morgan, artist. Soon be time for bonfires. And country sausage. To say nothing of wheat cakes!

Scattered swinkling of lights and soon the nightly flaming comet. And somehow I always think of lonely tents in Arizona where strained faces watch trains flash by. There solitude. Here a current of life as swift as a cataract. Yet which are happier?

I grow philosophical and hungry around dinner time. The old Chelsea district—smug neighborhood clinging to venerable traditions. Brass door knockers. Homes with archaic fireplaces and chandeliers hung with cut glass. Gloomy halls.

Boats filled with fish. Brick houses with scarred signs: Boarders Taken." A few old time cigar stores with wooden Indian signs. A Salvation Army band. Unmuzzled dogs. Shops where people play games. And tenements where mothers sit alone.

Cain's is a name that means bludgeoned hopes along the Rialto. Yet very few have ever seen this theatrical warehouse where all bad plays eventually go. It is in a tough neighborhood on Tenth Avenue in the Forties. It was first opened by John J. Cain, a retired policeman. It is now run by his son Pat. He is said to be a keen judge of plays. When business is bad in the theatre his warehouse bulges. There is a sort of ghostly presence inside—musty scenery rolled like carpets, furniture of every period, costumes and even spears. Cain's is the desolate graveyard of "Flops." It speaks of gay first nights, surging hopes of playwrights, stars and chorus girls. There have been as many as 15 plays land at Cain's in a single day.

In the same neighborhood of Cain's is a famous phychic parlor whose mistress presides over it in heavy black robe and sandals. Many theatrical people go there. Beyond her office are tiny rooms, each done in different colors. She psycho-analyzes by color and as the patron is led from room to room she notes reactions. She says people invariably react although they might not know of the color complex. Through processes of elimination she finds proper reaction and in this room she, for the lack of the technical term, "does her stuff." Whatever fear is besetting the harassed soul, she is said to trace it to its lair and rout it.

Purple is my favorite color. I purr to it. And in a purple room I'd like to have the lady inform me just why it is I cannot cross Central Park alone in broad daylight without rapid rise of pulse, dry throat and clammy hands.

And why Arthur Somers Roche, the novelist, has never ridden in an office building elevator. Or why Fred C. Kelly will not cross the ocean.

Red Cross Activities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11. — The American Red Cross is now preparing for its annual roll call, which is a membership drive, opening on Armistice Day and continuing until Thanksgiving Day—or from November 11 to November 26. It is from this enrollment that the organization derives its funds, and it is hoped by the officials that the membership this year will equal that of previous ones which is about three and a half millions.

Everyone is familiar in a general way with the work of the Red Cross, but it is interesting to note just what it has done this yast year. Perhaps one of the most spectacular things was the use of an airplane in carrying anti-toxin for sufferers in the tornado-wrecked middle west.

This plane flew from Indianapolis to Murphysboro, and its use in this manner is another indication of modern progress. It was the first time in the history of relief administration that an airplane had been used in such a way. The Indianapolis chapter of the Red Cross shipped the anti-toxin and Red Cross doctors and nurses stood ready to administer it immediately upon its arrival.

Another instance of the use of an airplane in rendering relief was when a Red Cross public health nurse on duty at Fairbanks, Alaska, flew from that point to Fort Yukon where an epidemic of influenza was raging. Practically the entire population, including the staff doctors and nurses at the hospital, were suffering from the disease. Bishop Rowe, of Alaska, had cabled the department of missions of the Episcopal church in New York city that a Red Cross nurse was immediately needed. The department of missions in turn appealed to Red Cross headquarters and as a result the nurse at Fairbanks was instructed to hop off. In two days she made the flight from Fairbanks, which is in Central Alaska, to Fort Yukon which is set squarely on the Arctic Circle.

By using the airplane in such a manner the Red Cross has blazed the trail for almost instantaneous relief where there is a disaster in which human lives hang in the balance.

Always Ready For Service.

The Red Cross mobile disaster relief unit is always prepared for service at any hour of the day or night. At the same time the plane was carrying the anti-toxin to the stricken in the tornado-swept middle west, that unit was at work. Also special trains were transporting doctors, nurses, surgical supplies, and even x-ray machines. The Red Cross First Aid Car, transformed into a hospital, was caring for patients. The administrative workers were on the job for a 24-hour day. The relief machinery did not pause until everything that human ingenuity and human hands could accomplish had been done.

This relief service of the organization in the five middle western states affected by the tornado was the biggest thing done by the society during the year. Up to June 30 approximately $2,773,000 had been given to this work through the medium of the Red Cross. In addition to this amount the national headquarters expended out of its reserve $128,000. Immediately after the disaster the Red Cross began its work of rehabilitating the 6,000 families affected by the storm.

The relief administered during the fiscal year 1925 ranged from that offered after the tornado in Lorain, O., to that in the earthquake-stricken city of Santa Barbara. The records of the society show that during its forty-four years of existence it has spent $48,000,000 in 700 disasters in the United States. Aside from this it has aided in relief work overseas when great calamities have occurred.

Service to the disabled veterans of the World war is an obligation which the Red Cross recognizes and which it continues to meet. During the year it aided every month more than 100,000 of these men and their families. It also serves 243,000 soldiers, sailors and marines now in active service. Since the signing of the armistice it has spent $53,000,000 for veterans and for men of the army and navy and their families.

Besides this relief work the Red Cross carries on many lines of endeavor for the betterment of everyday life. In the cause of good health for the nation it conducted classes in nutrition for 130,000 school children, and offered home instruction to 31,000 mothers. Since a large percentage of lay persons know little about what to do for a sick person or how to keep the home in a perfect state of sanitation, the society gave instruction to 67,281 women, girls and boys in home hygiene and the care of the sick.

First Aid And Rescue Work.

To reduce the number of unnecessary deaths from drowning and to minimize the dire results of many accidents, the Red Cross during the year trained 21,000 men, women and youths in water rescue and resuscitation. On the Fourth of July a great many resorts located on water fronts as part of their Independence Day celebration demonstrations of rescuing drowing persons. These were given by members of the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps.

Instruction in First Aid was given to 18,000 persons during the year. In addition to actual instruction given in these various lines, a great deal of literature on these subjects was distributed free.

Volunteer work of members of the 3,000 chapters of the Red Cross is a potent factor in its modern peacetime mission. Volunteers have produced 1,317,718 surgical dressings and 173,822 garments in addition to many other services rendered. Probably one of the most helpful, and certainly one of the most unusual, services was the preparation of 97,450 pages of Braille for the blind.

The Junior Red Cross is viewed by many as of vital importance in the cause of world peace. Born as a war organization the society came into being at a time when the boys and girls, as well as the women of the nation, were needed in the crucial work to be done. Its peacetime mission, however, appears to be greater than its wartime. It is believed that there is a better chance of understanding and friendship among the children of the world, than among the grown-ups. Consequently the children are being encouraged to enroll in this society. At the present time there are between thirty-five and forty countries in the world which have Junior Red Cross organizations.

The members of this society are trained in the duties of citizenship and taught to appreciate the joys of unselfish service. Also through the exchange of portfolios they are becoming familiar with the customs and ideals of the children of other nations.

Yearly the work of the American Red Cross has been extended until its activities now touch those in practically every walk of life. The society hopes during the coming enrollment to maintain its present membership or increase it. It believes that the small membership fee will more than be repaid by the satisfaction of feeling that one is assisting in the work it is doing.

Airships and Air Service

It is said officially that the government will build "another Shenandoah," or at least another dirigible. There need be no objection to such a policy. It need not be argued, from this last catastrophe, even though it was the climax of a tragic series, that dirigibles have proved themselves hopeless. It is probably a wise decision to go ahead experimenting with dirigible construction until it has proved its usefulness and safety or its absolute undependability.

The engineers are the best judges, and apparently they are undecided, so far. When the best experts condemn lighter-than-air craft it will be time to stop building them and concentrate on airplanes.

While building new dirigibles, however, there is another thing, which, if public comment is any criterion, is far more important at this time. It is the building of a new air-service—new in organization and spirit if not in personnel.

Against Heroin

Six countries, led by the United States, are trying to prohibit the further manufacture of heroin, in the course of the anti-opium activity of the League of Nations. This country is supported by Canada, Norway, Poland, Sweden and Brazil. It is greatly to be hoped that other nations will see the need of such action.

The American authorities hold that heroin is unnecessary for medical use, because its legitimate purposes can be served by other opiates. Though a comparatively mild derivative of opium, it is perhaps all the more dangerous for that season, because of its subtle lure. Its victims, particularly children, are tempted by it and become easy prey. The effects are disastrous to body, mind and character.

If there cannot be prohibition of such dangerous drugs, there should certainly be strengthened control of the traffic in them. That is difficult, because of the vested interests in drug manufacture and the disposition of governments to protect those interests regardless of the harm done. But drastic action is needed. As long as dangerous drugs are manufactured, it is almost impossible to prevent their distribution, because they are easily smuggled.

The drug problem has not yet been taken seriously enough, nationally or internationally. The last opium conference resulted in a break between the American delegation and the others, and the mild restrictive treaty signed by 26 nations has not yet been ratified by any. New vigor is needed to protect mankind from a plague worse than alcohol.

Address Unknown

A company of school cadets in England, having received a message from the Prince of Wales, mailed a courteous reply to His Royal Highness, and were astonished to get their letter back stamped "Address Unknown."

They were not alone in this experience, however. The British postoffice has a great deal of use for that stamp. Of course, everybody knows where the Prince of Wales is. The farther he travels, the more the whole world knows his whereabouts. But it is rmarkable how many people feel obliged to write to the poor prince, and he simply has to be protected somehow or other from a world of eager correspondents.

If only other celebrites, large and small, could be safeguarded by the same official lie! A deluge of mail is one of the prices paid for fame. Many an American would give thousands of dollars if he could persuade the United States postoffice to forget his address.

Railroads Prosper

Sixty American railroads whose net operating income was $61,339,000 in July last year earned $80,940,000 this year. Not only did they show a remarkable gain over the corresponding month a year ago, but they continued the healthy gain of recent months, with over $4,000,000 more income than they had in June.

Traffic seems to be rolling up right along, and efficiency increasing with it, so that there is no such swamping and demoralization of traffic as moved the government to take hold during the war.

There is equal public satisfaction in the railroads' increased prosperity and in their increased mastery of their own business. When private operation proves at the same time so effective financially and mechanically, there is no more question as to the continuance of the American railroad business under private enterprise.

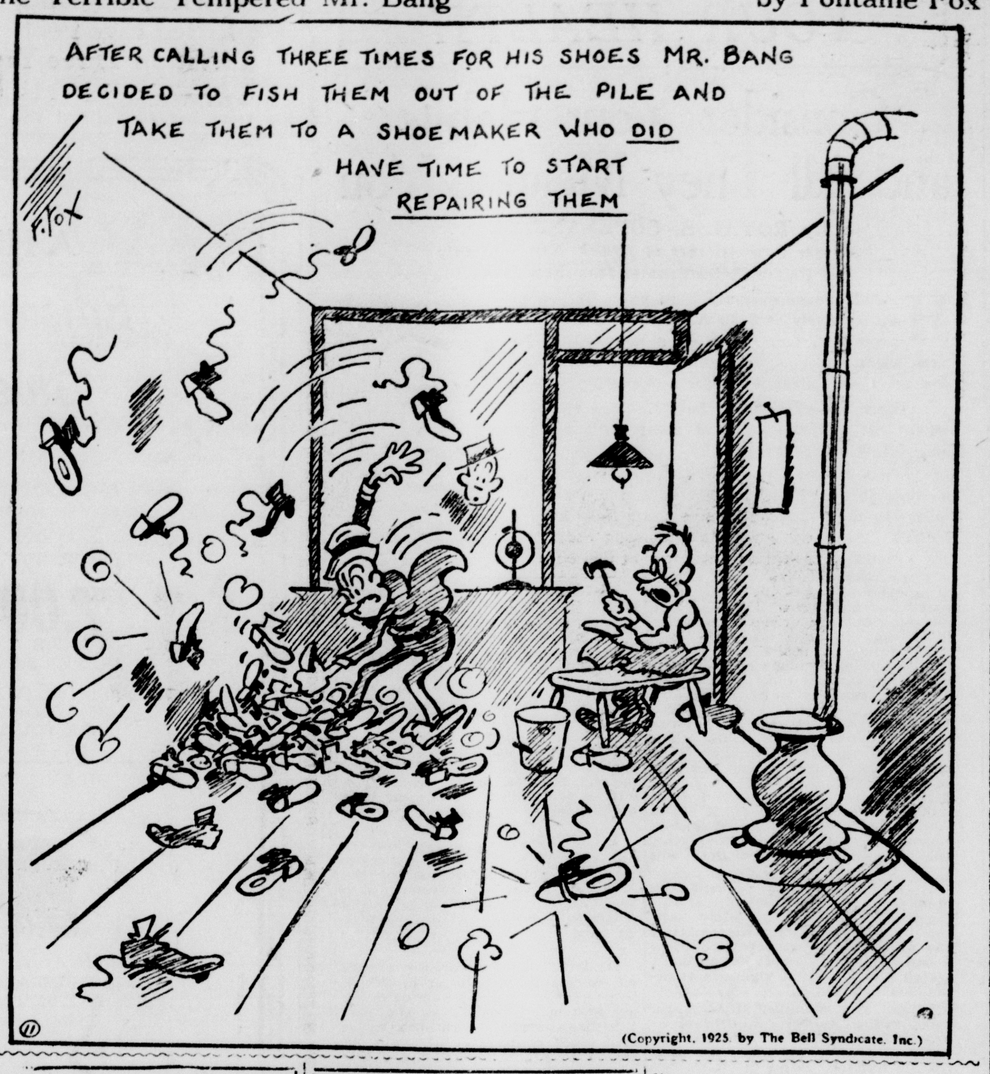

Whistling For Business

The latest abomination in candy, from the parents' standpoint—but not from the child's—is a "whstling sucker." Thereby hangs a tale.

A resident of a small middle-western town conceived the idea, got a patent, and persuaded a manufacturer to try it out. The manufacturer sent an agent into a neighboring village to make the first sale. The agent went to the general store, gave one of the suckers to a small boy and told him to go down one side of Main street and up the other, whistling all the way, promising him two more suckers when he got back. The boy did so, and returned with 20 children trailing on behind him. So the agent sold 10 boxes to the store, and the plague was launched.

Yet there are hopeless young men who say there are no more business opportunities!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: Cool nights do not stop the hatless brigade. Whatever became of Mary MacLane? And the Psyche knot? New plays and left overs. How many will rise to fame this season? And be forgotten next.

A fashion artist in dowdy habiliments. Orange drink stands drying up. Church bells and thin song of choirs. While saxophones tune up for night. A splay footed burlesque comedian with black ribbon over his ear and gray spats. An Olympian among the rabble.

Ewing Galloway, the photographer. Who wears a Davy Crockett fur cap. Three blind men in a block. Pallid ladies hawking Birth Control magazines. The liver and milk ponies from the Hippodrome. A sidewalk jigger gets a few hand claps and an order to "Move on."

Whatever became of thimble pipes for women? Wonder how many will discover they left theatre tickets in other clothes tonight? Wallace Morgan, artist. Soon be time for bonfires. And country sausage. To say nothing of wheat cakes!

Scattered swinkling of lights and soon the nightly flaming comet. And somehow I always think of lonely tents in Arizona where strained faces watch trains flash by. There solitude. Here a current of life as swift as a cataract. Yet which are happier?

I grow philosophical and hungry around dinner time. The old Chelsea district—smug neighborhood clinging to venerable traditions. Brass door knockers. Homes with archaic fireplaces and chandeliers hung with cut glass. Gloomy halls.

Boats filled with fish. Brick houses with scarred signs: Boarders Taken." A few old time cigar stores with wooden Indian signs. A Salvation Army band. Unmuzzled dogs. Shops where people play games. And tenements where mothers sit alone.

Cain's is a name that means bludgeoned hopes along the Rialto. Yet very few have ever seen this theatrical warehouse where all bad plays eventually go. It is in a tough neighborhood on Tenth Avenue in the Forties. It was first opened by John J. Cain, a retired policeman. It is now run by his son Pat. He is said to be a keen judge of plays. When business is bad in the theatre his warehouse bulges. There is a sort of ghostly presence inside—musty scenery rolled like carpets, furniture of every period, costumes and even spears. Cain's is the desolate graveyard of "Flops." It speaks of gay first nights, surging hopes of playwrights, stars and chorus girls. There have been as many as 15 plays land at Cain's in a single day.

In the same neighborhood of Cain's is a famous phychic parlor whose mistress presides over it in heavy black robe and sandals. Many theatrical people go there. Beyond her office are tiny rooms, each done in different colors. She psycho-analyzes by color and as the patron is led from room to room she notes reactions. She says people invariably react although they might not know of the color complex. Through processes of elimination she finds proper reaction and in this room she, for the lack of the technical term, "does her stuff." Whatever fear is besetting the harassed soul, she is said to trace it to its lair and rout it.

Purple is my favorite color. I purr to it. And in a purple room I'd like to have the lady inform me just why it is I cannot cross Central Park alone in broad daylight without rapid rise of pulse, dry throat and clammy hands.

And why Arthur Somers Roche, the novelist, has never ridden in an office building elevator. Or why Fred C. Kelly will not cross the ocean.

Red Cross Activities.

WASHINGTON, D. A LANDLUBBER ON THE "BOWDOIN"

Tells of His Experiences on Flagship of MacMillan's Expedition.

Washington, D. C.—"There is no place on board a small schooner bound for the Arctic for a landlubber," writes Maynard Owen Williams, a representative of the National Geographic society, from the Bowdoin, flagship of the MacMillan Arctic expedition. "With Liberty engines on the deck, steel barrels of gasoline lashed to the rail and boxes of gasoline and oil making a false floor which brings a man's head at the exact height of a swinging boom, a landsman must get over being a landlubber at the first possible moment.

"The minute we got outside Monhegan, Commander MacMillan said, 'Williams, take the wheel. Keep her on 120 degrees,' and immediately turned and left the Bowdoin to me. Both he and Mate Robinson do all they can to explain everything but don't talk technical language in order to appear imposing. I found out, for instance, that a 'sheet' is not a sail, as I thought, but a rope which serves to hold a boom down toward the point where it can bat a man on the ear.

"Our watch is midnight to six and noon to six. Dick (Salmon) interrupted my dreams (if any) with a large hand in the small of my back. One of the first annoyances was that there are little pantalettes inside a suit of oilskins and sticky rubber boots don't slide into the trousers as easily as a landsman would like. I did everything but put my hand on the galley stove. Playing stork and tugging at reluctant garments that have become fast friends is not easy in a rough sea even if that sea is what a seaman calls 'moderate.'

As to Eating.

"When I went on deck we were in a fairly thick fog. Under the red and green lights the pretty curve of bows reached up to the prow above which the jib was furled into a spirity mass with the rope meandering along its back like the Potomac in its most undecided mood. In the sea there were phosphorescent flashes and the black water purled into a creamy mass under her prow.

"We eat very well. Pickles and hardtack on deck seem to appeal to the seasick ones who, on the table below, would have to face fish chowder, a huge tray of lobsters and many other things including mince pie for which one is ill prepared when his world is adrift and won't settle down.

"A passenger on a big steamer thinks he has his sea legs when he can walk down a twenty-foot promenade deck without becoming a Laplander. But the landlubber in oilskins has a different task. The rail on the Bowdoin is just the height of the decoration of my golf stockings. There are halyards and sheets, dory tackle and all sorts of other lines which coil their serpentines around where one least expects them. The flukes on the anchors are as eager to grab a foot as they are to seize on a footing or a holding or whatever it is they grab in the bed of the sea. To add to the confusion there are all the casks and cases of gasoline and the three huge cases of Liberty motors. A landlubber must get over lubbering soon or else become a liability or a corpse.

"Aft we have a layaret, which is a storage place behind the captain's cabin. This room is shared with the mate.

"From Captain MacMillan's room one enters the engine room with its 60-horsepower, semi-Diesel oil engine and its various generators for electric light and radio equipment.

Vegetables Stay Fresh.

"The hold has become a radio room and its fore quarters are occupied by a dark room and an electric ice box. Spoiled meat has not only cost every other Arctic explorer dear but has deprived the men of something fresh. Our bushel of cucumbers are crisp as the phrase they gave birth to.

"The pantry, galley and forecastle are all together though some lady visitors did install some cretonne curtains which have gone the way of all beauty. A cretonne curtain is no support to a man who rolls out of a top bunk in a hurry. I know.

"So this is our little boat. She's a beauty and every seaman envies us our place in her. The crew is wonderfully fine. All in all it's a place for a man even if he starts as a landlubber. He may never return a first-class seaman but if he can't learn to hold her helm steady when a huge sail with a forty-foot baseball bat tied to it is trying to Babe Ruth a few heads he is better off the boat than on it.

"There is no question of the ability of Commander MacMillan. Seamen and explorers testify to that. But the safety of the whole ship may depend at times on whether a landlubber can steer, raise or lower sail or pick a tiny light out of a deep fog on a horizonless sea. This is no training cruise for midshipmen. By force of circumstances the man of the sea, who knows its moods, must trust to landlubbers at times. All hands will be on deck when the need arises and MacMillan and Robinson are able men. But sooner or later the landlubber has to face it. So perhaps it is not as surprising as it seemed to me that with fair weather and a smooth sea, our captain left out the A. B. C. theory and handed the wheel to a landlubber on his first water with a 'Take the wheel! Keep her on 120 degrees.'"

Because jewelry workers in the Pforzheim, Germany, district refused to accept 17 cents an hour wages, employers locked them out and cut the offer to 15 cents an hour.

The rise in the cost of rubber has reached the crepe soles of shoes, and the cost of footwear having them is climbing.

LAKE OF OIL IS SOUGHT AT MEXICO CITY

It is Certain That Gas Wells Lie Under Capital.

SOURCE OF FUEL

Poor Indians Will Benefit if Gushers Are Struck.

MEXICO CITY.—Whatever is beneath the thin crust of earth in this ancient valley is soon to be brought to light.

There may be oil. It is certain that there is natural gas and hot water.

If the former, as many and the government officially believe, it will bring a new and tremendous wealth. If gas it will supply fuel for a population upwards of a million which now uses the primitive charcoal, in the best as well as the most lowly dwellings.

Just outside the city limits a vast derrick is being erected in cooperation with the government and drilling is to begin within the next six weeks. There is absolutely no geological data upon which to base a conclusion. One celebrated geologist says "Mexico is resting on a lake of oil." Another says that upheavals during the volcanic age must have destroyed any structure which would have held oil.

Old Lake Bed Large.

This old lake bed is ninety miles in one direction and seventy in another; flat like a pancake on the surface, but undoubtedly, following the conformation of rock strata, below like a huge bowl. Around it on every side are extinct volcanoes. When Cortez, the conqueror, first viewed it it was a vast lake, with islands here and there on which were Indian villages. Mexico itself was built on canals not unlike the city of Venice. The lake was nowhere of any great depth, probably not over ten feet, and has since been drained. It is now a great alkali flat devoid of vegitation.

Indians digging their shallow wells for water have invariably found gas. And here and there about the flats may be found little pools of crude oil, carefully treasured by the natives. It goes back to the legend of their patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe. Her cathedral is nearby. She is said to have promised the Indians that she would deposit oil at various spots so that they could keep lights forever burning before her image. The Indians do this, putting the oil in little glass vessels with a wick.

The drillers say very frankly that they have no idea what they will discover. They believe that the chances are about even that they will discover oil and if they do that it will be in great quantities. They also have no idea how deep they will have to go, because what little is known of the structure is so unusual. Anywhere in the valley one has to dig not to exceed ten feet to find water and a black bed of mud. They have never gone beyond this.

Many Buildings Sink.

In fact most of the large buildings in Mexico are sinking into this. It is not uncommon to find buildings that have gone down as much as three feet.

The only buildings of weight which are not sinking are those which are constructed in what amounts to a concrete barge. The displacement of the building is accurately figured and a "boat" of sufficient tonnage to float it is the foundation. When there is an earth tremor the buildings do a lazy shimmy, but seldom crack. There is nothing solid connecting them with a solid earth. None of the structures so far are of sufficient height to warrant a deeper foundation of excavation.

So it is all a gamble, probably with less scientific information than ever before available in prospecting for oil. But the government is quite serious in going about it. If oil is found it will be a poor man's bonanza. Indians with a tiny dobe hut and small strip of land will come into wealth. The part that is government owned, by far the greater, for it is for the most part a barren waste, will be let out in small doles. The largest tract procurable will be 225 hectares, a little more than twice that many acres. For it the prospector must deposit with the government 10 pesos for the hectare and a 10,000 peso guarantee to drill.

A LANDLUBBER ON THE "BOWDOIN"

Tells of His Experiences on Flagship of MacMillan's Expedition.

Washington, D. C.—"There is no place on board a small schooner bound for the Arctic for a landlubber," writes Maynard Owen Williams, a representative of the National Geographic society, from the Bowdoin, flagship of the MacMillan Arctic expedition. "With Liberty engines on the deck, steel barrels of gasoline lashed to the rail and boxes of gasoline and oil making a false floor which brings a man's head at the exact height of a swinging boom, a landsman must get over being a landlubber at the first possible moment.

"The minute we got outside Monhegan, Commander MacMillan said, 'Williams, take the wheel. Keep her on 120 degrees,' and immediately turned and left the Bowdoin to me. Both he and Mate Robinson do all they can to explain everything but don't talk technical language in order to appear imposing. I found out, for instance, that a 'sheet' is not a sail, as I thought, but a rope which serves to hold a boom down toward the point where it can bat a man on the ear.

"Our watch is midnight to six and noon to six. Dick (Salmon) interrupted my dreams (if any) with a large hand in the small of my back. One of the first annoyances was that there are little pantalettes inside a suit of oilskins and sticky rubber boots don't slide into the trousers as easily as a landsman would like. I did everything but put my hand on the galley stove. Playing stork and tugging at reluctant garments that have become fast friends is not easy in a rough sea even if that sea is what a seaman calls 'moderate.'

As to Eating.

"When I went on deck we were in a fairly thick fog. Under the red and green lights the pretty curve of bows reached up to the prow above which the jib was furled into a spirity mass with the rope meandering along its back like the Potomac in its most undecided mood. In the sea there were phosphorescent flashes and the black water purled into a creamy mass under her prow.

"We eat very well. Pickles and hardtack on deck seem to appeal to the seasick ones who, on the table below, would have to face fish chowder, a huge tray of lobsters and many other things including mince pie for which one is ill prepared when his world is adrift and won't settle down.

"A passenger on a big steamer thinks he has his sea legs when he can walk down a twenty-foot promenade deck without becoming a Laplander. But the landlubber in oilskins has a different task. The rail on the Bowdoin is just the height of the decoration of my golf stockings. There are halyards and sheets, dory tackle and all sorts of other lines which coil their serpentines around where one least expects them. The flukes on the anchors are as eager to grab a foot as they are to seize on a footing or a holding or whatever it is they grab in the bed of the sea. To add to the confusion there are all the casks and cases of gasoline and the three huge cases of Liberty motors. A landlubber must get over lubbering soon or else become a liability or a corpse.

"Aft we have a layaret, which is a storage place behind the captain's cabin. This room is shared with the mate.

"From Captain MacMillan's room one enters the engine room with its 60-horsepower, semi-Diesel oil engine and its various generators for electric light and radio equipment.

Vegetables Stay Fresh.

"The hold has become a radio room and its fore quarters are occupied by a dark room and an electric ice box. Spoiled meat has not only cost every other Arctic explorer dear but has deprived the men of something fresh. Our bushel of cucumbers are crisp as the phrase they gave birth to.

"The pantry, galley and forecastle are all together though some lady visitors did install some cretonne curtains which have gone the way of all beauty. A cretonne curtain is no support to a man who rolls out of a top bunk in a hurry. I know.

"So this is our little boat. She's a beauty and every seaman envies us our place in her. The crew is wonderfully fine. All in all it's a place for a man even if he starts as a landlubber. He may never return a first-class seaman but if he can't learn to hold her helm steady when a huge sail with a forty-foot baseball bat tied to it is trying to Babe Ruth a few heads he is better off the boat than on it.

"There is no question of the ability of Commander MacMillan. Seamen and explorers testify to that. But the safety of the whole ship may depend at times on whether a landlubber can steer, raise or lower sail or pick a tiny light out of a deep fog on a horizonless sea. This is no training cruise for midshipmen. By force of circumstances the man of the sea, who knows its moods, must trust to landlubbers at times. All hands will be on deck when the need arises and MacMillan and Robinson are able men. But sooner or later the landlubber has to face it. So perhaps it is not as surprising as it seemed to me that with fair weather and a smooth sea, our captain left out the A. B. C. theory and handed the wheel to a landlubber on his first water with a 'Take the wheel! Keep her on 120 degrees.'"

Because jewelry workers in the Pforzheim, Germany, district refused to accept 17 cents an hour wages, employers locked them out and cut the offer to 15 cents an hour.

The rise in the cost of rubber has reached the crepe soles of shoes, and the cost of footwear having them is climbing.

LAKE OF OIL IS SOUGHT AT MEXICO CITY

It is Certain That Gas Wells Lie Under Capital.

SOURCE OF FUEL

Poor Indians Will Benefit if Gushers Are Struck.

MEXICO CITY.—Whatever is beneath the thin crust of earth in this ancient valley is soon to be brought to light.

There may be oil. It is certain that there is natural gas and hot water.

If the former, as many and the government officially believe, it will bring a new and tremendous wealth. If gas it will supply fuel for a population upwards of a million which now uses the primitive charcoal, in the best as well as the most lowly dwellings.

Just outside the city limits a vast derrick is being erected in cooperation with the government and drilling is to begin within the next six weeks. There is absolutely no geological data upon which to base a conclusion. One celebrated geologist says "Mexico is resting on a lake of oil." Another says that upheavals during the volcanic age must have destroyed any structure which would have held oil.

Old Lake Bed Large.

This old lake bed is ninety miles in one direction and seventy in another; flat like a pancake on the surface, but undoubtedly, following the conformation of rock strata, below like a huge bowl. Around it on every side are extinct volcanoes. When Cortez, the conqueror, first viewed it it was a vast lake, with islands here and there on which were Indian villages. Mexico itself was built on canals not unlike the city of Venice. The lake was nowhere of any great depth, probably not over ten feet, and has since been drained. It is now a great alkali flat devoid of vegitation.

Indians digging their shallow wells for water have invariably found gas. And here and there about the flats may be found little pools of crude oil, carefully treasured by the natives. It goes back to the legend of their patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe. Her cathedral is nearby. She is said to have promised the Indians that she would deposit oil at various spots so that they could keep lights forever burning before her image. The Indians do this, putting the oil in little glass vessels with a wick.

The drillers say very frankly that they have no idea what they will discover. They believe that the chances are about even that they will discover oil and if they do that it will be in great quantities. They also have no idea how deep they will have to go, because what little is known of the structure is so unusual. Anywhere in the valley one has to dig not to exceed ten feet to find water and a black bed of mud. They have never gone beyond this.

Many Buildings Sink.

In fact most of the large buildings in Mexico are sinking into this. It is not uncommon to find buildings that have gone down as much as three feet.

The only buildings of weight which are not sinking are those which are constructed in what amounts to a concrete barge. The displacement of the building is accurately figured and a "boat" of sufficient tonnage to float it is the foundation. For it the prospector must deposit with the government 10 pesos for the hectare and a 10,000 peso guarantee to drill.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewman of LaCroft, left Monday for a visit at Niagara Falls and Canadian Points.

Miss Alice Kinsey, Mrs. Ida Beck, Mrs. Jeanette McDonald, Mrs. Margaret Smith, Mrs. Mary Sinclair, and Mrs. Maud Logan have returned from attending the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Ladies Auxiliary, held at Tulsa, Okla. Mrs. Smith remained for a visit with friends in Chester, Okla.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The world's greatest stumbling block is the question mark. It causes more failures than any other thing. Those who get over it succeed; those who don't, fail. We can help you over it. This is a University of Information, free and open to all. Just send your question, enclose a 2- stamp and over the question mark you go. Don't let it stand between you and success. Send your questions to The East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Must all national banks have the word national in the name? M. M. D.

A. All such banks must include the word national in the title.

Q. Can ocean vessels land at Miami? C. C. C.

Q. Miami is a port for ocean-going vessels and has several steamship lines coming into it.

Q. The statement was made that only men should drive automobiles because they have greater mechanical knowledge than women. I disputed it. Am I wrong? T. S. W.

A. Dr. F. A. Moss, a professor at George Washington University, is authority for the statement that 40 out of 100 women drivers know more about the actual mechanics of the automobile than does the average man driver. This does not necessarily settle your argument, but may be cited as expert testimony.

Q. In how many censuses were the names taken? M. M.

A. In only the first two censuses did the Bureau of the Census record names.

Q. What wood weighs the least? E. H. M.

A. Balsa is the lightest wood known. It is found in commercial quantities in Cuba, parts of Porto Rico, Jamaica, Trinidad and along the east coast of Central America, where it is confined very largely to the mangrove swamps and to other inaccessible swampy places. Exploiters often experience the greatest difficulty in getting the logs out of these swamps.

Q. Will a horse hair put in water come to life? J. C. H.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that the fact is that in some regions certain organisms belonging to the genus Cordius and somewhat closely resembling horse hairs, are not uncommon. They get into the water by leaving insects and other small organicms in which they have previously lived. They go into the water for the purpose of mating and depositing their egges. These latter are microscopic and give rise to microscopic young ones in enormous numbers, some of which later find their way into suitable hosts and grow to the size of the so-called hair-snakes. This all takes place inside the host insects or other small hosts. The hairs from the mane and tail of a horse, will not, however, come to life.

Q. When is the recent period in geology supposed to have begun? R. C.

A. It is usually thought of as beginning when man appeared on the globe and includes the present time. It is also referred to as the Human Epoch.

Q. How many new counties have been created since 1910? C. D. S.

A. The Bureau of Census says 139 new counties have been made from 1910 to 1925. The state having the greatest number of counties in 1920 was Texas, having 254. The state having the least number was Delaware, having three.

Q. Where does Corra Harris live? R. L. C.

A. Her home is in Rydal, Georgia.

Q. How are the green cherries made that we see at soda fountains? M. M.

A. The Bureau of Home Eeconomics says that the green cherries to which you refer are white cherries colored by an artificial dye. Mint flavor is then added.

Q. How are the green cherries made that we see at soda fountains? M. M.

A. The Bureau of Home Eeconomics says that the green cherries to which you refer are white cherries colored by an artificial dye. Mint flavor is then added.

EAST END "GAS" STATION READY

Ohio Valley Oil Co. Will Open Branch Saturday

The new East End filling station of the Ohio Valley Oil company, Mulberry street and Pennsylvania avenue, will be formally opened Saturday.

Work on the branch was started about three months ago. The building is of brick and white stucco and is equipped with three visible electrically driven gasoline pumps, being modern in every respect.

To every purchaser of five gallons or more of gasoline tomorrow will be given a coupon good for four quarts of Super-Flash motor oil. This offer is good for the opening day only.

The new station is located at the intersection of the river and hill roads. It is on the direct route to Pittsburgh through Midland and Beaver, which will be completed this fall. It contains a ladies' rest room for the accommodation, mainly, of tourists.

A concrete drain pit, where crank case service will be given without cost, has also been constructed. The station occupies a lot 88x90 feet, with driveways of crushed limestone.

This is the eighth filling station to be established by the Ohio Valley Oil company, three others being located in East Liverpool, two in Wellsville and one each in Chester and New Cumberland.

Three Bandits

the yards where four kiln firemen, all Polish, were on duty.

The men loitered around the kilns for a few minutes. Suddenly while the four laborers were together, the three bandits pulled out their guns and ordered them to raise their hands. Then Walski made his hurried departure.

Gunmen Are Nervous.

According to the victims of the robbery, the gunmen appeared to be nervous.

The three, who wore no coats, are believed to have walked the railroad tracks in the direction of Congo, where it is suspected they had parked their automobile.

Workmen at the plant notified J. Nesley Porter, one of the owners, who arrived 20 minutes after the bandits had made their escape. Porter called the East Liverpool police and furnished them with a description of the robbers. Cate was still in the boiler room when Porter arrived, fearing to leave it.

The trio, according to Cate, were each about 20 or 21 years of age.

John W. Moore, John George, Frank Swaney, E. G. Sturgis and H. B. Barth.

The Lisbon-East Liverpool delegation left here in automobiles at 11 o'clock this mornin, driving over the "Narrows road" into Port Homer, thence through Toronto to Steubenville. Trustees of Saline township recently spent about $1,000 on the "Narrows" road.

Representatives from Wellsville, Irondale, Toronto and other communities along the river front, which will be benefited by the completion of the new road, attended the conference. A committee also represented the Steubenville Chamber of Commerce.

While the improvement of this road through the upper part of Jefferson county has been approved by the state, no date for the work has been set because of the expense, which will be involved in big cuts and fills which must be made along the hillside below Yellow Creek. Federal aid will be sought.

The commissioners of the two counties plan to urge the state highway department to make a survey and launch a movement to have the money for the improvement provided, if possible, next year. Columbiana county is pledged to resurface that part of the road within its jurisdiction as soon as the section through the "Narrows" is taken up.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—After considerable hesitation, in which profit-taking was very heavy, and speculative buying was narrowed down to a small circle of the best known stocks, the market spurted vigorously today, and at least a score of industrial stocks rose to new high price levels for the year to date.

The favorable display of the seserve banks as presented in the weekly reports, and the decline of call money rates to 4 per cent for over-the-week-end loans were of unusual interest and importance to the bullish forces in Wall street, who have practically been dictating the course of the market since the present recovery started in the first party of April. Traders were ready to sell Studebaker, General Motors, etc., on profit taking, but sales were well absorbed, and aggressive buying in Chrysler and Mack Trucks promptly sent these stocks about five points higher.

It was not until shortly after the noon period that buying extended over the General list of industrial and specialty stocks.

POSTPONE TRIAL OF FOUR BOYS

Owing to the illness of Solicitor L. B. Harris, of Salem, the trial of Gray Connor, Clifford Conley, Paul Hetzel and Allen Willis of East Liverpool, arrested here Wednesday upon information furnished by a 19-year-old Salem girl, in Mayor George Russell's court, was postponed last night.

The original charge against the quartet was assault. This was changed to assault with criminal intent last night. The four are at liberty upon bond. The alleged offense is said to have occurred near Eagleton's Glen on the Lisbon-Salem road last Monday night.

is destined to disappear from the earth, except perhaps the dangerous life so small as to defy the microscope.

Something ought to be done about the horrible traps in which the animals are caught, to suffer agony until the trapper, going his rounds at leisure, arrives with death.

The interstate commerce commission fixes the value of the Santa Fe road, tentatively at $476,000,000. The Santa Fe is well built, well managed and its value is far above the official estimate.

The stock owners would not sell it for any such price, or double that.

The Santa Fe should add to its value and to the public's appreciation of its good management, by cutting the running time from Chicago to the Pacific coast, which could easily be done.

This the Santa Fe should do for its own sake. In the long run, the value of a railroad depends on the value that the public puts upon that railroad's service.

Amundsen is not easily discouraged. Next March he will try another north pole trip, using an Italian dirigible in place of airplanes that failed last time.

The plan is not as reckless as it seems for the dirigible is better than the airplane in the arctic, comparatively free from storms.

W. R. GRAFTON, 66, Found Dead in Bed in Oakmont

William R. Grafton, 66 years old, of Oakmont, practically a life long resident of this city, was found dead in bed this morning at 9 o'clock by his wife. He is said to have succumbed to an attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Grafton, according to relatives, had been ill for nearly four years. When Mrs. Grafton arose this morning at 7 o'clock, her husband was resting comfortably. After preparing breakfast and finishing other household duties, she called him two hours later and when he failed to respond, she went to his room and found him dead.

He was born in Smiths Ferry, Pa. He was a member of the Protected Home Circle and the Christian church.

In addition to his wife he is survived by one son, Harold, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Elmer Crawford, of Orchard Grove avenue; two sisters, Mrs. Louise Kirby and Mrs. Fanny Powell, of this city, and two brothers, John, of the East End, and Joseph, of Kansas City. Five grandchildren also are living.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, in charge of Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Snatched From Jaws

Towed to a point off Nawiliwili harbor, small launches attempted to take the lines from the submarine and the plane broke loose and started to drift ashore.

Commander Rodgers and his men still refused to be taken off and endeavored to navigate their plane to the inner harbor and anchor it.

A Hawaiian swimmer hastened to swim to the drifting seaplane to warn Commander Rodgers he was in a dangerous place.

"All right, tow us ashore", he told him.

Plane Towed to Beach.

Lines were then attached again and the plane towed to the beach.

But Commander Rodgers and his men remained aboard until the beach was reached.

They were in good condition and the plane appeared little the worse for its long flight and 10 days' sea voyage.

The submarine towing the plane reached the harbor shortly after 8 o'clock last night.

The U. S. S. Colorado of the Pacific fleet is proceeding here and Commander Rodgers and his men probably will be taken aboard this warship for their 110-mile trip to Honolulu.

The R-4, which had been searching Kauai channel, sighted the missing plane at 4:15 yesterday afternoon, almost nine days to the hour from the time that the PN-9 no 1's radio sputtered out its last message:

"Gas getting low, keep close track of the plane."

Congratulatory Messages.

The point at which the plane was found had been searched and researched. Naval experts had figured that the missing plane might drift through Kauai channel which separates the islands of Kauai and Oahu. But their calculations had placed the plane there days ago.

When news that the flyers had been found reached Honolulu at dusk it spread like wildfire through the city. Men, women and children ran from houses to spread the glad tidings.

Scarcely believing ears heard it and the first questions on all lips was:

"Are they alive?"

Assured that they were, Honolulans poured out to celebrate the news. Newspaper extras were snatched from the newsies.

Throughout the night hundreds of congratulatory messages poured in from the United States.

Flash News to Washington.

Naval headquarters was raised from the depths of gloom to the heights of happiness.

Orders were flashed for tugs to prepare to bring the sturdy PN-9 to the naval base here if possible. The U. S. S. Colorado of the Pacific fleet, which returning from Australia had, with the rest of the great armada, joined in the search, was ordered to Lihue.

"Cold Nerve"

heavy storm but weathered the blow gallantly.

Otherwise practically fair and calm weather was experienced, Rogers said.

The hull of the plane was practically intact when she rode into Nawiliwili harbor in tow of the subwarine R-4. Her wings, however, were badly smashed.

When the question of returning to Pear Harbor, Honolulu, 110 miles distant, was broached, Command Rodgers proposed riding there on his plane in tow of a destroyer. Officials, however, are expected to veto that plan and the rescued birdmen will probably arrive late today in Honolulu on a destroyer.

Keep Radio Receiver Working.

The PN-9 kept its radio receiving apparatus working during the entire nine days that the plane was adrift on the trackless waters of the Pacific.

They heard all of the messages that passed through the air while the frantic search was being conducted for them.

These massages cheered the flyers greatly and helped them pass the weary days.

The flyers were in a position to watch the hunt for their plane from a silentside line.

"At no time did we give up hope," Commander Rodgers declared.

"We heard the famous message of the Aroostock 'Don't give up, John, we'll get you yet.'"

About the second day the derelict plane sighted a steamer and waved frantically but failed to attract its attention.

The first act of Commander Rodgers on stepping ashore was to send messages to his own parents and those of all of the crew, telling them of the crew's safety.

When Rodgers and his crew came ashore a huge crowd greeted them. They were immediately taken to a hotel where a doctor examined them. Then they were put to bed to rest up from their ten days' privation.

True to naval traditions, Commander Rodgers was the last to leave the plane and come ashore.

Faces Tell of Suffering.

All of the flyers made light of their experiences. But their badly sunburned and wind-blistered faces told the tale of their suffering. Commander Rodgers' lips were badly chafed.

"Catching showers saved our lives," Commander Rodgers said.

"Our plane drifted northwest," the flight commander said. "No searching ships or airplanes were sighted until Tuesday, when, off the coast of Oahu, we sighted two searching airplanes flying near our derelict plane."

Then came the second heart-breaking disappointment.

"We attempted to signal them but were unsuccessful. They passed on," said Rodgers.

"Then we rigged a sail and decided to make for the island of Oahu. We sighted that island Tuesday but the wind changed, bearing us northward."

The PN-9 then tried to make for Ahukini, Mauai, but would probably have drifted past the island if they had not been picked up by the R-4 late yesterday.

One on Thursday the derelict seaplane saw an airplane heading directly for them.

Their hopes of rescue surged high. But the searching plane failed to see them. It turned at a right angle and flew away and once more their hopes were dashed.

"The PN-9 proved seaworthy," Commander Rodgers said.

The men on board the plane received their first food in four days when provisions were sent aboard by the R-4 as soon as she had made a line fast to the PN-9 No. 1.

"I Am Happy"

early hour that Rodgers and his crew had been found.

Wilbur's hopes that the aviators would be discovered alive had not been shared generally among naval officers during the past week, although there was great confidence in the ability of Commander Rodgers to pull through if the least chance presented itself. It had been feared that heavy seas would destroy the big seaplane or that the airmen would die of thirst.

At an early hour today, Secretary Wilbur has not countermanded his order calling off another attempt to fly from San Francisco to Hawaii, but it was expected that, in view of the rescue of the No. 1 ship, he would authorize another attempt at the Pacific flight and that greater safeguards would be provided by stationing more destroyers along the route.

Beauty Judges

without a struggle, and they also admitted Dorothy Knapp, late of the "Follies" and known in stage circles as "The American Venus." It's a contradictory world, isn't it?

Movie Contract For Winner.

Now, whoever wins the title of "Miss America 1925," wins by the same token a motion picture contract with Famous Players-Lasky. The lucky young lady, whoever she is, will have the leading feminine role in a photoplay to be made in Atlantic City during and after the pageant, and to be entitled, "The American Venus." You begin, I daresay, to get a connection.

The first inkling anyone had that all was not well in the state of Pennsylvania came during the Neptune parade on the Boardwalk. It was considerable of a parade, with 10 bands, and many magnificent floats, and Ernest Torrence in three feet of white beard acting as Neptune, and handsome young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., acting as his son, and the inter-city beauties being pushed along in rolling-chairs, whence they smiled and bobbed to the crowds. But something was lacking. And when it became a certainty that that something was the charming presence of little "Miss Pittsburgh," whose popularity has become a byword these past few days, the press stands were cleared in a twinkling and all the reporters, great and small, began trying to get Miss Pittsburgh's manager on the telephone.

When finally located, he confirmed everyone's darkest suspicions. He said he had indeed removed Mildred Walker from the contest, and likewise Mary Ann Gath, known as "Miss Erie," who also came here under his management. He said further that unless the two professionals were barred immediately from the pageant, he and his entrants would leave for points west. He called attention to the fact that both Miss Ray and Miss Knapp are employed by Earl Carroll, theatrical producer; that Earl Carroll is one of the judges; that Miss Ray is "Miss Coney Island" and Miss Knapp is "Miss Manhattan" and eight out of the 15 judges of the contest are from New York. He added that "a motion picture concern which is said to have obtained a contract to portray the contest in a film called "The American Venus" "was trying to have the title of "Miss America" conferred upon a motion picture type and not upon a plain America beauty type, and that it was impossible for him to allow "Miss Pittsburgh" and "Miss Erie" to continue participation under the existing circumstances.

Neptune's Parade is Feature.

In the meantime, pageant events proceeded as scheduled, growing more exciting day by day. Neptune's parade aforementioned was the stellar offering of Thursday afternoon, and, of course, the inter-city beauties were the features of the parade, Mr. Torrence and his beard notwithstanding. They wore tea gowns and big floppy hats for this appearance and very charming they looked against the paper flowers and the ribbons with which their rolling chairs were decked. This parade was a real test of beauty, for the pitiless sunlight glared full in the faces of the girls as they went along, searching out whatever discrepancies there might be in their good looks and bringing them into bold relief. It must be admitted that some of them did not show up quite so well on this occasion as they did in the soft glow of the ball room last night, but such disillusions were fortunately few and far between.

Previous to the parade, the beauties were entertained at a Rotary club luncheon, and afterward they acted as guests of honor at several Boardwalk hotel dinner parties. Later, at 9 o'clock they repaired to the Garden Pier theatre, where one by one they appeared on the stage to be officially introduced to Neptune and his son and to let the clamoring audience see and approve them. It is difficult to convey in words the adulation and attention these girls are receiving from every side. Any pageant contestant, even the lowliest, has her share and a great deal more. People cheer her as she passes. People line up in solid walls about the entrance of any building where they know she is expected to arrive. She is interviewed, and photographed, and petted and pampered, until I wonder if she'll ever as long as she lives be quite the same!

Proud of Ohioans.

The program yesterday included preliminary judging by the art committee in the morning; the celebrated Bathing Beauty parade, when the contestants wore swimming suits for the first time since the pageant began, in the afternoon; the selection by the art committee of the most beautiful girl in evening-dress at the Garden Pier Theatre at 8:30 p. m. Not to mention the various luncheons and teas and motor rides and shopping tours that the busy young visitors somehow managed to sandwich in.

As I see more of them, I become more and more proud of our Ohio representatives. First and foremost, of course, there is Miss Mary Catherine Campbell, who came out of Columbus three years ago and took this town by storm, and is still doing it. Then there's Miss Elsie Connor, "Miss Cleveland" of this year, one of the most attractive blonds in the pageant. There is Miss Elarka Towne of Conneaut, a petite brunette who goes by the name of "Miss Ohio." There is Miss Emilia Kanfewska; "Miss Toledo," with her big blue eyes and her bobbed gold tresses. And there's "Miss Youngstown." She needs a special paragraph or two, all her own.

Today I had lunch with a girl who had been doing brief interviews with all the inter-city belles. She remarked that brains and beauty certainly couldn't be compatible, because most of the contenders with whom she had talked were (whisper it) "so terribly dumb." She added thoughtfully, "Oh, of course, there are a few who aren't. 'Miss Youngstown,' for instance."

"Miss Youngstown" Wholesome Girl.

And "Miss Youngstown" isn't. You know that when you look at her for her face is much more than merely pretty—and you know it even better when you talk with her. We had five minutes' conversation together, and though she didn't say anything particularly brilliant she somehow gave me a firm belief that she could have if she'd wanted to.

Her name is Miss Isabelle Robertson, and she's a good deal like any nice wholesome girl you know except that she's prettier. Tall, slender, with long brown-gold hair and soft brown eyes, she makes an excellent appearance in whateveer sort of costume the varying activities of Pageant week require. Her taste in clothes is simple, but good. She wears no rouge or lipstick, and the heels of her shoes are not more than an inch high. She is here with her mother and father, and they have been here since Sunday.

"We came a day or two early so that Isabelle could rest before the Pageant," Mrs. Robertson told me. "She worked right up to the night before we left."

Isabelle is bookeeper in the Dollar Bank of Youngstown. Also escorting her is a press representative from the Youngstown Vindicator, the paper that sponsored the contest in which she was chosen "Miss Youngstown" from among 100 entrants.

To every purchaser of five gallons or more of gasoline tomorrow will be given a coupon good for four quarts of Super-Flash motor oil. This offer is good for the opening day only.

The new station is located at the intersection of the river and hill roads. It is on the direct route to Pittsburgh through Midland and Beaver, which will be completed this fall. It contains a ladies' rest room for the accommodation, mainly, of tourists.

A concrete drain pit, where crank case service will be given without cost, has also been constructed. The station occupies a lot 88x90 feet, with driveways of crushed limestone.

This is the eighth filling station to be established by the Ohio Valley Oil company, three others being located in East Liverpool, two in Wellsville and one each in Chester and New Cumberland.

Three Bandits

the yards where four kiln firemen, all Polish, were on duty.

The men loitered around the kilns for a few minutes. Suddenly while the four laborers were together, the three bandits pulled out their guns and ordered them to raise their hands. Then Walski made his hurried departure.

Gunmen Are Nervous.

According to the victims of the robbery, the gunmen appeared to be nervous.

The three, who wore no coats, are believed to have walked the railroad tracks in the direction of Congo, where it is suspected they had parked their automobile.

Workmen at the plant notified J. Nesley Porter, one of the owners, who arrived 20 minutes after the bandits had made their escape. Porter called the East Liverpool police and furnished them with a description of the robbers. Cate was still in the boiler room when Porter arrived, fearing to leave it.

The trio, according to Cate, were each about 20 or 21 years of age.

John W. Moore, John George, Frank Swaney, E. G. Sturgis and H. B. Barth.

The Lisbon-East Liverpool delegation left here in automobiles at 11 o'clock this mornin, driving over the "Narrows road" into Port Homer, thence through Toronto to Steubenville. Trustees of Saline township recently spent about $1,000 on the "Narrows" road.

Representatives from Wellsville, Irondale, Toronto and other communities along the river front, which will be benefited by the completion of the new road, attended the conference. A committee also represented the Steubenville Chamber of Commerce.

While the improvement of this road through the upper part of Jefferson county has been approved by the state, no date for the work has been set because of the expense, which will be involved in big cuts and fills which must be made along the hillside below Yellow Creek. Federal aid will be sought.

The commissioners of the two counties plan to urge the state highway department to make a survey and launch a movement to have the money for the improvement provided, if possible, next year. Columbiana county is pledged to resurface that part of the road within its jurisdiction as soon as the section through the "Narrows" is taken up.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—After considerable hesitation, in which profit-taking was very heavy, and speculative buying was narrowed down to a small circle of the best known stocks, the market spurted vigorously today, and at least a score of industrial stocks rose to new high price levels for the year to date.

The favorable display of the seserve banks as presented in the weekly reports, and the decline of call money rates to 4 per cent for over-the-week-end loans were of unusual interest and importance to the bullish forces in Wall street, who have practically been dictating the course of the market since the present recovery started in the first party of April. Traders were ready to sell Studebaker, General Motors, etc., on profit taking, but sales were well absorbed, and aggressive buying in Chrysler and Mack Trucks promptly sent these stocks about five points higher.

It was not until shortly after the noon period that buying extended over the General list of industrial and specialty stocks.

The original charge against the quartet was assault. This was changed to assault with criminal intent last night. The four are at liberty upon bond. The alleged offense is said to have occurred near Eagleton's Glen on the Lisbon-Salem road last Monday night.

is destined to disappear from the earth, except perhaps the dangerous life so small as to defy the microscope.

Something ought to be done about the horrible traps in which the animals are caught, to suffer agony until the trapper, going his rounds at leisure, arrives with death.

The interstate commerce commission fixes the value of the Santa Fe road, tentatively at $476,000,000. The Santa Fe is well built, well managed and its value is far above the official estimate.

The stock owners would not sell it for any such price, or double that.

The Santa Fe should add to its value and to the public's appreciation of its good management, by cutting the running time from Chicago to the Pacific coast, which could easily be done.

This the Santa Fe should do for its own sake. In the long run, the value of a railroad depends on the value that the public puts upon that railroad's service.

Amundsen is not easily discouraged. Next March he will try another north pole trip, using an Italian dirigible in place of airplanes that failed last time.

The plan is not as reckless as it seems for the dirigible is better than the airplane in the arctic, comparatively free from storms.

W. R. GRAFTON, 66, Found Dead in Bed in Oakmont

William R. Grafton, 66 years old, of Oakmont, practically a life long resident of this city, was found dead in bed this morning at 9 o'clock by his wife. He is said to have succumbed to an attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Grafton, according to relatives, had been ill for nearly four years. When Mrs. Grafton arose this morning at 7 o'clock, her husband was resting comfortably. After preparing breakfast and finishing other household duties, she called him two hours later and when he failed to respond, she went to his room and found him dead.

He was born in Smiths Ferry, Pa. He was a member of the Protected Home Circle and the Christian church.

In addition to his wife he is survived by one son, Harold, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Elmer Crawford, of Orchard Grove avenue; two sisters, Mrs. Louise Kirby and Mrs. Fanny Powell, of this city; and two brothers, John, of the East End, and Joseph, of Kansas City. Five grandchildren also are living.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, in charge of Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Snatched From Jaws

Towed to a point off Nawiliwili harbor, small launches attempted to take the lines from the submarine and the plane broke loose and started to drift ashore.

Commander Rodgers and his men still refused to be taken off and endeavored to navigate their plane to the inner harbor and anchor it.

A Hawaiian swimmer hastened to swim to the drifting seaplane to warn Commander Rodgers he was in a dangerous place.

"All right, tow us ashore", he told him.

Plane Towed to Beach.

Lines were then attached again and the plane towed to the beach.

But Commander Rodgers and his men remained aboard until the beach was reached.

They were in good condition and the plane appeared little the worse for its long flight and 10 days' sea voyage.

The submarine towing the plane reached the harbor shortly after 8 o'clock last night.

The U. S. S. Colorado of the Pacific fleet is proceeding here and Commander Rodgers and his men probably will be taken aboard this warship for their 110-mile trip to Honolulu.

The R-4, which had been searching Kauai channel, sighted the missing plane at 4:15 yesterday afternoon, almost nine days to the hour from the time that the PN-9 no 1's radio sputtered out its last message:

"Gas getting low, keep close track of the plane."

Congratulatory Messages.

The point at which the plane was found had been searched and researched. Naval experts had figured that the missing plane might drift through Kauai channel which separates the islands of Kauai and Oahu. But their calculations had placed the plane there days ago.

When news that the flyers had been found reached Honolulu at dusk it spread like wildfire through the city. Men, women and children ran from houses to spread the glad tidings.

Scarcely believing ears heard it and the first questions on all lips was:

"Are they alive?"

Assured that they were, Honolulans poured out to celebrate the news. Newspaper extras were snatched from the newsies.

Throughout the night hundreds of congratulatory messages poured in from the United States.

Flash News to Washington.

Naval headquarters was raised from the depths of gloom to the heights of happiness.

Orders were flashed for tugs to prepare to bring the sturdy PN-9 to the naval base here if possible. The U. S. S. Colorado of the Pacific fleet, which returning from Australia had, with the rest of the great armada, joined in the search, was ordered to Lihue.

"Cold Nerve"

heavy storm but weathered the blow gallantly.

Otherwise practically fair and calm weather was experienced, Rogers said.

The hull of the plane was practically intact when she rode into Nawiliwili harbor in tow of the subwarine R-4. Her wings, however, were badly smashed.

When the question of returning to Pear Harbor, Honolulu, 110 miles distant, was broached, Command Rodgers proposed riding there on his plane in tow of a destroyer. Officials, however, are expected to veto that plan and the rescued birdmen will probably arrive late today in Honolulu on a destroyer.

Keep Radio Receiver Working.

The PN-9 kept its radio receiving apparatus working during the entire nine days that the plane was adrift on the trackless waters of the Pacific.

They heard all of the messages that passed through the air while the frantic search was being conducted for them.

These massages cheered the flyers greatly and helped them pass the weary days.

The flyers were in a position to watch the hunt for their plane from a silentside line.

"At no time did we give up hope," Commander Rodgers declared.

"We heard the famous message of the Aroostock 'Don't give up, John, we'll get you yet.'"

About the second day the derelict plane sighted a steamer and waved frantically but failed to attract its attention.

The first act of Commander Rodgers on stepping ashore was to send messages to his own parents and those of all of the crew, telling them of the crew's safety.

When Rodgers and his crew came ashore a huge crowd greeted them. They were immediately taken to a hotel where a doctor examined them. Then they were put to bed to rest up from their ten days' privation.

True to naval traditions, Commander Rodgers was the last to leave the plane and come ashore.

Faces Tell of Suffering.

All of the flyers made light of their experiences. But their badly sunburned and wind-blistered faces told the tale of their suffering. Commander Rodgers' lips were badly chafed.

"Catching showers saved our lives," Commander Rodgers said.

"Our plane drifted northwest," the flight commander said. "No searching ships or airplanes were sighted until Tuesday, when, off the coast of Oahu, we sighted two searching airplanes flying near our derelict plane."

Then came the second heart-breaking disappointment.

"We attempted to signal them but were unsuccessful. They passed on," said Rodgers.

"Then we rigged a sail and decided to make for the island of Oahu. We sighted that island Tuesday but the wind changed, bearing us northward."

The PN-9 then tried to make for Ahukini, Mauai, but would probably have drifted past the island if they had not been picked up by the R-4 late yesterday.

One on Thursday the derelict seaplane saw an airplane heading directly for them.

Their hopes of rescue surged high. But the searching plane failed to see them. It turned at a right angle and flew away and once more their hopes were dashed.

"The PN-9 proved seaworthy," Commander Rodgers said.

The men on board the plane received their first food in four days when provisions were sent aboard by the R-4 as soon as she had made a line fast to the PN-9 No. 1.

"I Am Happy"

early hour that Rodgers and his crew had been found.

Wilbur's hopes that the aviators would be discovered alive had not been shared generally among naval officers during the past week, although there was great confidence in the ability of Commander Rodgers to pull through if the least chance presented itself. It had been feared that heavy seas would destroy the big seaplane or that the airmen would die of thirst.

At an early hour today, Secretary Wilbur has not countermanded his order calling off another attempt to fly from San Francisco to Hawaii, but it was expected that, in view of the rescue of the No. 1 ship, he would authorize another attempt at the Pacific flight and that greater safeguards would be provided by stationing more destroyers along the route.

Beauty Judges

without a struggle, and they also admitted Dorothy Knapp, late of the "Follies" and known in stage circles as "The American Venus." It's a contradictory world, isn't it?

Movie Contract For Winner.

Now, whoever wins the title of "Miss America 1925," wins by the same token a motion picture contract with Famous Players-Lasky. The lucky young lady, whoever she is, will have the leading feminine role in a photoplay to be made in Atlantic City during and after the pageant, and to be entitled, "The American Venus." You begin, I daresay, to get a connection.

The first inkling anyone had that all was not well in the state of Pennsylvania came during the Neptune parade on the Boardwalk. It was considerable of a parade, with 10 bands, and many magnificent floats, and Ernest Torrence in three feet of white beard acting as Neptune, and handsome young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., acting as his son, and the inter-city beauties being pushed along in rolling-chairs, whence they smiled and bobbed to the crowds. But something was lacking. And when it became a certainty that that something was the charming presence of little "Miss Pittsburgh," whose popularity has become a byword these past few days, the press stands were cleared in a twinkling and all the reporters, great and small, began trying to get Miss Pittsburgh's manager on the telephone.

When finally located, he confirmed everyone's darkest suspicions. He said he had indeed removed Mildred Walker from the contest, and likewise Mary Ann Gath, known as "Miss Erie," who also came here under his management. He said further that unless the two professionals were barred immediately from the pageant, he and his entrants would leave for points west. He called attention to the fact that both Miss Ray and Miss Knapp are employed by Earl Carroll, theatrical producer; that Earl Carroll is one of the judges; that Miss Ray is "Miss Coney Island" and Miss Knapp is "Miss Manhattan" and eight out of the 15 judges of the contest are from New York. He added that "a motion picture concern which is said to have obtained a contract to portray the contest in a film called "The American Venus" "was trying to have the title of "Miss America" conferred upon a motion picture type and not upon a plain America beauty type, and that it was impossible for him to allow "Miss Pittsburgh" and "Miss Erie" to continue participation under the existing circumstances.

Neptune's Parade is Feature.

In the meantime, pageant events proceeded as scheduled, growing more exciting day by day. Neptune's parade aforementioned was the stellar offering of Thursday afternoon, and, of course, the inter-city beauties were the features of the parade, Mr. Torrence and his beard notwithstanding. They wore tea gowns and big floppy hats for this appearance and very charming they looked against the paper flowers and the ribbons with which their rolling chairs were decked. This parade was a real test of beauty, for the pitiless sunlight glared full in the faces of the girls as they went along, searching out whatever discrepancies there might be in their good looks and bringing them into bold relief. It must be admitted that some of them did not show up quite so well on this occasion as they did in the soft glow of the ball room last night, but such disillusions were fortunately few and far between.

Proud of Ohioans.

The program yesterday included preliminary judging by the art committee in the morning; the celebrated Bathing Beauty parade, when the contestants wore swimming suits for the first time since the pageant began, in the afternoon; the selection by the art committee of the most beautiful girl in evening dress at the Garden Pier Theatre at 8:30 p. m. Not to mention the various luncheons and teas and motor rides and shopping tours that the busy young visitors somehow managed to sandwich in.

As I see more of them, I become more and more proud of our Ohio representatives. First and foremost, of course, there is Miss Mary Catherine Campbell, who came out of Columbus three years ago and took this town by storm, and is still doing it. Then there's Miss Elsie Connor, "Miss Cleveland" of this year, one of the most attractive blonds in the pageant. There is Miss Elarka Towne of Conneaut, a petite brunette who goes by the name of "Miss Ohio." There is Miss Emilia Kanlewska; "Miss Toledo," with her big blue eyes and her bobbed gold tresses. And there's "Miss Youngstown." She needs a special paragraph or two, all her own.

Today I had lunch with a girl who had been doing brief interviews with all the inter-city belles. She remarked that brains and beauty certainly couldn't be compatible, because most of the contenders with whom she had talked were (whisper it) "so terribly dumb." She added thoughtfully, "Oh, of course, there are a few who aren't. 'Miss Youngstown,' for instance."

"Miss Youngstown" Wholesome Girl.

And "Miss Youngstown" isn't. You know that when you look at her for her face is much more than merely pretty—and you know it even better when you talk with her. We had five minutes' conversation together, and though she didn't say anything particularly brilliant she somehow gave me a firm belief that she could have if she'd wanted to.

Her name is Miss Isabelle Robertson, and she's a good deal like any nice wholesome girl you know except that she's prettier. Tall, slender, with long brown-gold hair and soft brown eyes, she makes an excellent appearance in whateveer sort of costume the varying activities of Pageant week require. Her taste in clothes is simple, but good. She wears no rouge or lipstick, and the heels of her shoes are not more than an inch high. She is here with her mother and father, and they have been here since Sunday.

"We came a day or two early so that Isabelle could rest before the Pageant," Mrs. Robertson told me. "She worked right up to the night before we left."

Isabelle is bookeeper in the Dollar Bank of Youngstown. Also escorting her is a press representative from the Youngstown Vindicator, the paper that sponsored the contest in which she was chosen "Miss Youngstown" from among 100 entrants.

700 ARE ENROLLED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Approximately 750 pupils are enrolled in the Chester public schools today, the closing day of the first week of the 1925-26 term. This registration is practically the same as that for the first week of last year, according to Supt. Rabenstein.

The total enrollment for the first day was 741. Since then additional pupils have entered ,bringing this figure over the 750 mark.

The registration for the high school is 138. Several students, living outside the corporation, who enrolled on the first day of school, withdrew when they were advised that they would be required to pay tuition. These students, it is said, have registered in the Newell schools where no tuition fee is charged.

In the elementary schools at the Central building, 367 children are enrolled. Of this number, 103 are pupils in the junior high, which embraces the seventh and eighth grades.

At the Washington building, in the upper end of town, the registration is 160. The room, which is maintained in the I. O. O. F.-K. of P. building, Fifth street, contains 46 children. The room in the church building on Fourth street, opposite the city hall, has an enrollment of 30.

SCHOOLS REPORT 500 ENROLLED

Twenty-Nine In Senior and 108 In Junior High School.

A new record for enrollment was established for the opening week of school in the Newell schools, according to Superintendent R. L. Hoke.

Figures for the first day's registration totaled 483 in the Newell schools alone. Since that time others have come in bringing this figure it is believed over the 500 mark.

In the senior high school the enrollment is 29, divided as follows: Tenth year, 16; eleventh year, 8; twelfth year, 5. The Junior high school has 108 pupils, of whom 33 are registered in the seventh year, 37 in the eighth year and 38 in the ninth year.

The registration by grades in the elementary schools is: First, 62; second, 58! third, 63; fourth, 42; fifth, 64; sixth, 51; total 346.

Pupils are also being housed in the two room portable building, adjoining the brick school, in the old Nazarene church and two rooms have been equipped in the Aaron building.

Because of illness, Miss Virginia Price, New Cumberland, teacher of English in the high school, did not report for duty until Thursday. Her place during, the first two days of school was filled by Mrs. Hoke, wife of the superintendent.

LAUGHLINS FACE TWO HARD GAMES

Manager Sol McCoy's Laughlin nine in the City Industrial league is booked for two of the most crucial games of the season tonight and Saturday afternoon, both of which will be played on foreign grounds.

With only a slight hold on the first place position, the locals are slated to meet the K. T. & K. club on the Columbian park grounds tonight. When the two teams clashed here Wednesday evening, the score resulted in a tie.

Laughlin will play the fast Trotter combination at Columbian park, Saturday afternoon. Should the locals win both contests they will strengthen their first place position. Should they win and lose, they will probably be tied for the honor place. In the event of a double defeat they cannot hope for better than a second or maybe the third position over the week-end.

Odd Fellows' Meeting.

A meeting of Clark lodge No. 447, I. O. O. F., will be held in the lodge rooms in the Aaron building, Friday evening.

WATER SUPPLY WARNING ISSUED

Warning has been issued by officials of the state health department to tourists in West Virginia, and to residents generally, to be careful of the source of supply from which they may obtain their drinking water.

The drouth in the state caused numerous streams and wells to dry up, thus rendering persons liable to typhoid, which already has reached huge proportions, even beyond that of former years.

The typhoid germ, with such conditions can easily breed, owing not only to safe wells becoming dry but from low water in streams being unable to wash sewage and refuse away from communities.

Incidentally, when rain does come officials pointed out that precautions must be taken as the accumulated refuse and sewage which ordinarily is taken away gradually, will be removed en masse and often is thrown by high water upon banks, to be left there after the waters recede.

Boston Rum Prices are Reduced When Supply Floods City

HONOR MEMORY OF R. L. PARKER

Business Houses Will Close During Funeral Services

Honoring the memory of the late ex-Mayor Robert L. Parker, Chester real estate and insurance operator, who died in the East Liverpool hospital, Wednesday evening, all business will suspend here between 1:30 and 3:30 Saturday afternoon, while funeral services are being held.

Moses E. Eppley, president of the Chester Merchants' association, announced today that all store owners had endorsed the plans. Professional offices also will be closed.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence, Indiana avenue, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Charles Ewing, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of the St. Matthew's Episcopal church, will be in charge.

The Chester Masonic lodge, of which Mr. Parker was a member, will conduct ritualistic services. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

Friends may view the body at the late home between the hours of 7 and 10 tonight. Members of the East Liverpool Kiwanis club of which Mr. Parker was a member will view the body tonight.

700 ARE ENROLLED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Approximately 750 pupils are enrolled in the Chester public schools today, the closing day of the first week of the 1925-26 term. This registration is practically the same as that for the first week of last year, according to Supt. Rabenstein.

The total enrollment for the first day was 741. Since then additional pupils have entered ,bringing this figure over the 750 mark.

The registration for the high school is 138. Several students, living outside the corporation, who enrolled on the first day of school, withdrew when they were advised that they would be required to pay tuition. These students, it is said, have registered in the Newell schools where no tuition fee is charged.

In the elementary schools at the Central building, 367 children are enrolled. Of this number, 103 are pupils in the junior high, which embraces the seventh and eighth grades.

At the Washington building, in the upper end of town, the registration is 160. The room, which is maintained in the I. O. O. F.-K. of P. building, Fifth street, contains 46 children. The room in the church building on Fourth street, opposite the city hall, has an enrollment of 30.

The Charleston—Old and New

When the "Charleston" was known only to the grown-up pickaninnies of the Old South, it was much more difficult to do than it is in the modern version. Miss Viola Webster, New Yorker, is seen (left) performing it in ancient form, and wearing the costume of the day, while Janette Vallon (right), Los Angeles, presents a modern interpretation. Conservative dancing masters have toned down the latter style, however.

SCHOOLS REPORT 500 ENROLLED

Twenty-Nine In Senior and 108 In Junior High School.

A new record for enrollment was established for the opening week of school in the Newell schools, according to Superintendent R. L. Hoke.

Figures for the first day's registration totaled 483 in the Newell schools alone. Since that time others have come in bringing this figure it is believed over the 500 mark.

In the senior high school the enrollment is 29, divided as follows: Tenth year, 16; eleventh year, 8; twelfth year, 5. The Junior high school has 108 pupils, of whom 33 are registered in the seventh year, 37 in the eighth year and 38 in the ninth year.

The registration by grades in the elementary schools is: First, 62; second, 58! third, 63; fourth, 42; fifth, 64; sixth, 51; total 346.

Pupils are also being housed in the two room portable building, adjoining the brick school, in the old Nazarene church and two rooms have been equipped in the Aaron building.

Because of illness, Miss Virginia Price, New Cumberland, teacher of English in the high school, did not report for duty until Thursday. Her place during the first two days of school was filled by Mrs. Hoke, wife of the superintendent.

LAUGHLINS FACE TWO HARD GAMES

Manager Sol McCoy's Laughlin nine in the City Industrial league is booked for two of the most crucial games of the season tonight and Saturday afternoon, both of which will be played on foreign grounds.

With only a slight hold on the first place position, the locals are slated to meet the K. T. & K. club on the Columbian park grounds tonight. When the two teams clashed here Wednesday evening, the score resulted in a tie.

Laughlin will play the fast Trotter combination at Columbian park, Saturday afternoon. Should the locals win both contests they will strengthen their first place position. Should they win and lose, they will probably be tied for the honor place. In the event of a double defeat they cannot hope for better than a second or maybe the third position over the week-end.

Odd Fellows' Meeting.

A meeting of Clark lodge No. 447, I. O. O. F., will be held in the lodge rooms in the Aaron building, Friday evening.

WATER SUPPLY WARNING ISSUED

Warning has been issued by officials of the state health department to tourists in West Virginia, and to residents generally, to be careful of the source of supply from which they may obtain their drinking water.

The drouth in the state caused numerous streams and wells to dry up, thus rendering persons liable to typhoid, which already has reached huge proportions, even beyond that of former years.

The typhoid germ, with such conditions can easily breed, owing not only to safe wells becoming dry but from low water in streams being unable to wash sewage and refuse away from communities.

Incidentally, when rain does come officials pointed out that precautions must be taken as the accumulated refuse and sewage which ordinarily is taken away gradually, will be removed en masse and often is thrown by high water upon banks, to be left there after the waters recede.

READY TO BEGIN STREET WORK

Preparatory to resurfacing operations on Mulberry street, East End, two blocks of the thoroughfare, one of the principal streets of the section, have been closed to traffic.

Motorists and other vehicle operators are using side streets from Pennsylvania avenue to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. The thoroughfare will be improved with Willite.

BOSTON — With the Hub flooded with liquor, prices of "booze" have taken a downward trend. Large quantities of liquor are being landed in Boston and other strategic shore points from a fleet of eight rum-running schooners now off the Massachusetts coast.

MRS. M'FALL, 67, IS DEAD

Funeral Services to Be Held Sunday at Home

Following an illness that has extended over a period of nearly three years, Mrs. Christina McFall, 67 years old, died yesterday afternoon at her home in Broadway, death being attributed to complications.

She is survived by two sons, Oscar and Walter,; a daughter, Mrs. Al Roberts; and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, in charge of Rev. R. Ernest Games, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church. Burial will be made in Spring Hill Cemetery.

AUTO CASE GOES TO GRAND JURY

Edward T. Fogo, president of the Columbiana County Motor club, last night was bound over to the grand jury by Mayor James S. Barnes on a charge of impersonating an officer.

The charge was filed by L. A. Hays, of Smiths Ferry, Pa., whom Fogo had warned early Thursday morning when the former drove onto a recently completed section of Lisbon street which had not yet been opened for traffic.

According to police Hays appeared at city hall last night and said he had been arrested by Fogo and ordered to appear. Police said no charges had been filed and summoned Fogo to city hall.

The latter explained that early Thursday morning while crossing Lisbon street he saw Hays drive onto a part of the new pavement that had only recently been tarred. Fogo explained that, as head of the motor club, whose duty, he said, is to aid in the maintenance of good roads and enforcement of traffic regulations, he stopped and cautioned Hays. The latter, according to Fogo, somewhat resented the warning, and Fogo asked him to go with him into the city, which Hays did. Fogo asserts he was unable to locate a policeman and suggested that Hays take his companion home and then see the mayor Thursday night.

Fogo declares that he made no attempt to arrest Hays or impersonate an officer, acting only because he feared damage to the street which had been barricaded by Contractor Patterson, and because, he said, he knew that police regulations did not permit traffic on the street.

Mayor Barnes dismissed Hays and Fogo waived a hearing.

An invitation is extended to the teachers and members of the high school, as well as the general public, to attend this one-hour service. Special music will be on the program.

WILL TELL ABOUT JUDGE RALSTON

The famous evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., has not entirely passed from memory.

The figures in that case stand out yet, and one of these figures—Judge Ralston who presided over the wordy battle between the late William Jennings Bryan and Attorney Clarence Darrow—spoke recently at a gathering of which Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, was a member.

And, Sunday, Rev. Ustick is going to speak to the Men's Bible class of the church, on the subject, "What I Heard Ralston Say About Bryan."

Rev. Ustick has extended an invitation to all men of the class and the church and those in the city not attending other Bible classes to be guests of the class.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, in charge of Rev. R. Ernest Games, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church. Burial will be made in Spring Hill Cemetery.

AUTO CASE GOES TO GRAND JURY

Edward T. Fogo, president of the Columbiana County Motor club, last night was bound over to the grand jury by Mayor James S. Barnes on a charge of impersonating an officer.

The charge was filed by L. A. Hays, of Smiths Ferry, Pa., whom Fogo had warned early Thursday morning when the former drove onto a recently completed section of Lisbon street which had not yet been opened for traffic.

According to police Hays appeared at city hall last night and said he had been arrested by Fogo and ordered to appear. Police said no charges had been filed and summoned Fogo to city hall.

The latter explained that early Thursday morning while crossing Lisbon street he saw Hays drive onto a part of the new pavement that had only recently been tarred. Fogo explained that, as head of the motor club, whose duty, he said, is to aid in the maintenance of good roads and enforcement of traffic regulations, he stopped and cautioned Hays. The latter, according to Fogo, somewhat resented the warning, and Fogo asked him to go with him into the city, which Hays did. Fogo asserts he was unable to locate a policeman and suggested that Hays take his companion home and then see the mayor Thursday night.

Fogo declares that he made no attempt to arrest Hays or impersonate an officer, acting only because he feared damage to the street which had been barricaded by Contractor Patterson, and because, he said, he knew that police regulations did not permit traffic on the street.

Mayor Barnes dismissed Hays and Fogo waived a hearing.

PLANS SPECIAL SCHOOL SERVICES

In recognition of the starting of another school year and the preparation of students for their future life, special services will be held Sunday evening in the United Presbyterian church.

A sermon in keeping with the spirit of the occasion will be delivered by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor, on "The Value of Limitations."

An invitation is extended to the teachers and members of the high school, as well as the general public, to attend this one-hour service. Special music will be on the program.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET SEPT. 18

Members of the Loyal Women's Sunday school class of the First Christian church will hold their monthly business meeting on Friday, September 18, at the home of Mrs. Gus Klavaughn, in Hillcrest.

The organization will assemble at the church at 3 p. m. on the day of the meeting and will be conveyed to the Klavaughn residence in automobiles.

Following the business meeting a cover-dish supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

MRS. ELMER EVANS HOSTESS TO CLUB

Mrs. Elmer Evans was hostess to members of the Bi-monthly Bridge club last evening at her home in Riverside avenue.

Two tables of bridge were in play during the evening, honors being awarded to Mrs. Lester Donnelly and Mrs. Samuel Adams.

At the close of the playing, luncheon was served by the hostess.

The next meeting of the organization will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Robert Kountz, in Main street.

WILL TELL ABOUT JUDGE RALSTON

The famous evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., has not entirely passed from memory.

The figures in that case stand out yet, and one of these figures—Judge Ralston who presided over the wordy battle between the late William Jennings Bryan and Attorney Clarence Darrow—spoke recently at a gathering of which Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, was a member.

And, Sunday, Rev. Ustick is going to speak to the Men's Bible class of the church, on the subject, "What I Heard Ralston Say About Bryan."

Rev. Ustick has extended an invitation to all men of the class and the church and those in the city not attending other Bible classes to be guests of the class.

Because of the drop in demand for yarn, particularly in China, nearly all of the cotton spinners of the American section of England's industries have adopted a thirty-nine-and-one-quarter hour week in addition to a full-week's lay-off.

Representatives of more than seventy colleges and high school in the United States and Canada traveled third class, their cabins decorated with flags and pennants, to Liverpool on one liner last July.

FLAPPERS' FEET ARE MADE UGLY THROUGH ABUSE, CLAIMS EXPERT

BOSTON.—Flappers abuse their feet. So claims Dr. Armella Bebeau, of St. Paul, a visitor to Boston.

"I sympathize with the flapper a lot," said Dr. Bebeau. "I know how much feet count in the general costume today.

"The trouble is the flapper jumps from one extreme to the other. Human anatomy should not be treated that way.

"They wear flap-heeled shoes large enough for them for three hours. Then they suddenly change into a pair of thing slippers that have abnormal high heels, short, tight vamps, and a sole two or three sizes too small for the foot.

"Three or four hours of that and back to tennis shoes or flat-heeled shoes. The feet and muscles get dizzy trying to adjust themselves to each new situation.

"I do it myself. That's why I can't lecture my patients too strongly. But I stick to the high heels most of the time. And I always get my shoes big enough.

"Girls today have the ugliest feet I've seen. They have huge bunions, a great many corns, and, worst of all their toes are all turned under, making a homely foot.

"The broad-toed, flat-heeled shoes are the best possible things. But will the flappers wear them? No. They go in for flat-heeled shoes and sandals—excellent for the feet, but the toes are kept narrow and very high heels are suddenly whisked on for dancing.

"What feet can survive this?"

Soft felt hats with turn-down brim is expected to take the place of straw headgear as summer wear for men in London.

Laughlin-Trotter Battle May Decide Race

Rivals Will Stage Crucial Clash At Patterson Field

Contest is Scheduled to Go Seven Innings Beginning at 4 O'clock; Record Crowd is Anticipated.

Laughlin and Trotter will clash in what may be the crucial contest of the City Industrial league race at Patterson field on Saturday afternoon.

The league season is rapidly nearing a close. Three teams are battling neck and neck down the home stretch, with every little advantage coming their way meaning a point or so nearer the coveted goal.

Laughlin, Trotter and K. T. K. are the leading candidates for the honor of meeting Frank Riley's Chester club, victorious in the first half of the league season, in the climax event, the "baby world's series.

Although a couple of engagements are billed tonight, it may be Saturday's clash, from present indications, that will ultimately decide the honors.

The game is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock and will go seven innings.

The home run hitting was done by pitchers in the Tiger-Indian doubleheader. Dauss scattered seven hits and smacked a homer to help the Tigers win the first, 6 to 1, and Buckeye's pair of circuit clouts scored five in the second, which the Indians took, 7 to 2.

Aldridge pitched brilliantly until the ninth, when he relaxed and allowed four runs, and the Pirates backed him with fine fielding and sound hitting to beat the Cards, 9 to 5.

BERLENBACH ODDS DROP FEW POINTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — Odds on Berlenbach-Slattery scramble, expected to entertain 50,000 fans at the Stadium tonight, were shaved from 8 to 5, with Berlenbach favored to retain his world title, to 6 to 5, today, with the probability that the influx of Buffalo backers of Slattery would force ven money before the men entered the ring.

Slattery was reported in fine shape and showed he was on edge and irritable when he arrived from his Buffalo training camp. He estimated his opponent lightly and opined that the "slow and flat-footed Berlenbach" wouldn't lay a glove on him. Slattery will have four inches reach on the champion, but will concede five to ten pounds in weight, going in at 166 himself.

Berlenbach, the harder hitter, was generally favored to win in much the manner he won the title from the crafty Mike McTigue, but some of the pickers, outside of the enthusiastic Buffalo contingent, contended that Slattery's dancing, lightning speed and fast hitting would dislodge Berlenbach's crown.

TWO MORE JOIN BOONE'S SQUAD

Campbell, Chester, and Banks, Wellsville, Report

Respective losses of Chester and Wellsville high school today happen to be East Liverpool's gain.

The statement yesterday by Coach O. V. Boone that DeLong, former Chester high school student, had enrolled in the local school, was followed today with the double barreled announcement that one more Chester boy and a Wellsville student, both football players, had lined up with the Blue and White for the coming campaign, materially strengthening the forces of the Ceramic City squad.

Campbell of Chester, a backfield man, and Banks, colored lineman, of Wellsville, are the new additions.

Both reported yesterday to Boone and both were completely equipped with football togs and sent into action yesterday afternoon at Patterson field.

Banks, it is announced, is now an East Liverpool resident, while DeLong and Campbell, although living in Chester, have decided to cast their lot with the locals.

Nels covered as much ground as Ringling's big top in the two-ply program divided by the Phillies and Braves. Carlson pitched a 4 to 0 shutout for the Phillies in the first, but the Braves won the second, 6 to 3, Smith holding the Phillies scoreless until the ninth.

Batt'ries For Today's Game-- Johnson, Nats; Adams, Pirates

This May Be Announcer's Call In At Least One of the Forth-Coming World's Series Contests.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Human interest in the world series, now almost certain, between the Senators and the Pirtes will center around the venerable figures of Walter Perry Johnson and Charles Benjamin Adams, the two oldest major league pitchers now extant.

Last fall it was Johnson, the veteran, and Freddy Lindstrom, the baby of the Giants, who furnished the word painters with coorful material.

Johnson was portrayed as the grand old man of the game, but next month he will meet the grand-daddy of them all. Sir Walter is a comparative Youngster of 38. Adams is 42.

A pitcher may lose his arm, but a smart one never loses his cunning. Adams is no longer capable of working every two or three days, but his arm is still good enough to serve him well enough when he is dropped into "spots."

While the Babe hasn't been an outstanding factor in the triumph of the Pirates this season, he is credited with six victories in eleven games. Johnson has won eighteen and lost six.

It is almost certain that the management of the Pittsburgh club will yield to public demand and start Adams at least once against Johnson.

On form, Johnson should win, as he is still a star in the American league while Adams has been eclipsed by many national league youngsters.

Experience and nerve, however, count heavily in these important games. Adams has gone through enough hard campaigning to be able to do his stuff before a big crowd. He knows how to pitch.

Possibly this will be the major league finale for both of these veterans. Adams says he is ready to retire and Johnson still cherishes an ambition to own a minor league club.

BISON TRAINING WELL UNDER WAY

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The Bethany college football training camp is well under way now and this morning over two full teams were on the field working under the direction of Coach Nuss. A large number of the candidates are freshmen. The bulk of the older men will not arrive until later in the week.

Everett Loppacker, who will captain the Bison squad this year, is expected to report Saturday. He has been working in New York City and will not be able to terminate his work there before that time. Gordon Hanna another grid star is also expected to report in a day or so. The addition of these two men will add materially to the strength and morale of the team.

30 GRIDDERS OUT AT SALEM

Coach Springer Faces Prospect of Building New Team.

SALEM, Sept. 11.—Between 30 and 40 men appeared this week at Reilly field when Coach Wilbur Springer of Salem High sounded the tom-tom for the season's gridiron activities. Many of these will be new men and while the material is good it is raw and will require a few weeks of careful training before it can be welded into the smashing machine with which Coach Springer hopes to win the county championship.

The influx of pupils from the eighth grades has proved a promising source of supply. A number of this year's freshmen class are very evidently good football timber. This includes Gibbons, Ed Eeidinger, Konnert, Jenkins and Scullion—all of them men who have had more or less experience on grade teams.

The team naturally suffered considerably by graduation last June but enough remains of the original outfit to form a least a nucleus around which may be built this year's team. Captain Fred Cosgrove, half and end, is one of these. Cosgrove can always be counted on for giving a good account of himself in any encounter involving the pigskin.

Other veterans include Sheen, Miller, Fisher, Coffee, Dider and Alexander. Of last year's second string men Matthews, Yaggi, Schmid, Seidinger, Simus, Werner, Bob Davis and Gregg will probably be given and opportunity to display their wares.

Coach Springer returned recently after a summer spent at Harvard where he went in company with Raymond Deitrich, former basketball coach at Mount Uunion. Springer, it has been learned, turned down a very flattering offer from Alliance High school, his old alma mater, to be with his boys in Salem again. Following the resignation of Harry Geltz as athletic director of the high school, Alliance authorities made determined efforts to secure Springer, but to no avail.

Blake's wildnes helped the Reds beat the Cubs, 8 to 3.

A Car Unequaled In Looks, Price and Results

Consider the Chrysler Four from any standpoint—of design, of craftsmanship and of performance—and you readily find the reason for the sweeping public demand for it.

Put the Chrysler Four through its paces. Drive it in the thickest of traffic and you will be delighted by its lightning-like, effortless acceleration. Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes, now first offered on a car of this price at slight extra cost, complete the feeling of utmost safety and ease of handling.

Take the open road. Step the Chrysler Four up to your speed and keep it there. You discover a tremendous energy and stamina, coupled with extreme quietness of performance and marked absence of vibration.

You will find that the Chrysler Four gives and does what no other car at its price can equal in power, speed, fuel mileage, acceleration, smoothness, ease of riding and handling.

All this is the result of a new application to proven four-cylinder principles of the same scientific engineering, and the same precision of manufacture with the same prodigal use of fine alloy steels, so characteristic of its companion car, the Chrysler Six.

Come in—we are eager to have you get acquainted with this most remarkable value in the industry.

Laughlin-Trotter Battle May Decide Race

Rivals Will Stage Crucial Clash At Patterson Field

Contest is Scheduled to Go Seven Innings Beginning at 4 O'clock; Record Crowd is Anticipated.

Laughlin and Trotter will clash in what may be the crucial contest of the City Industrial league race at Patterson field on Saturday afternoon.

The league season is rapidly nearing a close. Three teams are battling neck and neck down the home stretch, with every little advantage coming their way meaning a point or so nearer the coveted goal.

Laughlin, Trotter and K. T. K. are the leading candidates for the honor of meeting Frank Riley's Chester club, victorious in the first half of the league season, in the climax event, the "baby world's series.

Although a couple of engagements are billed tonight, it may be Saturday's clash, from present indications, that will ultimately decide the honors.

The game is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock and will go seven innings.

The home run hitting was done by pitchers in the Tiger-Indian doubleheader. Dauss scattered seven hits and smacked a homer to help the Tigers win the first, 6 to 1, and Buckeye's pair of circuit clouts scored five in the second, which the Indians took, 7 to 2.

BERLENBACH ODDS DROP FEW POINTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — Odds on Berlenbach-Slattery scramble, expected to entertain 50,000 fans at the Stadium tonight, were shaved from 8 to 5, with Berlenbach favored to retain his world title, to 6 to 5, today, with the probability that the influx of Buffalo backers of Slattery would force ven money before the men entered the ring.

Slattery was reported in fine shape and showed he was on edge and irritable when he arrived from his Buffalo training camp. He estimated his opponent lightly and opined that the "slow and flat-footed Berlenbach" wouldn't lay a glove on him. Slattery will have four inches reach on the champion, but will concede five to ten pounds in weight, going in at 166 himself.

Berlenbach, the harder hitter, was generally favored to win in much the manner he won the title from the crafty Mike McTigue, but some of the pickers, outside of the enthusiastic Buffalo contingent, contended that Slattery's dancing, lightning speed and fast hitting would dislodge Berlenbach's crown.

Aldridge pitched brilliantly until the ninth, when he relaxed and allowed four runs, and the Pirates backed him with fine fielding and sound hitting to beat the Cards, 9 to 5.

TWO MORE JOIN BOONE'S SQUAD

Campbell, Chester, and Banks, Wellsville, Report

Respective losses of Chester and Wellsville high school today happen to be East Liverpool's gain.

The statement yesterday by Coach O. V. Boone that DeLong, former Chester high school student, had enrolled in the local school, was followed today with the double barreled announcement that one more Chester boy and a Wellsville student, both football players, had lined up with the Blue and White for the coming campaign, materially strengthening the forces of the Ceramic City squad.

Campbell of Chester, a backfield man, and Banks, colored lineman, of Wellsville, are the new additions.

Both reported yesterday to Boone and both were completely equipped with football togs and sent into action yesterday afternoon at Patterson field.

Banks, it is announced, is now an East Liverpool resident, while DeLong and Campbell, although living in Chester, have decided to cast their lot with the locals.

Nels covered as much ground as Ringling's big top in the two-ply program divided by the Phillies and Braves. Carlson pitched a 4 to 0 shutout for the Phillies in the first, but the Braves won the second, 6 to 3, Smith holding the Phillies scoreless until the ninth.

Batt'ries For Today's Game-- Johnson, Nats; Adams, Pirates

This May Be Announcer's Call In At Least One of the Forth-Coming World's Series Contests.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Human interest in the world series, now almost certain, between the Senators and the Pirtes will center around the venerable figures of Walter Perry Johnson and Charles Benjamin Adams, the two oldest major league pitchers now extant.

Last fall it was Johnson, the veteran, and Freddy Lindstrom, the baby of the Giants, who furnished the word painters with coorful material.

Johnson was portrayed as the grand old man of the game, but next month he will meet the grand-daddy of them all. Sir Walter is a comparative Youngster of 38. Adams is 42.

A pitcher may lose his arm, but a smart one never loses his cunning. Adams is no longer capable of working every two or three days, but his arm is still good enough to serve him well enough when he is dropped into "spots."

While the Babe hasn't been an outstanding factor in the triumph of the Pirates this season, he is credited with six victories in eleven games. Johnson has won eighteen and lost six.

It is almost certain that the management of the Pittsburgh club will yield to public demand and start Adams at least once against Johnson.

On form, Johnson should win, as he is still a star in the American league while Adams has been eclipsed by many national league youngsters.

Experience and nerve, however, count heavily in these important games. Adams has gone through enough hard campaigning to be able to do his stuff before a big crowd. He knows how to pitch.

Possibly this will be the major league finale for both of these veterans. Adams says he is ready to retire and Johnson still cherishes an ambition to own a minor league club.

BISON TRAINING WELL UNDER WAY

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The Bethany college football training camp is well under way now and this morning over two full teams were on the field working under the direction of Coach Nuss. A large number of the candidates are freshmen. The bulk of the older men will not arrive until later in the week.

Everett Loppacker, who will captain the Bison squad this year, is expected to report Saturday. He has been working in New York City and will not be able to terminate his work there before that time. Gordon Hanna another grid star is also expected to report in a day or so. The addition of these two men will add materially to the strength and morale of the team.

30 GRIDDERS OUT AT SALEM

Coach Springer Faces Prospect of Building New Team.

SALEM, Sept. 11.—Between 30 and 40 men appeared this week at Reilly field when Coach Wilbur Springer of Salem High sounded the tom-tom for the season's gridiron activities. Many of these will be new men and while the material is good it is raw and will require a few weeks of careful training before it can be welded into the smashing machine with which Coach Springer hopes to win the county championship.

The influx of pupils from the eighth grades has proved a promising source of supply. A number of this year's freshmen class are very evidently good football timber. This includes Gibbons, Ed Eeidinger, Konnert, Jenkins and Scullion—all of them men who have had more or less experience on grade teams.

The team naturally suffered considerably by graduation last June but enough remains of the original outfit to form a least a nucleus around which may be built this year's team. Captain Fred Cosgrove, half and end, is one of these. Cosgrove can always be counted on for giving a good account of himself in any encounter involving the pigskin.

Other veterans include Sheen, Miller, Fisher, Coffee, Dider and Alexander. Of last year's second string men Matthews, Yaggi, Schmid, Seidinger, Simus, Werner, Bob Davis and Gregg will probably be given and opportunity to display their wares.

Coach Springer returned recently after a summer spent at Harvard where he went in company with Raymond Deitrich, former basketball coach at Mount Uunion. Springer, it has been learned, turned down a very flattering offer from Alliance High school, his old alma mater, to be with his boys in Salem again. Following the resignation of Harry Geltz as athletic director of the high school, Alliance authorities made determined efforts to secure Springer, but to no avail.

Blake's wildnes helped the Reds beat the Cubs, 8 to 3.

PIECES OF HANGMAN'S ROPE HELD BY THE SUPERSTITIOUS IN SOFIA

SOFIA.—Scores of this city's residents today believe themselves protected from many lurking dangers because among their treasured possessions are pieces of the ropes which hanged the Sofia Cathedral outrage perpetrators.

A Balkan superstition has it that possession of a piece of rope by which criminals are hanged brings good luck, and there was a wild scramble to obtain the coveted trophies after the executions.

The hangman, an itinerant gypsy, reaped a small fortune by cutting the ropes into small pieces and disposing of them to the highest bidders.

THE SMOKY LILT—LESSON NO. 1 IN ANOTHER CHARLESTON DANCE

All set for the first lesson in a new combination of the Charleston? Very well, let's go! This new combination is called the Smoky Lilt.

In Lesson No. 2 the dancer stands on the right foot and swings the left foot over the right. These two steps are repeated over and over again until they have been thoroughly mastered. You will then be ready for the next lesson.

The Charleston refutes the oft-heard assertion that we have no dances of our own. The tantalizing steps of the Charleston are distinctly American.

This paper has started a class for the purpose of helping those unfamiliar with the various steps. With a little practice you will soon become proficient in the most difficult steps.

The Sneaky Tide—Lesson No. 2.

Assume neutral position; heels together, toes out. Next press the elbows to the sides and turn the palms of the hands out. Take a short jump toward left, using the right foot. The left is raised, bending it slightly at the knee. Jump three times, first upon toe, then heel, and next upon the toe again, executing the movements as rapidly as possible. Then return to the neutral position.

Now reverse the above action, jumping to the right and using the left foot, making the same toe-heel-toe movement three successive times. Return to the neutral position, ready for the next step.

The next combination will be taken up tomorrow. Students are going to do some further "jumping."

England Reports Birth Rate Slump; Mortality, too, Off

LONDON — England's birth rate continues to decline, according to the latest statistics of births and deaths.

The birth rate for the second quarter of the present year was 183 lower than last year's corresponding quarter, and is the lowest recorded.

The death rate for the same quarter decreased by over 900 from that of last year, while infant mortality is returned at 66 per thousand.

In view of the fact that for the first quarter of this year 1,620 fewer were married than last year, the Englishman is wondering whether the birth rate slump will ever be arrested.

How Mrs. V. R. Sweet Lost 40 Pounds

She explains it below to every reader overburdened with excess FAT.

Wonderful French formula works wonders even in most stubborn cases of obesity — NO DIETS — DANGEROUS DRUGS OR EXERCISES.

Hundreds of letters of fat people who have reduced with SAN-GRI-NA tell the same story as Mrs. Sweet of Albion, Idaho.

"I was able to take off several pounds of fat every week without any effort or harmful effect — at the same time I greatly improved my health—I ate all I wanted, did not have to exercise or take dangerous drugs and thanks to SAN-GRI-NA my dream of getting back to my normal weight is at last realized.

If you are a fat woman let me tell you what to do: Get a box of SAN-GRI-NA today, take two small tablets before your meals and safely lose a few pounds of excess fat each week—It took four boxes of SAN-GRI-NA to reduce me of forty pounds—It made me look at least ten years younger and entirely transformed my health and appearance. I gladly sign my name to this letter because I am happy to be able to help every fat man or woman regain a slender, healthy normal figure.—Mrs. V. R. Sweet."

NOTICE—SAN-GRI-NA is a scientific discovery made up from the formula of one of the best French medical authorities on obesity—It is guaranteed absolutely harmless and not to contain dangerous drugs or chemicals—IT HAS REDUCED HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE WHERE EVERYTHING ELSE HAD FAILED—SAN-GRI-NA is not a new, untried or unknown formula—it was used for years in Europe by most reliable obesity specialists with remarkable success. It has now been introduced in America and is sold by the leading druggists at a price within the reach of all.

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C.

FISHER PARK

Lincoln Highway at City Line

Generous Profits On Today's Low Prices--Choicest Locations Now Selling!

SCORES of home-lovers and investors attended the opening last Saturday of beautiful FISHER PARK.

They were charmed b ythe beauty of this superb residential development, amazed at the work of improvement which has already taken place.

At low original prices they selected their locations, and took advantage of the Hoopes and Watson purchase arrangement.

Tomorrow will be another Red Letter day for home-lovers who come to Fisher Park. YOU will find here a natural beauty unrivalled in this section of Ohio. YOU will find a residential property into which has been placed the finest that the country's foremost land architects could plan in modern improvement. YOU WILL FIND WHAT EAST LIVERPOOL HOME-LOVERS HAVE SOUGHT—Comfort, convenience, beauty, at the right price. FISHER PARK came to answer a DEFINITE demand. For years East Liverpool has needed just such a homesite development. Hoopes and Watson thoroughly investigated conditions in this city before the property was made ready for the market. Convinced that East Liverpool wanted and needed this property, they proceeded with their plans.

Tax Rate For Redemption ot Bonds Will Be Reduced

Although Provision Is Made for Proposed $950,000 Road Bond Issue, Levy Is to Be Cut from 3.50 to 3.17 Mills.

Although electors will be asked at the November election to approve a bond issue for $950,000 for road purposes, the tax levy to provide for the payment of this issue, together with the levy necessary for the redemption of all other outstanding bonds, will be reduced from 3.50, the rate for this year, to 3.17 mills, in 1926.

In 1927 this millage will be still further reduced to 2.94, and a reduction will be made to 1.07 in 1929.

The tax rate required for present interest and sinking fund for 1926 will be .89 mills, and the rate for 1927 will be .38 mills and in 1928 this will be reduced to .31 mills.

Outstanding bonds due in 1926 total $144,685 and the interest on these bonds will amount to $14,239.

Nearly $100,000 in bonds are to be paid off next year, so that in 1927 the county will have to pay only $43,838 bonds and $7,007 interest charges.

The outstanding bonds due in 1928 will be down to $36,625, and the interest charge lowered to $4,842.

The two-mill levy for a 10-year period will expire in 1929, and as it is not proposed to sell any of the new bond issue until contracts are awarded at intervals during the next three year period, the road bond rate from then will be down to 1.07, the lowest in a decade.

The tax rate required in 1926 for bonds will amount to 1.06 mills and in 1927 this will be lowered to 1.02 mills and a further reduction to .96 mills will be made in 1928.

The proposed new issue will be retired at an approximate rate of $85,500 per year. Interest charges will be reduced $3,647 annually. The average yearly interest charge for the new issue will be approximately $21,161, which shows that $106,661 will be required annually for the redemption of the bonds and interest charge. To meet this cost the average tax rate required will be but .82 mills.

The elimination of the two-mill levy in 1929 is one reason why the road levy is reduced to such a low figure. Under the provisions of the new law, the county commissioners are unable to sell bonds for any job until after a contract has been awarded, and then only for the actual amount of the contract.

This rate may show a further reduction as the tax duplicate increases in value. The rates as announced are based upon the present resources of the county, based upon the tax duplicate as it now appears. With changes being made in the December duplicate, and upward, the millage required for the new issue may be down to one mill flat.

The commissioners believe that should the bond issue carry, and with the state and federal aid assured Columbiana county, more new roads can be built within the next three years, and at a lower cost in millage, then ever in the history of the sub-division.

Tax Rate For Redemption ot Bonds Will Be Reduced

Although Provision Is Made for Proposed $950,000 Road Bond Issue, Levy Is to Be Cut from 3.50 to 3.17 Mills.

Although electors will be asked at the November election to approve a bond issue for $950,000 for road purposes, the tax levy to provide for the payment of this issue, together with the levy necessary for the redemption of all other outstanding bonds, will be reduced from 3.50, the rate for this year, to 3.17 mills, in 1926.

In 1927 this millage will be still further reduced to 2.94, and a reduction will be made to 1.07 in 1929.

The tax rate required for present interest and sinking fund for 1926 will be .89 mills, and the rate for 1927 will be .38 mills and in 1928 this will be reduced to .31 mills.

Outstanding bonds due in 1926 total $144,685 and the interest on these bonds will amount to $14,239.

Nearly $100,000 in bonds are to be paid off next year, so that in 1927 the county will have to pay only $43,838 bonds and $7,007 interest charges.

The outstanding bonds due in 1928 will be down to $36,625, and the interest charge lowered to $4,842.

The two-mill levy for a 10-year period will expire in 1929, and as it is not proposed to sell any of the new bond issue until contracts are awarded at intervals during the next three year period, the road bond rate from then will be down to 1.07, the lowest in a decade.

The tax rate required in 1926 for bonds will amount to 1.06 mills and in 1927 this will be lowered to 1.02 mills and a further reduction to .96 mills will be made in 1928.

The proposed new issue will be retired at an approximate rate of $85,500 per year. Interest charges will be reduced $3,647 annually. The average yearly interest charge for the new issue will be approximately $21,161, which shows that $106,661 will be required annually for the redemption of the bonds and interest charge. To meet this cost the average tax rate required will be but .82 mills.

The elimination of the two-mill levy in 1929 is one reason why the road levy is reduced to such a low figure. Under the provisions of the new law, the county commissioners are unable to sell bonds for any job until after a contract has been awarded, and then only for the actual amount of the contract.

This rate may show a further reduction as the tax duplicate increases in value. The rates as announced are based upon the present resources of the county, based upon the tax duplicate as it now appears. With changes being made in the December duplicate, and upward, the millage required for the new issue may be down to one mill flat.

The commissioners believe that should the bond issue carry, and with the state and federal aid assured Columbiana county, more new roads can be built within the next three years, and at a lower cost in millage, than ever in the history of the sub-division.

Poor Time For Testing.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—Despite the fact that the temperature outside was over 80, the steam was turned on full force in the Federal building. Nearly everyone who entered the building inquired of mail carriers or other attendants the reason for the excess of heat. Finally it was discovered that new boilers, which had recently been installed in the basement of the building were being tested.

CALL OF LOVE RESULTS IN CAPTURE OF BAFFLING DANISH RUM RUNNER

COPENHAGEN.—One of the most notorius rum-runners in Northern Europe has just been captured by the Swedish police, due to his irresistible desire to see his fiancee.

Hisc capture was only accomplished after a dramatic chase, which ended in a pitched revolver battle. A strong force of police, headed by a sheriff and accompanied by dogs, surrounded the district of Marlehavn, where the rum-runners fiancee was known to be living.

The police dogs soon got on his trail, and finally located him beside a big hay loft. Realizing that he was discovered, the smuggler at once opened fire, and for nearly an hour shots were exchanged. His arrest was only effected after his ammunition had given out.

Harding Good Will Memorial Will Be Dedicated Sept. 16

Monument Erected At Stanley Park, Vancouver, B. C., by Subscriptions of 95,000 Kiwanians.

STANLEY PARK, VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 11.—The President Harding International Good Will Memorial, located in this city's immense municipal park, and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, will be dedicated on Wednesday, September 16. Government officials of both the United States and Canada will take part in the memorial program.

The East Liverpool, O., Kiwanis club contributed toward the building of this monument.

The monument is the only material symbol of fortification, outside of mile posts, to outline the invisible demarcation of the thousands of miles of border line which spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific and separate both countries.

"What the world is hoping for, the United States and Canada have achieved; the conception of peace written in the minds and hearts of the citizens of both nations," said John H. Moss, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, president of Kiwanis International, today. "It was with this understanding that the late President Harding, a Kiwanian himself, pledged to the ideals of Kiwanis, gave to the world that tribute of friendship which is now hoped to be succor to a world in the travail of a wars aftermath.'

The idea of the erection by Kiwanis International of a Harding memorial was first given prominence by the fact that as president of the United States and a member of the International organization, Mr. Harding had been greatly respected by both Canadians and Americans. Also it was the only time that a president had visited Canada and Americans. Also it was the only time that a presiednt had visited Canada during his term of office. When the proposal to erect a memorial was brought to the thousands of Kiwanis delegates at the Denver annual convention in 1924, it was met with instant and unanimous approval. Directly, then, followed the approval of the international board of trustees and also the international council held in Chicago in December, 1924. Members of the Harding Memorial committee appointed in July, 1924, were: John H. Moss, Milwaukee, Wisconson, now president of Kiwanis International; Victor M. Johnson, Rockford, Illinois, now immediate past president of the organization; Edmund F. Arras, Columbus, Ohio, past president; and Douglas J. Scott, Winnipeg, Canada, International trustee.

Consideration of a site demanded careful thought and mature deliberation. There were three suggestions: first, the nation's capital, second, Harding's birthplace, Marion, Ohio, and third, Stanley Park. But the bond of harmonious friendship settled the question in favor of Vancouver, for it was there that as president of the United States, Mr. Harding had spoken in favor of the possession of an increased understanding between the two countries.

The exact site chosen in the park is some 800 feet from the main entrance, the only part of the expansive tract where waterpools, fountains and flower beds are maintained, and thousands of tourists pass by annually. Charles Marega, of Vancouver, is the sculptor.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 40.

"You must take me where there's marvelous music and a dance floor that isn't packed and jammed like most of them," she told Tommy.

"I know just the place,' he had answered. He did.

"It's surprising that this place isn't better known," he remarked, as he led her into a restaurant that was hidden away in an obscure street on the West Side, some blocks from the Loop. "I suppose those who come here keep it a secret. Assuredly the best French cooking in Chicago is to be obtained here.

"What's the name of it?"

"It hasn't any."

Little tables on a raised balcony looked down on a seductively glistening floor.

"The music doesn't begin until nine-thirty. That will give us time to enjoy the marvelous food.'

"But it's so warm, Tommy, no food will be very enjoyable."

"Ah, you don't know the place," he enthused, the true gourmet. "The chef here defeats the thermometer with the menu."

"Please order then, whatever you think I'll like." An air of formality hung over the table. She sat up stiffly, and could think of nothing to talk about.

When he had given the orders for poulet froid moutarde au jambon with salade a la Francaise, and as dessert, bombe bee, with a familiar remark to the waiter that they were having "eight o'clock luncheon," he lit a cigarette and bent devoted eyes upon Amoura.

"Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swiftson's?"

"Oh, that reminds me I saw in the paper that Cicely's brother is now working as a common laborer in one of his father's packing houses."

"Yes, I heard about it," he responded, annoyed by her avoidance of his question. "But he won't be a laborer any more than you are a working girl."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply this: The working-girl is a working girl always, even when she is in the dance halls that are her only 'fun.' But you are able to find release from the toil and dullness that is their's. You are able to take little vacations from their world. They can't. They, for instance, couldn't come here tonight and enjoy themselves."

She grasped his meaning, despite the vague explanation. "Oh, you're speaking of a certain type of working-girl."

"I'm speaking of a class, a class with which you are associating, but to which you do not belong."

"I have not found any great difference."

"Oh, yes, you have! You don't believe that."

"No, I don't. I spoke before I thought . . . And you are right, I'm not playing fair, I'm pretending to be a working-girl, and yet I'm not keeping myself within their boundaries and restrictions. I suppose it's because I just can't."

"Exactly . . . And now that that is settled, le'ts get back to my question. Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swifton's?"

"Of course, I haven't. Women do not forget the supreme compliments. But how is Betty?"

"Oh, bother Betty!"

"I understood that she was your fiancee." Amoura said it indifferently, as if it didn't matter.

"She was. Our engagement was broken by mutual consent."

Amoura was relieved by the timely arrival of the waiter. She hoped that she could keep Tommy in check, for she was in the mood to enjoy food and dancing, and his protestations of love, only annoyed her. Again she felt akin to the chorus girls and models who for a dinner, sat up and heard moony-eyed fat men make violent confessions of undying affection. The thought made her smile.

They were having their second dance, and Amoura was enjoying herself, despite Tommy's only too evident short-comings as a dancer, when her eyes accidently fell upon a table they were gliding by. Simaltaneously the eyes of one of the two men at the table rested upon her. Her expression indicated her recognition, and confirmed to him that this was his nameless luncheon guest of last Sunday. She did not nod, so neither did he, but his eyes avidly followed her down the floor.

She was disturbed now, and Tommy sensed it. "Getting a headache?" Amoura did not offer an explanation, but simply said "No! No!"

She was glad that there wasn't another encore to the number.

When they were back at the table, Tommy proffered a cigaret, and, nervous, she lighted up with him. She didn't care for smoking, but now the seductive tobacco relieved her. Tommy began telling an inconsequential story about Cicely Swiftson that bored her. She wanted to leave. In half an hour, she decided, she would suggest it.

Amoura was not surprised to see Vey Ardle approaching the table, but her heart dropped a beat. Tommy followed her gaze and rose courteously when Vey paused at the table. Amoura greeted him with a bow.

"Do you know Mr. Loughley, Mr. Ardle?"

Vey shook hands indifferently, with little more than a glance at the other man, but bowed a thanks when Loughley pleasantly asked, "Will you sit down, Mr. Ardle?" and directed himself to Amoura: "May I have the next dance?"

She did not hesitate. "Will you excuse me, Tommy?"

Still standing, he watched them glide onto the floor that was waving with reflected light, then sat down with a frown to light a cigaret. The burning match he held in his hand, his composure ruffled until it licked a finger, and caused him to release it with an oath.

At this moment Vey Ardle, having conventionally expressed his joy in meeting her here, and complimenting her gown, was pleading in Amoura's ear. "Please give men the next dance, too?"

"You forget that I am Mr. Loughley's guest. I'm afraid he is offended because I gave you this one," she responded.

"Naturally . . . "

It was a waltz, and her tense body released itself into the rhythm. She did not think, and only heard what else he had to say inattentively and without comment. She was annoyed when the music paused and applause rattled over the floor before an encore began. When this had been played, and the musicians lad down their instruments, she started back to the table unwillingly. She wanted to dance on and on.

"You simply MUST tell me your name,' he exclaimed.

"Remember your promise."

"Ah ha! That promise was only good for that afternoon. If you don't tell me, I'll ask your companion. He will." Vey looked as if he would carry out his threat.

She glanced furtively in the direction of Tommy, then paused. "Have you pencil and paper?"

For answer he halted at the table they were passing, took a pencil from the waiter's hand, pulled up his coat sleeve and bared the white cuff, oblivious of the stares of those at the table. "Write it."

With flushed cheeks, she took the pencil and complied, forming with uncertain fingers a rakish "Amy Ainsworth."

"And the address?"

"I'm a model at La Houbierre's."

He nodded, emotionless and they went to her table, followed by the eyes of the occupants of surrounding tables and the waiter. A pounchy man winked, and the others smiled.

"I shall call for you tomorrow afternoon," he said calimly, within Tommy's hearing. She was thrilled by the caress in his eyes and ill concealed it. Tommy started at her when Ardle had gone.

A Tiny Speck of Iodine— But It Prevents Goiter

When MULKEY'S IODINE SALT first came out some people seemed to think that it would be a brownish color or taste of iodine. Nothing like that. If you didn't see the label you might use MULKEY'S IODINE SALT without ever knowing that it was anything but ordinary table salt.

A person's thyroid gland requires very little iodine to keep it in a healthy condition— but without the iodine it becomes enlarged, and that is what is known as Goiter.

Health authorities and medical societies endorse MULKEY'S IODINE SALT for Goiter prevention. How about your children? Won't you begin using this iodine salt today?

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 40.

"You must take me where there's marvelous music and a dance floor that isn't packed and jammed like most of them," she told Tommy.

"I know just the place,' he had answered. He did.

"It's surprising that this place isn't better known," he remarked, as he led her into a restaurant that was hidden away in an obscure street on the West Side, some blocks from the Loop. "I suppose those who come here keep it a secret. Assuredly the best French cooking in Chicago is to be obtained here.

"What's the name of it?"

"It hasn't any."

Little tables on a raised balcony looked down on a seductively glistening floor.

"The music doesn't begin until nine-thirty. That will give us time to enjoy the marvelous food.'

"But it's so warm, Tommy, no food will be very enjoyable."

"Ah, you don't know the place," he enthused, the true gourmet. "The chef here defeats the thermometer with the menu."

"Please order then, whatever you think I'll like." An air of formality hung over the table. She sat up stiffly, and could think of nothing to talk about.

When he had given the orders for poulet froid moutarde au jambon with salade a la Francaise, and as dessert, bombe bee, with a familiar remark to the waiter that they were having "eight o'clock luncheon," he lit a cigarette and bent devoted eyes upon Amoura.

"Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swiftson's?"

"Oh, that reminds me I saw in the paper that Cicely's brother is now working as a common laborer in one of his father's packing houses."

"Yes, I heard about it," he responded, annoyed by her avoidance of his question. "But he won't be a laborer any more than you are a working girl."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply this: The working-girl is a working girl always, even when she is in the dance halls that are her only 'fun.' But you are able to find release from the toil and dullness that is their's. You are able to take little vacations from their world. They can't. They, for instance, couldn't come here tonight and enjoy themselves."

She grasped his meaning, despite the vague explanation. "Oh, you're speaking of a certain type of working-girl."

"I'm speaking of a class, a class with which you are associating, but to which you do not belong."

"I have not found any great difference."

"Oh, yes, you have! You don't believe that."

"No, I don't. I spoke before I thought . . . And you are right, I'm not playing fair, I'm pretending to be a working-girl, and yet I'm not keeping myself within their boundaries and restrictions. I suppose it's because I just can't."

"Exactly . . . And now that that is settled, le'ts get back to my question. Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swifton's?"

"Of course, I haven't. Women do not forget the supreme compliments. But how is Betty?"

"Oh, bother Betty!"

"I understood that she was your fiancee." Amoura said it indifferently, as if it didn't matter.

"She was. Our engagement was broken by mutual consent."

Amoura was relieved by the timely arrival of the waiter. She hoped that she could keep Tommy in check, for she was in the mood to enjoy food and dancing, and his protestations of love, only annoyed her. Again she felt akin to the chorus girls and models who for a dinner, sat up and heard moony-eyed fat men make violent confessions of undying affection. The thought made her smile.

They were having their second dance, and Amoura was enjoying herself, despite Tommy's only too evident short-comings as a dancer, when her eyes accidently fell upon a table they were gliding by. Simaltaneously the eyes of one of the two men at the table rested upon her. Her expression indicated her recognition, and confirmed to him that this was his nameless luncheon guest of last Sunday. She did not nod, so neither did he, but his eyes avidly followed her down the floor.

She was disturbed now, and Tommy sensed it. "Getting a headache?" Amoura did not offer an explanation, but simply said "No! No!"

She was glad that there wasn't another encore to the number.

When they were back at the table, Tommy proffered a cigaret, and, nervous, she lighted up with him. She didn't care for smoking, but now the seductive tobacco relieved her. Tommy began telling an inconsequential story about Cicely Swiftson that bored her. She wanted to leave. In half an hour, she decided, she would suggest it.

Amoura was not surprised to see Vey Ardle approaching the table, but her heart dropped a beat. Tommy followed her gaze and rose courteously when Vey paused at the table. Amoura greeted him with a bow.

"Do you know Mr. Loughley, Mr. Ardle?"

Vey shook hands indifferently, with little more than a glance at the other man, but bowed a thanks when Loughley pleasantly asked, "Will you sit down, Mr. Ardle?" and directed himself to Amoura: "May I have the next dance?"

She did not hesitate. "Will you excuse me, Tommy?"

Still standing, he watched them glide onto the floor that was waving with reflected light, then sat down with a frown to light a cigaret. The burning match he held in his hand, his composure ruffled, until it licked a finger, and caused him to release it with an oath.

At this moment Vey Ardle, having conventionally expressed his joy in meeting her here, and complimenting her gown, was pleading in Amoura's ear. "Please give men the next dance, too?"

"You forget that I am Mr. Loughley's guest. I'm afraid he is offended because I gave you this one," she responded.

"Naturally . . . "

It was a waltz, and her tense body released itself into the rhythm. She did not think, and only heard what else he had to say inattentively and without comment. She was annoyed when the music paused and applause rattled over the floor before an encore began. When this had been played, and the musicians lad down their instruments, she started back to the table unwillingly. She wanted to dance on and on.

Ziegfeld's 'Sally,' Musical Comedy DeLuxe, Booked Here

Entire New York Production Will Come to Ceramic Theatre, Friday, Sept. 18.

Ziegfeld's "Sally' the musical comedy de luxe, with the entire New York production that was seen for two years at the New Amsterday theatre, New York, comes to the Ceramic theatre, Friday, Sept. 18.

Mr. Ziegfeld believes that "Sally" is one of the best musical comedy entertainments ever devised. This show is referred to as "the apple of his eye." In a way it was a windfall, like many good apples. Other producers had their chance to take it up with him and they declined. Imagine their surprise, not to mention other emotions. "Sally' opened at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York and ran two years, totaling more than six hundred performances and breaking all box office records.

The gross box office income for the New York run was $2,190,000. The weekly average was $31,250. "Sally" beat the New York box office record by about $200,000. The old record was held by "Lightnin.", which has a three year run on Broadway with Frank Bacon as the star. "Lightnin'" ran for exactly 161 weeks but played in a smaller theatre and at lower prices than "Sally."

Dolls from gnarled roots of cottonwood trees are made by a Montana woman.

Night Bureau Service Great Assistance in Tracin gStolen Cars

COLUMBUS — Police and other authorities throughout Ohio are receiving material aid, through the operation of the recently inaugurated 24-hour day service at the state automobile registration department, in tracing stolen automobiles and apprehendind criminals, Secretary of State Brown said today.

Establishment of this night bureau service by Secretary Brown placed Ohio among the few states which have this service. Calls for information at this night bureau are increasing from night to night, Brown said. Private citizens are are reporting accidents to this night bureau, the records disclosed.

Two attenaants are on duty every night. One has the stretch from 5 p. m. until midnight. The other is on from midnight to 8 a. m. The day force is on duty from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

With automobile records at their finger tips, these night attendants furnish the police and sheriffs with the names and addresses of motorists figuring in accidents or crimes. Officials are thus enabled to make prompt investigations without waiting until next day.

Claiming that the Ferrocarril del Norte, the British owned railway, failed to comply with all the obligations of its original concession, the government of Columbia has taken entire possession.

Even Amoy, China, will have a soap factory, the plant to produce 1,000 pounds a day.

Three Generations of Women

Since the humble origin of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in 1881, made on a kitchen stove, three generations of women have used this old-fashioned root and herb remedy for their ailments with wonderful success. Very often we hear of families where the grandmother, mother and daughter testify to its virtue. This accounts for the astounding growth and demand for this dependable medicine from all over the United States and from many foreign countries as well.

TROTTERS LOSE TO K. T. K., 6-2

Potters and Automen Now Tied for Second Place.

Pulling thmemselves together for a final spurt and dash for the second half honors in the unprecedented spirited City Industrial league race, K. T. K. outhit Trotter at Columbian park on Thursday evening and won the clash, 6 to 2.

The result put both clubs in second place with honors even while Laughlin, resting for the day, left the runner up position for the top round in the standing—a half game to the good. The outcome accordingly is yet in doubt and may not be decided until the final game is played.

Pilot Godwin sent Stoffel, who twirled against Laughlin to a tie on Wednesday night, neithef side scoring, back to the hurling hill top and he stopped Trotters as did Pitcher Willis the evening previous in Wellsville. He allowed but four hits and two runs and but one of these was earned, errors making possible the second. He fanned two, but walked none.

Deshler, flinging for Trotter, was not quite so effective as he permitted six hits which netted as many opposition runs, aided and abetted by a couple of walks, two stolen bases and a brace of errors. He struck out two. However, he nullified some of these aids to the enemy by a timely single in the second that scored the first of the two runs his team made.

Realizing the value of a quick getaway in view of the murky state of the atmosphere that smacked of rain, a few drops falling as the start was made, K. T. K., with seven men batting in the first inning, smote the ball with precision and accuracy, three singles ensuing, which plus a couple of errors, a pass and stolen base, gave them a four-run lead from which they were never dislodged.

Two more in the second, when Shaw doubled, Merchant tripled and McShane walked and stole a bag, put the potters safely in the victorious column.

Trotters attempted a final rally in the fifth when Aufderheide batted for J. Stroble, who reacher first on an error only to be forced by Parsons at second. The side was retired by a fast double play as E. Bayley was batting.

Sainor, with two singles, in two tries, had a perfect batting mark as did Merchant with a walk and triple in as many efforts and Duffy with a single and sacrifice in two attempts.

Shaw had a single and double in three swatting chances. A mark of 667 for the day.

Duffy, playing short with Finley on third during Simcox's absence, he being on the bench but not yet ready for play, had a busy day in the field where he accepted six of nine chances. One of his miscues, however, was partly excusable, inasmuch as Stoffel deflected the ball for which he was set. With three former K. T. K. regulars — Simcox, Rardin and Young—temporarily out of the line-up, Duffy has shown to advantage in his role of infield substitute without any practice so far this season.

R. Pollock, usually a reliable hitter for Trotter, struck out twice, the only member of his team who for the contest fanned.

Two fielding flashes were made during the contest—a one-handed catch off Finley's bat by Kinsey in the first and a great catch by E. Bayley in the fourth of McShane's fly to middle which he took while running full-tilt with his back to the plate and apparently overtaking the sphere before it struck the ground. Sharp coaching by A. Bayley prevented a collision between him and Kinsey on the play.

After J. Strobel had thrown McShane out at first in the first inning, Shaw singled to middle. Merchant walked. Finley flew to Kinsey, a one-handed catch, but the winners were held to their bases. Sainor singled through short which blew Parsons fumbled and Shaw and Merchant scored as Sanior went to second from where he counted on Duffy's single to right. He reached second on the throw to the plate, stole third as J. Strobel let Deshler's throw to nip him at the keystone corner and continued home when the ball rolled to middle.

With two gone in K. T. K.'s half of the second Shaw doubled to right, scoring McShane, who had walked and purloined second. Merchant sent a three bagger to right on which Shaw went home.

Duffy, booting E. Bayley's drive, reached first and went to second on his delayed overthrow to first. E. Bayley stole third and scored on A. Bayley's out, Duffy to Dustman.

OLDHAM

May Prove Another Mails for Pirate Crew.

FIVE years ago this time the Cleveland Indians were headed for the American league flag—and the first big league pennant Cleveland ever boasted. Manager Speaker was awake to the one weakness of the pitching staff. He needed a good lefthander. Big Walter Mails was brought east from the Pacific Coast league where he had been lefthanding them to death. Mails pitched marvelous ball that fall and if he cannot be credited with winning the pennant for the club he can be given a generous share of the credit. He won seven straight games beginning with the first game he pitched.

Now the Pittsburgh Pirate fans have hopes that "Red" Oldham will prove another Mails before the season ends. Manager McKechnie had been struggling along with but one southpaw, Emil Yde, until Oldham was purchased from the Des Moines club in the Western league. And Bill knew that his staff was under a handicap against lefthand batters as a result of this paucity of port flingers. So he got Oldham.

Red is no spring chicken. He was with the Detroit Tigers as far back as 1914 and had cut his eye teeth at that time. He started with Johnstown, Pa., in the Tri State league back in 1911. The Phillies looked him over the next spring but sent him to Trenton before May 1. He won 37 and lost 28 games there in the two years he labored before he moved up a notch. Providence in the International league grabbed him after the 1913 season and after he had won 14 games and lost but seven with that club the Tigers bought him. The rest of that year he spent in the bull pen with the Tigers and worked out with them the following spring only to be shunted to Minneapolis and then to Buffalo. The Tigers recalled him August 17, that same year and at the close of the season sent him to the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league.

The war interrupted his baseball activities until 1919 when he returned to duty, this time with Portland where he became one of the busiest pitchers in the league, breaking into 67 games, winning 21 and losing 23 of them. Then came his return to the Tigers.

For four years he hurled with varying success for the Detroiters. He seemed a jinx to the Cleveland club, baffling them any time he stepped into the box.

When the 1924 season rolled around Oldham refused to report and was suspended. Eventually the Vernon Pacific Coast league club bought him and then sent him to Des Moines when he failed to get going. When the jolly Buccaneers bought his release from the Des Moines outfit he had just won six straight ball games.

M'GRAW STANDS PAT ON LINEUP

Says Failure Due to Injuries and Not Slump

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Despite rumors to the contrary, the New York Giants will not be rebuilt for next season. The team's disappointing showing this year was due in the main to injuries, and not to a playing slump, according to those in charge of the club.

McGraw intended to present as his regular line-up Kelly at first, Frisch at second, Jackson at shortstop and either Lindstrom or Groh at third. Kelly was the only regular infielder who was not laid off because of injuries.

Many Shifts Made.

As either Frisch, Jackson or Lindstrom was out of the game at various times, McGraw was forced to change the lin-up constantly. Groh was of little use because his trick knee repeatedly went back on him.

Of the many misfortunes which happened to the club, probably the injury to Jackson was the most serious.

There is an old adage that no team can win without a good shortstop. Jackson was unable to play when the Giants made their important western trip at the time when they were neck and neck with the Pirates. He was thrust into the line-up against Pittsburgh when the Westerners came east in the lead, but was greatly handicapped in fielding his position.

Heavy Load on Pitchers.

New York's pitching staff was shot to pieces by the suspension of Hugh McQuillan following the star's marital rifficulties. The extra burden on the other pitchers proved too heavy for them to handle.

Baseball experts believe that with his original lineup intact McGraw would have won the pennant. Although they will be surer of themselves because of their success this season, the Pirates will have a tough job preventing the Giants from staging a comeback next year.

Whipped Champ But East Won't Call Him King

TROTTERS LOSE TO K. T. K., 6-2

Potters and Automen Now Tied for Second Place.

Pulling themselves together for a final spurt and dash for the second half honors in the unprecedented spirited City Industrial league race, K. T. K. outhit Trotter at Columbian park on Thursday evening and won the clash, 6 to 2.

The result put both clubs in second place with honors even while Laughlin, resting for the day, left the runner up position for the top round in the standing—a half game to the good. The outcome accordingly is yet in doubt and may not be decided until the final game is played.

Pilot Godwin sent Stoffel, who twirled against Laughlin to a tie on Wednesday night, neither side scoring, back to the hurling hill top and he stopped Trotters as did Pitcher Willis the evening previous in Wellsville. He allowed but four hits and two runs and but one of these was earned, errors making possible the second. He fanned two, but walked none.

Deshler, flinging for Trotter, was not quite so effective as he permitted six hits which netted as many opposition runs, aided and abetted by a couple of walks, two stolen bases and a brace of errors. He struck out two. However, he nullified some of these aids to the enemy by a timely single in the second that scored the first of the two runs his team made.

Realizing the value of a quick getaway in view of the murky state of the atmosphere that smacked of rain, a few drops falling as the start was made, K. T. K., with seven men batting in the first inning, smote the ball with precision and accuracy, three singles ensuing, which plus a couple of errors, a pass and stolen base, gave them a four-run lead from which they were never dislodged.

Two more in the second, when Shaw doubled, Merchant tripled and McShane walked and stole a bag, put the potters safely in the victorious column.

Trotters attempted a final rally in the fifth when Aufderheide batted for J. Stroble, who reacher first on an error only to be forced by Parsons at second. The side was retired by a fast double play as E. Bayley was batting.

Sainor, with two singles, in two tries, had a perfect batting mark as did Merchant with a walk and triple in as many efforts and Duffy with a single and sacrifice in two attempts.

Shaw had a single and double in three swatting chances. A mark of 667 for the day.

Duffy, playing short with Finley on third during Simcox's absence, he being on the bench but not yet ready for play, had a busy day in the field where he accepted six of nine chances. One of his miscues, however, was partly excusable, inasmuch as Stoffel deflected the ball for which he was set. With three former K. T. K. regulars — Simcox, Rardin and Young—temporarily out of the line-up, Duffy has shown to advantage in his role of infield substitute without any practice so far this season.

R. Pollock, usually a reliable hitter for Trotter, struck out twice, the only member of his team who for the contest fanned.

Two fielding flashes were made during the contest—a one-handed catch off Finley's bat by Kinsey in the first and a great catch by E. Bayley in the fourth of McShane's fly to middle which he took while running full-tilt with his back to the plate and apparently overtaking the sphere before it struck the ground. Sharp coaching by A. Bayley prevented a collision between him and Kinsey on the play.

After J. Strobel had thrown McShane out at first in the first inning, Shaw singled to middle. Merchant walked. Finley flew to Kinsey, a one-handed catch, but the winners were held to their bases. Sainor singled through short which blew Parsons fumbled and Shaw and Merchant scored as Sanior went to second from where he counted on Duffy's single to right. He reached second on the throw to the plate, stole third as J. Strobel let Deshler's throw to nip him at the keystone corner and continued home when the ball rolled to middle.

With two gone in K. T. K.'s half of the second Shaw doubled to right, scoring McShane, who had walked and purloined second. Merchant sent a three bagger to right on which Shaw went home.

Duffy, booting E. Bayley's drive, reached first and went to second on his delayed overthrow to first. E. Bayley stole third and scored on A. Bayley's out, Duffy to Dustman.

OLDHAM

May Prove Another Mails for Pirate Crew.

FIVE years ago this time the Cleveland Indians were headed for the American league flag—and the first big league pennant Cleveland ever boasted. Manager Speaker was awake to the one weakness of the pitching staff. He needed a good lefthander. Big Walter Mails was brought east from the Pacific Coast league where he had been lefthanding them to death. Mails pitched marvelous ball that fall and if he cannot be credited with winning the pennant for the club he can be given a generous share of the credit. He won seven straight games beginning with the first game he pitched.

Now the Pittsburgh Pirate fans have hopes that "Red" Oldham will prove another Mails before the season ends. Manager McKechnie had been struggling along with but one southpaw, Emil Yde, until Oldham was purchased from the Des Moines club in the Western league. And Bill knew that his staff was under a handicap against lefthand batters as a result of this pausity of port flingers. So he got Oldham.

Red is no spring chicken. He was with the Detroit Tigers as far back as 1914 and had cut his eye teeth at that time. He started with Johnstown, Pa., in the Tri State league back in 1911. The Phillies looked him over the next spring but sent him to Trenton before May 1. He won 37 and lost 28 games there in the two years he labored before he moved up a notch. Providence in the International league grabbed him after the 1913 season and after he had won 14 games and lost but seven with that club the Tigers bought him. The rest of that year he spent in the bull pen with the Tigers and worked out with them the following spring only to be shunted to Minneapolis and then to Buffalo. The Tigers recalled him August 17, that same year and at the close of the season sent him to the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league.

The war interrupted his baseball activities until 1919 when he returned to duty, this time with Portland where he became one of the busiest pitchers in the league, breaking into 67 games, winning 21 and losing 23 of them. Then came his return to the Tigers.

For four years he hurled with varying success for the Detroiters. He seemed a jinx to the Cleveland club, baffling them any time he stepped into the box.

When the 1924 season rolled around Oldham refused to report and was suspended. Eventually the Vernon Pacific Coast league club bought him and then sent him to Des Moines when he failed to get going. When the jolly Buccaneers bought his release from the Des Moines outfit he had just won six straight ball games.

M'GRAW STANDS PAT ON LINEUP

Says Failure Due to Injuries and Not Slump

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Despite rumors to the contrary, the New York Giants will not be rebuilt for next season. The team's disappointing showing this year was due in the main to injuries, and not to a playing slump, according to those in charge of the club.

McGraw intended to present as his regular line-up Kelly at first, Frisch at second, Jackson at shortstop and either Lindstrom or Groh at third. Kelly was the only regular infielder who was not laid off because of injuries.

Many Shifts Made.

As either Frisch, Jackson or Lindstrom was out of the game at various times, McGraw was forced to change the lin-up constantly. Groh was of little use because his trick knee repeatedly went back on him.

Of the many misfortunes which happened to the club, probably the injury to Jackson was the most serious.

There is an old adage that no team can win without a good shortstop. Jackson was unable to play when the Giants made their important western trip at the time when they were neck and neck with the Pirates. He was thrust into the line-up against Pittsburgh when the Westerners came east in the lead, but was greatly handicapped in fielding his position.

Heavy Load on Pitchers.

New York's pitching staff was shot to pieces by the suspension of Hugh McQuillan following the star's marital rifficulties. The extra burden on the other pitchers proved too heavy for them to handle.

Baseball experts believe that with his original lineup intact McGraw would have won the pennant. Although they will be surer of themselves because of their success this season, the Pirates will have a tough job preventing the Giants from staging a comeback next year.

Whipped Champ But East Won't Call Him King

Fidel La Barba, above, the Los Angeles high school youth who, in his eleventh professional bout, defeated Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, is not being hailed as champ in New York despite the fact the bout was a decision one. Figure that one out.

SAINT ETIENNE.—A cloud of flying ants descended upon the village of Rive de Gier and swarming around the street lights, plunged the town into complete obscurity and caused the postponement of the annual village ball in honor of the patron saint.

JOHNNY HINES AT CERAMIC

"Little Johnny Jones" On Screen for Two Days

Beauty and the Beast clash together with dramatic effect in "Little Johnny Jones,..... the George M. Cohan stage success starring Johnny Hines, to be seen in the photoplay version at the Ceramic Theater Friday and Saturday.

The "Beauty" takes the form of a charming little English girl who decides to forget her blue blood and tradition because of her love for Johnny Jones, the American jockey; and the "Beast" is a professional gambler of shady past, who tries to put stumbling blocks and dangers in the path of the young Yankee lad so that he might win the girl himself.

It is a romance of the turf, the story of Johnny Jones, the Yankee jockey, who is scheduled to win the English Derby. A bar in his way comes up in the form of Robert Anstead, a gambler, who knows his own horse doesn't stand the ghost of a chance unless Johnny is put out of the way and disqualified. A plot bristling with adventure is concocted to prove that the Yankee has agreed to throw away the race, and Johnny has to show that actions are stronger than words, before he is reinstated in the heart of his sweetheart.

Johnny Hines, called the George M. Cohan of the screen, has the stellar role of Johnny Jones, who rides his favorite horse, Yankee Doodle, to victory at the English Derby and eludes the trap set for him; his supporting cast is made up of Windham Standing, Margaret Seddon, Robert Prior, Molly Malone, George Webb, Mervyn LeRoy, "Fat" Carr, Pauline French, and Brownie, the Wonder Dog.

Arthur Rosson directed this Warner Brothers' screen classic.

It is a thing of charm, beauty and delicacy. The story of "Sally" is by Guy Bolton; the lyrics are by Clifford Grey; the score by Jerome Kern; the Butterfly Ballet music by Victor Herbert. "Sally" involves a vast expenditure of money and artistry never equalled in a Ziegfeld production.

The entire New York production intact, just as shown on Broadway, will be brought here, together with seventy-five people for its presentation and a special orchestra. This is the only "Sally" company in existence.

Laughlin-Trotter Battle May Decide Race

Rivals Will Stage Crucial Clash At Patterson Field

Contest is Scheduled to Go Seven Innings Beginning at 4 O'clock; Record Crowd is Anticipated.

Laughlin and Trotter will clash in what may be the crucial contest of the City Industrial league race at Patterson field on Saturday afternoon.

The league season is rapidly nearing a close. Three teams are battling neck and neck down the home stretch, with every little advantage coming their way meaning a point or so nearer the coveted goal.

Laughlin, Trotter and K. T. K. are the leading candidates for the honor of meeting Frank Riley's Chester club, victorious in the first half of the league season, in the climax event, the "baby world's series.

Although a couple of engagements are billed tonight, it may be Saturday's clash, from present indications, that will ultimately decide the honors.

The game is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock and will go seven innings.

The home run hitting was done by pitchers in the Tiger-Indian doubleheader. Dauss scattered seven hits and smacked a homer to help the Tigers win the first, 6 to 1, and Buckeye's pair of circuit clouts scored five in the second, which the Indians took, 7 to 3.

BERLENBACH ODDS DROP FEW POINTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — Odds on Berlenbach-Slattery scramble, expected to entertain 50,000 fans at the Stadium tonight, were shaved from 8 to 5, with Berlenbach favored to retain his world title, to 6 to 5, today, with the probability that the influx of Buffalo backers of Slattery would force ven money before the men entered the ring.

Slattery was reported in fine shape and showed he was on edge and irritable when he arrived from his Buffalo training camp. He estimated his opponent lightly and opined that the "slow and flat-footed Berlenbach" wouldn't lay a glove on him. Slattery will have four inches reach on the champion, but will concede five to ten pounds in weight, going in at 166 himself.

Berlenbach, the harder hitter, was generally favored to win in much the manner he won the title from the crafty Mike McTigue, but some of the pickers, outside of the enthusiastic Buffalo contingent, contended that Slattery's dancing, lightning speed and fast hitting would dislodge Berlenbach's crown.

Aldridge pitched brilliantly until the ninth, when he relaxed and allowed four runs, and the Pirates backed him with fine fielding and sound hitting to beat the Cards, 9 to 5.

TWO MORE JOIN BOONE'S SQUAD

Campbell, Chester, and Banks, Wellsville, Report

Respective losses of Chester and Wellsville high school today happen to be East Liverpool's gain.

The statement yesterday by Coach O. V. Boone that DeLong, former Chester high school student, had enrolled in the local school, was followed today with the double barreled announcement that one more Chester boy and a Wellsville student, both football players, had lined up with the Blue and White for the coming campaign, materially strengthening the forces of the Ceramic City squad.

Campbell of Chester, a backfield man, and Banks, colored lineman, of Wellsville, are the new additions.

Both reported yesterday to Boone and both were completely equipped with football togs and sent into action yesterday afternoon at Patterson field.

Banks, it is announced, is now an East Liverpool resident, while DeLong and Campbell, although living in Chester, have decided to cast their lot with the locals.

Nels covered as much ground as Ringling's big top in the two-ply program divided by the Phillies and Braves. Carlson pitched a 4 to 0 shutout for the Phillies in the first, but the Braves won the second, 6 to 3, Smith holding the Phillies scoreless until the ninth.

Batt'ries For Today's Game-- Johnson, Nats; Adams, Pirates

This May Be Announcer's Call In At Least One of the Forth-Coming World's Series Contests.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Human interest in the world series, now almost certain, between the Senators and the Pirtes will center around the venerable figures of Walter Perry Johnson and Charles Benjamin Adams, the two oldest major league pitchers now extant.

Last fall it was Johnson, the veteran, and Freddy Lindstrom, the baby of the Giants, who furnished the word painters with coorful material.

Johnson was portrayed as the grand old man of the game, but next month he will meet the grand-daddy of them all. Sir Walter is a comparative Youngster of 38. Adams is 42.

A pitcher may lose his arm, but a smart one never loses his cunning. Adams is no longer capable of working every two or three days, but his arm is still good enough to serve him well enough when he is dropped into "spots."

While the Babe hasn't been an outstanding factor in the triumph of the Pirates this season, he is credited with six victories in eleven games. Johnson has won eighteen and lost six.

It is almost certain that the management of the Pittsburgh club will yield to public demand and start Adams at least once against Johnson.

On form, Johnson should win, as he is still a star in the American league while Adams has been eclipsed by many national league youngsters.

Experience and nerve, however, count heavily in these important games. Adams has gone through enough hard campaigning to be able to do his stuff before a big crowd. He knows how to pitch.

Possibly this will be the major league finale for both of these veterans. Adams says he is ready to retire and Johnson still cherishes an ambition to own a minor league club.

30 GRIDDERS OUT AT SALEM

Coach Springer Faces Prospect of Building New Team.

SALEM, Sept. 11.—Between 30 and 40 men appeared this week at Reilly field when Coach Wilbur Springer of Salem High sounded the tom-tom for the season's gridiron activities. Many of these will be new men and while the material is good it is raw and will require a few weeks of careful training before it can be welded into the smashing machine with which Coach Springer hopes to win the county championship.

The influx of pupils from the eighth grades has proved a promising source of supply. A number of this year's freshmen class are very evidently good football timber. This includes Gibbons, Ed Eeidinger, Konnert, Jenkins and Scullion—all of them men who have had more or less experience on grade teams.

The team naturally suffered considerably by graduation last June but enough remains of the original outfit to form a least a nucleus around which may be built this year's team. Captain Fred Cosgrove, half and end, is one of these. Cosgrove can always be counted on for giving a good account of himself in any encounter involving the pigskin.

Other veterans include Sheen, Miller, Fisher, Coffee, Dider and Alexander. Of last year's second string men Matthews, Yaggi, Schmid, Seidinger, Simus, Werner, Bob Davis and Gregg will probably be given and opportunity to display their wares.

Coach Springer returned recently after a summer spent at Harvard where he went in company with Raymond Deitrich, former basketball coach at Mount Uunion. Springer, it has been learned, turned down a very flattering offer from Alliance High school, his old alma mater, to be with his boys in Salem again. Following the resignation of Harry Geltz as athletic director of the high school, Alliance authorities made determined efforts to secure Springer, but to no avail.

Blake's wildnes helped the Reds beat the Cubs, 8 to 3.

BISON TRAINING WELL UNDER WAY

BETHANY, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The Bethany college football training camp is well under way now and this morning over two full teams were on the field working under the direction of Coach Nuss. A large number of the candidates are freshmen. The bulk of the older men will not arrive until later in the week.

Everett Loppacker, who will captain the Bison squad this year, is expected to report Saturday. He has been working in New York City and will not be able to terminate his work there before that time. Gordon Hanna another grid star is also expected to report in a day or so. The addition of these two men will add materially to the strength and morale of the team.

A Car Unequaled In Looks, Price and Results

Consider the Chrysler Four from any standpoint—of design, of craftsmanship and of performance—and you readily find the reason for the sweeping public demand for it.

Put the Chrysler Four through its paces. Drive it in the thickest of traffic and you will be delighted by its lightning-like, effortless acceleration. Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes, now first offered on a car of this price at slight extra cost, complete the feeling of utmost safety and ease of handling.

Take the open road. Step the Chrysler Four up to your speed and keep it there. You discover a tremendous energy and stamina, coupled with extreme quietness of performance and marked absence of vibration.

You will find that the Chrysler Four gives and does what no other car at its price can equal in power, speed, fuel mileage, acceleration, smoothness, ease of riding and handling.

All this is the result of a new application to proven four-cylinder principles of the same scientific engineering, and the same precision of manufacture with the same prodigal use of fine alloy steels, so characteristic of its companion car, the Chrysler Six.

Come in—we are eager to have you get acquainted with this most remarkable value in the industry.

CHRYSLER FOUR—Touring Car, $895; Club Coupe, $995; Coach, $1045; Sedan, $1095. Hydraulic four-wheel brakes at slight extra cost.

CHRYSLER SIX—Phaeton, $1395; Coach, $1445; Roadster, $1625; Sedan, $1695; Royal Coupe, $1795; Brougham, $1865; Imperial, $1995; Crown-Imperial, $2095.

All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax.

Russia Saves Time.

RIGA.—Traveling time from Western Europe to Soviet Russia is reduced seven hours by an agreement between the Lettish and Soviet governments changing the route of trains from Riga to Moscow. The new route, from Riga via Indra, Bigesovo and Smolensk to Moscow takes only 24 hours as compared to 31 hours over the old route. Only passenger trains will use the new route, which has been put in condition to permit a speed of 31 miles an hour. Freight trains will continue to use the way over Sebesch.

PIECES OF HANGMAN'S ROPE HELD BY THE SUPERSTITIOUS IN SOFIA

SOFIA.—Scores of this city's residents today believe themselves protected from many lurking dangers because among their treasured possessions are pieces of the ropes which hanged the Sofia Cathedral outrage perpetrators.

A Balkan superstition has it that possession of a piece of rope by which criminals are hanged brings good luck, and there was a wild scramble to obtain the coveted trophies after the executions.

The hangman, an itinerant gypsy, reaped a small fortune by cutting the ropes into small pieces and disposing of them to the highest bidders.

THE SMOKY LILT—LESSON NO. 1 IN ANOTHER CHARLESTON DANCE

All set for the first lesson in a new combination of the Charleston? Very well, let's go! This new combination is called the Smoky Lilt.

The Smoky Lilt—Lesson No. 1.

In Lesson No. 2 the dancer stands on the right foot and swings the left foot over the right. These two steps are repeated over and over again until they have been thoroughly mastered. You will then be ready for the next lesson.

The Charleston refutes the oft-heard assertion that we have no dances of our own. The tantalizing steps of the Charleston are distinctly American.

This paper has started a class for the purpose of helping those unfamiliar with the various steps. With a little practice you will soon become proficient in the most difficult steps.

The Sneaky Tide—Lesson No. 2.

Assume neutral position; heels together, toes out. Next press the elbows to the sides and turn the palms of the hands out. Take a short jump toward left, using the right foot. The left is raised, bending it slightly at the knee. Jump three times, first upon toe, then heel, and next upon the toe again, executing the movements as rapidly as possible. Then return to the neutral position.

Now reverse the above action, jumping to the right and using the left foot, making the same toe-heel-toe movement three successive times. Return to the neutral position, ready for the next step.

The next combination will be taken up tomorrow. Students are going to do some further "jumping."

England Reports Birth Rate Slump; Mortality, too, Off

LONDON — England's birth rate continues to decline, according to the latest statistics of births and deaths.

The birth rate for the second quarter of the present year was 183 lower than last year's corresponding quarter, and is the lowest recorded.

The death rate for the same quarter decreased by over 900 from that of last year, while infant mortality is returned at 66 per thousand.

In view of the fact that for the first quarter of this year 1,620 fewer were married than last year, the Englishman is wondering whether the birth rate slump will ever be arrested.

Telephone linemen may erect lines along any road, on any roof or in the yard of any house, according to government decree in Persia.

How Mrs. V. R. Sweet Lost 40 Pounds

She explains it below to every reader overburdened with excess FAT.

Wonderful French formula works wonders even in most stubborn cases of obesity—NO DIETS—DANGEROUS DRUGS OR EXERCISES.

Hundreds of letters of fat people who have reduced with SAN-GRI-NA tell the same story as Mrs. Sweet of Albion, Idaho.

"I was able to take off several pounds of fat every week without any effort or harmful effect—at the same time I greatly improved my health—I ate all I wanted, did not have to exercise or take dangerous drugs and thanks to SAN-GRI-NA my dream of getting back to my normal weight is at last realized.

If you are a fat woman let me tell you what to do: Get a box of SAN-GRI-NA today, take two small tablets before your meals and safely lose a few pounds of excess fat each week—It took four boxes of SAN-GRI-NA to reduce me of forty pounds—It made me look at least ten years younger and entirely transformed my health and appearance. I gladly sign my name to this letter because I am happy to be able to help every fat man or woman regain a slender, healthy normal figure.—Mrs. V. R. Sweet."

NOTICE—SAN-GRI-NA is a scientific discovery made up from the formula of one of the best French medical authorities on obesity—It is guaranteed absolutely harmless and not to contain dangerous drugs or chemicals—IT HAS REDUCED HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE WHERE EVERYTHING ELSE HAD FAILED—SAN-GRI-NA is not a new, untried or unknown formula—it was used for years in Europe by most reliable obesity specialists with remarkable success. It has now been introduced in America and is sold by the leading druggists at a price within the reach of all.

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C.

Tax Rate For Redemption of Bonds Will Be Reduced

Although Provision Is Made for Proposed $950,000 Road Bond Issue, Levy Is to Be Cut from 3.50 to 3.17 Mills.

Although electors will be asked at the November election to approve a bond issue for $950,000 for road purposes, the tax levy to provide for the payment of this issue, together with the levy necessary for the redemption of all other outstanding bonds, will be reduced from 3.50, the rate for this year, to 3.17 mills, in 1926.

In 1927 this millage will be still further reduced to 2.94, and a reduction will be made to 1.07 in 1929.

The tax rate required for present interest and sinking fund for 1926 will be .89 mills, and the rate for 1927 will be .38 mills and in 1928 this will be reduced to .31 mills.

Outstanding bonds due in 1926 total $144,685 and the interest on these bonds will amount to $14,239.

Nearly $100,000 in bonds are to be paid off next year, so that in 1927 the county will have to pay only $43,838 bonds and $7,007 interest charges.

The outstanding bonds due in 1928 will be down to $36,625, and the interest charge lowered to $4,842.

The two-mill levy for a 10-year period will expire in 1929, and as it is not proposed to sell any of the new bond issue until contracts are awarded at intervals during the next three year period, the road bond rate from then will be down to 1.07, the lowest in a decade.

The tax rate required in 1926 for bonds will amount to 1.06 mills and in 1927 this will be lowered to 1.02 mills and a further reduction to .96 mills will be made in 1928.

The proposed new issue will be retired at an approximate rate of $85,500 per year. Interest charges will be reduced $3,647 annually. The average yearly interest charge for the new issue will be approximately $21,161, which shows that $106,661 will be required annually for the redemption of the bonds and interest charge. To meet this cost the average tax rate required will be but .82 mills.

The elimination of the two-mill levy in 1929 is one reason why the road levy is reduced to such a low figure. Under the provisions of the new law, the county commissioners are unable to sell bonds for any job until after a contract has been awarded, and then only for the actual amount of the contract.

This rate may show a further reduction as the tax duplicate increases in value. The rates as announced are based upon the present resources of the county, based upon the tax duplicate as it now appears. With changes being made in the December duplicate, and upward, the millage required for the new issue may be down to one mill flat.

The commissioners believe that should the bond issue carry, and with the state and federal aid assured Columbiana county, more new roads can be built within the next three years, and at a lower cost in millage, than ever in the history of the sub-division.

NAMED JUDGES AT COUNTY FAIR

D. R. McConnell of Hubbard, president of the Ohio State Horticultural society, will preside at the apple and fruit exhibit at the county fair next week.

SEVEN MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED

A sudden rush for marriage licenses is being experienced in the office of Probate Judge Lodge Riddle.

Arthur K. Leyman, a butcher at Salem, and Miss Adda M. Close, also of Salem, but a former resident of Salineville, were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Methodist church by the Rev. W. E. Tilton.

John Fleicher of Cleveland, a native of Transylvania, and Anna Gottschling, of Salem, have been granted a marriage license. They are to be married by the Rev. Cruzon of Salem.

George Pugh, Jr., and Miss Norene Goldie Sweet, daughter of George Sweet of East Liverpool, have obtained a license.

James W. Conn of Franklin Springs, Pa., and Miss Martha E. Ramsey of East Liverpool, but a former resident of Darlington, Pa., were married by the Rev. J. M. Cameron at the parsonage of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church.

James Hickman a farmer, of Calcutta, and Miss Helen Chamberlain, daughter of Homer Chamberlain, also of Calcutta, were also married by Rev. Mr. Cameron.

They were accompanied by Orin Lewton and Miss. Mabel M. Armstrong, who after the ceremony went to the parsonage of the Bethesda church to be married. Both couples then left for an eastern motor trip.

OPEN LINCOLN WAY JOB BIDS

Bids for the resurfacing of Lincoln Way, Lisbon, were opened by the street committee of the Lisbon village council, but no contracts were awarded, pending a study of the proposals.

The Columbus Asphalt & Paving Co., bid $23,428.72 for asphalt concrete; $29,250.40 for sheet asphalt and $31,190.96 for Willite.

The bid of the General Asphalt Paving Co., read: asphalt concrete $21,814.27; sheet asphalt $23,754.85.

Burd Construction Co.—asphalt concrete, $23,856.72; sheet asphalt $27,737.84.

Herman C. Armstrong, Lisbon, entered a lone bid for Amiesite, $30,498.68.

Kelley & Meyer.—Asphalt concrete, $23,176.60; sheet asphalt, $27,057.72.

Ohio Willite Paving & Resurfacing Co., East Liverpool, Willite, $32,905.48.

The Columbus Asphalt & Paving Co., was low on its proposal for Willite resurfacing, and that of Mr. Armstrong for amiesite was low for that character of resurfacing.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—Despite the fact that the temperature outside was over 80, the steam was turned on full force in the Federal building. COPENHAGEN.—One of the most notorius rum-runners in Northern Europe has just been captured by the Swedish police, due to his irresistible desire to see his fiancee.

Hisc capture was only accomplished after a dramatic chase, which ended in a pitched revolver battle. A strong force of police, headed by a sheriff and accompanied by dogs, surrounded the district of Mariehavn, where the rum-runners fiancee was known to be living.

The police dogs soon got on his trail, and finally located him beside a big hay loft. Realizing that he was discovered, the smuggler at once opened fire, and for nearly an hour shots were exchanged. His arrest was only effected after his ammunition had given out.

Harding Good Will Memorial Will Be Dedicated Sept. 16

Monument Erected At Stanley Park, Vancouver, B. C., by Subscriptions of 95,000 Kiwanians.

STANLEY PARK, VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 11.—The President Harding International Good Will Memorial, located in this city's immense municipal park, and erected by Kiwanis International through the voluntary subscriptions of its 95,000 members in the United States and Canada, will be dedicated on Wednesday, September 16. Government officials of both the United States and Canada will take part in the memorial program.

The East Liverpool, O., Kiwanis club contributed toward the building of this monument.

The monument is the only material symbol of fortification, outside of mile posts, to outline the invisible demarcation of the thousands of miles of border line which spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific and separate both countries.

"What the world is hoping for, the United States and Canada have achieved; the conception of peace written in the minds and hearts of the citizens of both nations," said John H. Moss, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, president of Kiwanis International, today. "It was with this understanding that the late President Harding, a Kiwanian himself, pledged to the ideals of Kiwanis, gave to the world that tribute of friendship which is now hoped to be succor to a world in the travail of a wars aftermath.'

The idea of the erection by Kiwanis International of a Harding memorial was first given prominence by the fact that as president of the United States and a member of the International organization, Mr. Harding had been greatly respected by both Canadians and Americans. Also it was the only time that a president had visited Canada and Americans. Also it was the only time that a presiednt had visited Canada during his term of office. When the proposal to erect a memorial was brought to the thousands of Kiwanis delegates at the Denver annual convention in 1924, it was met with instant and unanimous approval. Directly, then, followed the approval of the international board of trustees and also the international council held in Chicago in December, 1924. Members of the Harding Memorial committee appointed in July, 1924, were: John H. Moss, Milwaukee, Wisconson, now president of Kiwanis International; Victor M. Johnson, Rockford, Illinois, now immediate past president of the organization; Edmund F. Arras, Columbus, Ohio, past president; and Douglas J. Scott, Winnipeg, Canada, International trustee.

Consideration of a site demanded careful thought and mature deliberation. There were three suggestions: first, the nation's capital, second, Harding's birthplace, Marion, Ohio, and third, Stanley Park. But the board of harmonious friendship settled the question in favor of Vancouver, for it was there that as president of the United States, Mr. Harding had spoken in favor of the possession of an increased understanding between the two countries.

The exact site chosen in the park is some 800 feet from the main entrance, the only part of the expansive tract where waterpools, fountains and flower beds are maintained, and thousands of tourists pass by annually. Charles Marega, of Vancouver, is the sculptor.

Lover of Tramp Dogs And Alley Cats Sent To State Institution

CINCINNATI — Hamilton county's dogdom and catdom were plunged in grief today. Dovid Connors, aged 48, lover extraordinary of tramp dogs and alleys cats ,was confined in Longview hospital.

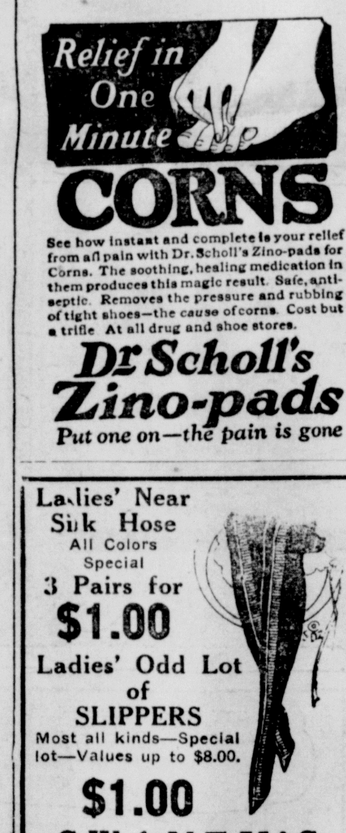

Connors was ordered to the asylum by Probate Judge William H. Lueders after neighbors had complained that the Connors home had been turned into a mission for stray animals.

Sixteen dogs and 16 cats were found by welfare workers at the Connors home.

"My motto has been 'a good home for every dog and cat,'" Connors explained to the court. "But caring for these animals has been awfully hard work. All the neighbors are set against animal rescue work it seems to me."

Mrs. Connors explained to the judge that she was a stenographer and that if her husband was willing to do the rescuer work she was willing to support both him and the animals.

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 40.

"You must take me where there's marvelous music and a dance floor that isn't packed and jammed like most of them," she told Tommy.

"I know just the place,' he had answered. He did.

"It's surprising that this place isn't better known," he remarked, as he led her into a restaurant that was hidden away in an obscure street on the West Side, some blocks from the Loop. "I suppose those who come here keep it a secret. Assuredly the best French cooking in Chicago is to be obtained here.

"What's the name of it?"

"It hasn't any."

Little tables on a raised balcony looked down on a seductively glistening floor.

"The music doesn't begin until nine-thirty. That will give us time to enjoy the marvelous food.'

"But it's so warm, Tommy, no food will be very enjoyable."

"Ah, you don't know the place," he enthused, the true gourmet. "The chef here defeats the thermometer with the menu."

"Please order then, whatever you think I'll like." An air of formality hung over the table. She sat up stiffly, and could think of nothing to talk about.

When he had given the orders for poulet frnid moutarde au jambon with salade a la Francaise, and as dessert, bombe bee, with a familiar remark to the waiter that they were having "eight o'clock luncheon," he lit a cigarette and bent devoted eyes upon Amoura.

"Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swiftson's?"

"Oh, that reminds me I saw in the paper that Cicely's brother is now working as a common laborer in one of his father's packing houses."

"Yes, I heard about it," he responded, annoyed by her avoidance of his question. "But he won't be a laborer any more than you are a working girl."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply this: The working-girl is a working girl always, even when she is in the dance halls that are her only 'fun.' But you are able to find release from the toil and dullness that is their's. You are able to take little vacations from their world. They can't. They, for instance, couldn't come here tonight and enjoy themselves."

She grasped his meaning, despite the vague explanation. "Oh, you're speaking of a certain type of working-girl."

"I'm speaking of a class, a class with which you are associating, but to which you do not belong."

"I have not found any great difference."

"Oh, yes, you have! You don't believe that."

"No, I don't. I spoke before I thought . . . And you are right, I'm not playing fair, I'm pretending to be a working-girl, and yet I'm not keeping myself within their boundaries and restrictions. I suppose it's because I just can't."

"Exactly . . . And now that that is settled, le'ts get back to my question. Have you forgotten what I told you that evening at Cicely Swifton's?"

"Of course, I haven't. Women do not forget the supreme compliments. But how is Betty?"

"Oh, bother Betty!"

"I understood that she was your fiancee." Amoura said it indifferently, as if it didn't matter.

"She was. Our engagement was broken by mutual consent."

Amoura was relieved by the timely arrival of the waiter. She hoped that she could keep Tommy in check, for she was in the mood to enjoy food and dancing, and his protestations of love, only annoyed her. Again she felt akin to the chorus girls and models who for a dinner, sat up and heard moony-eyed fat men make violent confessions of undying affection. The thought made her smile.

They were having their second dance, and Amoura was enjoying herself, despite Tommy's only too evident short-comings as a dancer, when her eyes accidently fell upon a table they were gliding by. Simultaneously the eyes of one of the two men at the table rested upon her. Her expression indicated her recognition, and confirmed to him that this was his nameless luncheon guest of last Sunday. She did not nod, so neither did he, but his eyes avidly followed her down the floor.

She was disturbed now, and Tommy sensed it. "Getting a headache?" Amoura did not offer an explanation, but simply said "No! No!"

She was glad that there wasn't another encore to the number.

When they were back at the table, Tommy proffered a cigaret, and, nervous, she lighted up with him. She didn't care for smoking, but now the seductive tobacco relieved her. Tommy began telling an inconsequential story about Cicely Swiftson that bored her. She wanted to leave. In half an hour, she decided, she would suggest it.

Amoura was not surprised to see Vey Ardle approaching the table, but her heart dropped a beat. Tommy followed her gaze and rose courteously when Vey paused at the table. Amoura greeted him with a bow.

"Do you know Mr. Loughley, Mr. Ardle?"

Vey shook hands indifferently, with little more than a glance at the other man, but bowed a thanks when Loughley pleasantly asked, "Will you sit down, Mr. Ardle?" and directed himself to Amoura: "May I have the next dance?"

She did not hesitate. "Will you excuse me, Tommy?"

Still standing, he watched them glide onto the floor that was waving with reflected light, then sat down with a frown to light a cigaret. The burning match he held in his hand, his composure ruffled until it licked a finger, and caused him to release it with an oath.

At this moment Vey Ardle, having conventionally expressed his joy in meeting her here, and complimenting her gown, was pleading in Amoura's ear. "Please give men the next dance, too?"

"You forget that I am Mr. Loughley's guest. I'm afraid he is offended because I gave you this one," she responded.

"Naturally . . . "

It was a waltz, and her tense body released itself into the rhythm. She did not think, and only heard what else he had to say inattentively and without comment. She was annoyed when the music paused and applause rattled over the floor before an encore began. When this had been played, and the musicians lad down their instruments, she started back to the table unwillingly. She wanted to dance on and on.

"You simply MUST tell me your name,' he exclaimed.

"Remember your promise."

"Ah ha! That promise was only good for that afternoon. If you don't tell me, I'll ask your companion. He will." Vey looked as if he would carry out his threat.

She glanced furtively in the direction of Tommy, then paused. "Have you pencil and paper?"

For answer he halted at the table they were passing, took a pencil from the waiter's hand, pulled up his coat sleeve and bared the white cuff, oblivious of the stares of those at the table. "Write it."

With flushed cheeks, she took the pencil and complied, forming with uncertain fingers a rakish "Amy Ainsworth."

"And the address?"

"I'm a model at La Houbierre's."

He nodded, emotionless and they went to her table, followed by the eyes of the occupants of surrounding tables and the waiter. A pounchy man winked, and the others smiled.

"I shall call for you tomorrow afternoon," he said calimly, within Tommy's hearing. She was thrilled by the caress in his eyes and ill concealed it. Tommy started at her when Ardle had gone.

A Tiny Speck of Iodine— But It Prevents Goiter

When MULKEY'S IODINE SALT first came out some people seemed to think that it would be a brownish color or taste of iodine. Nothing like that. If you didn't see the label you might use MULKEY'S IODINE SALT without ever knowing that it was anything but ordinary table salt.

A person's thyroid gland requires very little iodine to keep it in a healthy condition— but without the iodine it becomes enlarged, and that is what is known as Goiter.

Health authorities and medical societies endorse MULKEY'S IODINE SALT for Goiter prevention. How about your children? Won't you begin using this iodine salt today?

Ask for MULKEY'S, the original iodine salt sold through the grocery trade.

Ziegfeld's 'Sally,' Musical Comedy DeLuxe, Booked Here

Entire New York Production Will Come to Ceramic Theatre, Friday, Sept. 18.

Ziegfeld's "Sally' the musical comedy de luxe, with the entire New York production that was seen for two years at the New Amsterday theatre, New York, comes to the Ceramic theatre, Friday, Sept. 18.

Mr. Ziegfeld believes that "Sally" is one of the best musical comedy entertainments ever devised. This show is referred to as "the apple of his eye." In a way it was a windfall, like many good apples. Other producers had their chance to take it up with him and they declined. Imagine their surprise, not to mention other emotions. "Sally' opened at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York and ran two years, totaling more than six hundred performances and breaking all box office records.

The gross box office income for the New York run was $2,190,000. The weekly average was $31,250. "Sally" beat the New York box office record by about $200,000. The old record was held by "Lightnin.", which has a three year run on Broadway with Frank Bacon as the star. "Lightnin'" ran for exactly 161 weeks but played in a smaller theatre and at lower prices than "Sally."

Night Bureau Service Great Assistance in Tracin gStolen Cars

COLUMBUS — Police and other authorities throughout Ohio are receiving material aid, through the operation of the recently inaugurated 24-hour day service at the state automobile registration department, in tracing stolen automobiles and apprehending criminals, Secretary of State Brown said today.

Establishment of this night bureau service by Secretary Brown placed Ohio among the few states which have this service. Calls for information at this night bureau are increasing from night to night, Brown said. Private citizens are are reporting accidents to this night bureau, the records disclosed.

Two attendants are on duty every night. One has the stretch from 5 p. m. until midnight. The other is on from midnight to 8 a. m. The day force is on duty from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

With automobile records at their finger tips, these night attendants furnish the police and sheriffs with the names and addresses of motorists figuring in accidents or crimes. Officials are thus enabled to make prompt investigations without waiting until next day.

Claiming that the Ferrocarril del Norte, the British owned railway, failed to comply with all the obligations of its original concession, the government of Columbia has taken entire possession.

Three Generations of Women

Since the humble origin of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in 1881, made on a kitchen stove, three generations of women have used this old-fashioned root and herb remedy for their ailments with wonderful success. Very often we hear of families where the grandmother, mother and daughter testify to its virtue. This accounts for the astounding growth and demand for this dependable medicine from all over the United States and from many foreign countries as well.

D. Q., as this chemical kills the eggs as well as the live ones, and will not injure the clothing.

A 35c package makes a full quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, moths or cooties—and also contains a patent spout to get the eggs nests in the hard-to-get-at places and saves juice. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form. Sold by Mathews Medicine Store, Herche's Drug Co. and John I. Hodson Drug Co.

TROTTERS LOSE TO K. T. K., 6-2

Potters and Automen Now Tied for Second Place.

Pulling thmemselves together for a final spurt and dash for the second half honors in the unprecedented spirited City Industrial league race, K. T. K. outhit Trotter at Columbian park on Thursday evening and won the clash, 6 to 2.

The result put both clubs in second place with honors even while Laughlin, resting for the day, left the runner up position for the top round in the standing—a half game to the good. The outcome accordingly is yet in doubt and may not be decided until the final game is played.

Pilot Godwin sent Stoffel, who twirled against Laughlin to a tie on Wednesday night, neithef side scoring, back to the hurling hill top and he stopped Trotters as did Pitcher Willis the evening previous in Wellsville. He allowed but four hits and two runs and but one of these was earned, errors making possible the second. He fanned two, but walked none.

Deshler, flinging for Trotter, was not quite so effective as he permitted six hits which netted as many opposition runs, aided and abetted by a couple of walks, two stolen bases and a brace of errors. He struck out two. However, he nullified some of these aids to the enemy by a timely single in the second that scored the first of the two runs his team made.

Realizing the value of a quick getaway in view of the murky state of the atmosphere that smacked of rain, a few drops falling as the start was made, K. T. K., with seven men batting in the first inning, smote the ball with precision and accuracy, three singles ensuing, which plus a couple of errors, a pass and stolen base, gave them a four-run lead from which they were never dislodged.

Two more in the second, when Shaw doubled, Merchant tripled and McShane walked and stole a bag, put the potters safely in the victorious column.

Trotters attempted a final rally in the fifth when Aufderheide batted for J. Stroble, who reacher first on an error only to be forced by Parsons at second. The side was retired by a fast double play as E. Bayley was batting.

Sainor, with two singles, in two tries, had a perfect batting mark as did Merchant with a walk and triple in as many efforts and Duffy with a single and sacrifice in two attempts.

Shaw had a single and double in three swatting chances. A mark of 667 for the day.

Duffy, playing short with Finley on third during Simcox's absence, he being on the bench but not yet ready for play, had a busy day in the field where he accepted six of nine chances. One of his miscues, however, was partly excusable, inasmuch as Stoffel deflected the ball for which he was set. With three former K. T. K. regulars — Simcox, Rardin and Young—temporarily out of the line-up, Duffy has shown to advantage in his role of infield substitute without any practice so far this season.

R. Pollock, usually a reliable hitter for Trotter, struck out twice, the only member of his team who for the contest fanned.

Two fielding flashes were made during the contest—a one-handed catch off Finley's bat by Kinsey in the first and a great catch by E. Bayley in the fourth of McShane's fly to middle which he took while running full-tilt with his back to the plate and apparently overtaking the sphere before it struck the ground. Sharp coaching by A. Bayley prevented a collision between him and Kinsey on the play.

After J. Strobel had thrown McShane out at first in the first inning, Shaw singled to middle. Merchant walked. Finley flew to Kinsey, a one-handed catch, but the winners were held to their bases. Sainor singled through short which blew Parsons fumbled and Shaw and Merchant scored as Sanior went to second from where he counted on Duffy's single to right. He reached second on the throw to the plate, stole third as J. Strobel let Deshler's throw to nip him at the keystone corner and continued home when the ball rolled to middle.

With two gone in K. T. K.'s half of the second Shaw doubled to right, scoring McShane, who had walked and purloined second. Merchant sent a three bagger to right on which Shaw went home.

Duffy, booting E. Bayley's drive, reached first and went to second on his delayed overthrow to first. E. Bayley stole third and scored on A. Bayley's out, Duffy to Dustman.

OLDHAM

May Prove Another Mails for Pirate Crew.

FIVE years ago this time the Cleveland Indians were headed for the American league flag—and the first big league pennant Cleveland ever boasted. Manager Speaker was awake to the one weakness of the pitching staff. He needed a good lefthander. Big Walter Mails was brought east from the Pacific Coast league where he had been lefthanding them to death. Mails pitched marvelous ball that fall and if he cannot be credited with winning the pennant for the club he can be given a generous share of the credit. He won seven straight games beginning with the first game he pitched.

Now the Pittsburgh Pirate fans have hopes that "Red" Oldham will prove another Mails before the season ends. Manager McKechnie had been struggling along with but one southpaw, Emil Yde, until Oldham was purchased from the Des Moines club in the Western league. And Bill knew that his staff was under a handicap against lefthand batters as a result of this paucity of port flingers. So he got Oldham.

Red is no spring chicken. He was with the Detroit Tigers as far back as 1914 and had cut his eye teeth at that time. He started with Johnstown, Pa., in the Tri State league back in 1911. The Phillies looked him over the next spring but sent him to Trenton before May 1. He won 37 and lost 28 games there in the two years he labored before he moved up a notch. Providence in the International league grabbed him after the 1913 season and after he had won 14 games and lost but seven with that club the Tigers bought him. The rest of that year he spent in the bull pen with the Tigers and worked out with them the following spring only to be shunted to Minneapolis and then to Buffalo. The Tigers recalled him August 17, that same year and at the close of the season sent him to the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league.

The war interrupted his baseball activities until 1919 when he returned to duty, this time with Portland where he became one of the busiest pitchers in the league, breaking into 67 games, winning 21 and losing 23 of them. Then came his return to the Tigers.

For four years he hurled with varying success for the Detroiters. He seemed a jinx to the Cleveland club, baffling them any time he stepped into the box.

When the 1924 season rolled around Oldham refused to report and was suspended. Eventually the Vernon Pacific Coast league club bought him and then sent him to Des Moines when he failed to get going. When the jolly Buccaneers bought his release from the Des Moines outfit he had just won six straight ball games.

M'GRAW STANDS PAT ON LINEUP

Says Failure Due to Injuries and Not Slump

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Despite rumors to the contrary, the New York Giants will not be rebuilt for next season. The team's disappointing showing this year was due in the main to injuries, and not to a playing slump, according to those in charge of the club.

McGraw intended to present as his regular line-up Kelly at first, Frisch at second, Jackson at shortstop and either Lindstrom or Groh at third. Kelly was the only regular infielder who was not laid off because of injuries.

Many Shifts Made.

As either Frisch, Jackson or Lindstrom was out of the game at various times, McGraw was forced to change the lin-up constantly. Groh was of little use because his trick knee repeatedly went back on him.

Of the many misfortunes which happened to the club, probably the injury to Jackson was the most serious.

There is an old adage that no team can win without a good shortstop. Jackson was unable to play when the Giants made their important western trip at the time when they were neck and neck with the Pirates. He was thrust into the lineup against Pittsburgh when the Westerners came east in the lead, but was greatly handicapped in fielding his position.

Heavy Load on Pitchers.

New York's pitching staff was shot to pieces by the suspension of Hugh McQuillan following the star's marital rifficulties. The extra burden on the other pitchers proved too heavy for them to handle.

Baseball experts believe that with his original lineup intact McGraw would have won the pennant. Although they will be surer of themselves because of their success this season, the Pirates will have a tough job preventing the Giants from staging a comeback next year.

Whipped Champ But East Won't Call Him King

Cloud of Flying Ants Puts French Town In Darkness

SAINT ETIENNE.—A cloud of flying ants descended upon the village of Rive de Gier and swarming around the street lights, plunged the town into complete obscurity and caused the postponement of the annual village ball in honor of the patron saint. The following morning the ants had disappeared. Nearby towns were warned and have organized volunteers who will combat the invaders on their next appearance.

Record Income Tax.

BOSTON—The income tax of Harry C. Chang probably traveled the longest distance of any paid in this city. From China he sent the internal revenue bureau the sum of $10.25 with his return.

JOHNNY HINES AT CERAMIC

"Little Johnny Jones" On Screen for Two Days

Beauty and the Beast clash together with dramatic effect in "Little Johnny Jones,... the George M. Cohan stage success starring Johnny Hines, to be seen in the photoplay version at the Ceramic Theater Friday and Saturday.

The "Beauty" takes the form of a charming little English girl who decides to forget her blue blood and tradition because of her love for Johnny Jones, the American jockey; and the "Beast" is a professional gambler of shady past, who tries to put stumbling blocks and dangers in the path of the young Yankee lad so that he might win the girl himself.

It is a romance of the turf, the story of Johnny Jones, the Yankee jockey, who is scheduled to win the English Derby. A bar in his way comes up in the form of Robert Anstead, a gambler, who knows his own horse doesn't stand the ghost of a chance unless Johnny is put out of the way and disqualified. A plot bristling with adventure is concocted to prove that the Yankee has agreed to throw away the race, and Johnny has to show that actions are stronger than words, before he is reinstated in the heart of his sweetheart.

Johnny Hines, called the George M. Cohan of the screen, has the stellar role of Johnny Jones, who rides his favorite horse, Yankee Doodle, to victory at the English Derby and eludes the trap set for him; his supporting cast is made up of Windham Standing, Margaret Seddon, Robert Prior, Molly Malone, George Webb, Mervyn LeRoy, "Fat" Carr, Pauline French, and Brownie, the Wonder Dog.

Arthur Rosson directed this Warner Brothers' screen classic.

The management of the CERAMIC announces that it is now prepared to receive MAIL ORDERS for the greatest musical comedy hit in American theatrical history.

ZIEGFELD'S "SALLY"

Which Nicolai-Welch-DeMilt, Inc., Will Bring Here Soon.

Ziegfeld's greatest success, "Sally," began its career in New York. The sensation it created is stage history. It ran for over two years at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, and broke all box office records for that city.

It is a thing of charm, beauty and delicacy. The story of "Sally" is by Guy Bolton; the lyrics are by Clifford Grey; the score by Jerome Kern; the Butterfly Ballet music by Victor Herbert. "Sally" involves a vast expenditure of money and artistry never equalled in a Ziegfeld production.

The entire New York production intact, just as shown on Broadway, will be brought here, together with seventy-five people for its presentation and a special orchestra. This is the only "Sally" company in existence.

MAIL ORDERS

The seat demand here, as elsewhere, will be enormous. The privilege of sending in orders by mail at once is extended to those desiring to secure choice seats.

Gets Pleasant Surprise

"About six months ago my father was very sick with his stomcah, which had been troubling him for several years. Three doctors said he had cancer and one said it was gall stones —all agreed an operation necessary, but on account of his age I was afraid to risk it. I told a friend about it who said his wife had been through the same trouble and had been cured by taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I at once bought a bottle for father and he is now as strong as a bear and can eat more ham and cabbage than any three men." It removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis.
